People can get very specific about their Domino's pizza order, and for good reason. By some counts, there are around 34 million different ways to customize your pizza. It's a lot to take in and a lot to consider, especially if you're ordering for a group rather than for a personal piece of enjoyment. That's where the Domino's specialty pizzas come in.
These tried-and-true pies satisfy — for the most part — without the added stress of being overwhelmed with options. In the best case scenario, the specialty orders are balanced and well thought out. In the worst case, the pizzas can feel like a jumble of trending food items thrown on top of pizza dough. (There's a reason Domino's decided to discontinue the chicken taco pizza.) Thankfully, you have this ranking to sort the delicious from the duds without having to try every one of their specialty options. These are all of the specialty pizzas at Domino's as of August 2024, ranked from worst to best. Prices and availability may vary by location. This is simply a cheese pizza by another name.
Nothing against the purists who prefer cheese and nothing but cheese on their pizza, but the Wisconsin 6 Cheese doesn't bring much to the table other than lots and lots of its namesake. It's like a cheeseboard, but one where you're forced to eat every available cheese at once on a pizza crust with some tomato sauce. Wisconsin 6 Cheese first came out in 2010 as part of the American Legends pizza line, and it was announced with a press release that assertively started with the statement, "Cheeseheads Unite!" It has mozzarella, feta, provolone, cheddar, Parmesan, and Asiago. All are great cheeses perfect for pizza, but the lack of an excitement factor is hard to get past. And then there's the issue of the name. All of these but cheddar are typically associated with Italy (where mozzarella, provolone, Asiago, and true Parmigiano cheeses all come from) or Greece (feta dates back to Ancient Greece) rather than Wisconsin. According to Forbes, Domino's and nearly every other big pizza chain gets its cheese from one company: Leprino Foods, which is headquartered in Denver, Colorado. That all said, there is a time and a place for Wisconsin 6 Cheese. Namely, that time and place is either when you're with a group of extremely picky eaters or when you have a bunch of toppings from home that you plan on adding to the top yourself. This specialty pizza faces the same identity problem as Wisconsin 6 Cheese. If you want a fast food pepperoni (or an "ultimate" amount of pepperoni, if you will), then why not just order extra pepperoni? While this isn't always the case, in many places, a medium Ultimate Pepperoni costs a couple of dollars more than a regular medium pizza with double pepperoni. Think smart, save a few bucks. Domino's says it uses a blend of pork, beef, and spices in its pepperoni is made with two layers of the meat "to honor pepperoni is the most reliable classic topping and deserves respect as such, springing for a pie off of the specialty pizza menu that's just a pepperoni pizza with extra toppings is not going to turn any heads as an especially special order. There are two types of sandwiches in this world — those that are better as a pizza, and those that are not. The Cali Chicken Bacon Ranch pizza from Domino's is the latter ... but barely. The pizza is topped with ranch, bacon, grilled chicken breast, tomatoes, and a mix of mozzarella and provolone cheese factor, it also has a provolone-enhanced crust. A more truthful name might be the Cali Chicken Bacon Ranch sandwich (as does Subway, but that's a debate for another time). Ranch dressing holds up better on thick sandwich bread than it does on thin pizza dough. Ranch is typically added bite by bite as a dipping sauce rather than having it sit on top: The sauce is simply a better dip than it is a main when it comes to pizza. Still, if you're looking to feed a crowd of people who all happen to desire chicken, bacon, and ranch, then this pizza is a much more solid choice than attempting to split a sandwich of the same type six ways. Steak on pizza doesn't always fly. The meat can be too much to bite through, leading to the awkward situation of having to shovel the rest of the piece into your mouth with a fork or, worse, your hand. That's not the case with the Philly Cheese Steak pizza from Domino's. It also avoids the trappings of the Cali Chicken Bacon Ranch pizza because, although the sandwich version of a Philly cheesesteak is a tried and true classic, the pizza version is something of its own. Philly Cheese Steak (the pizza version) is topped with beef tenderloin steak, onions, mushrooms, green peppers, and, of course, cheese. It's provolone rather than Cheez Whiz, a "cheese type with a long Philly cheese steak history, but the adjustment works better for the pizza. Domino's skipped using any traditional pizza sauce to keep it closer to the classic sandwich, though there's a case to be made for ordering a marinara dipping sauce on the side to add your own. At the end of the day, you might run into the same problem as you do with the other specialty pizzas inspired by non-pizza foods. It won't satisfy a craving of either one of the foods individually, but in this case, there's the possibility that it will start a new craving. Don't be too confused by the double "z" in the name, as this is simply Domino's take on a regular old meat lovers pizza. Ham, beef, Italian sausage, and pepperoni (or salami if you choose to make the swap) define the pie. You might be wondering why Domino's didn't just go all out and add the rest of its meat options into the mix, and that's a fair question. Bacon and Philly steak could have upped the ante, and even additional toppings. The MeatZZa is still a hefty option with what's included if you're really looking to check off all the boxes on your meat consumption for the week. All in all, the MeatZZa is a fine standby, but it lacks any true depth to make it interesting. Perhaps you're craving a salad but also pizza. If that's the case, Pacific Veggie pizza from Domino's is the vegetarian pizza for you, as this specialty pie is pretty close to just being a salad on top of a pizza. It's topped with the traditional Robust Inspired tomatoes, and a blend of mozzarella, feta, and provolone cheeses. That's a lot to load on each piece, but the Pacific Veggie can handle it whether you get hand tossed, Brooklyn style, or crunchy thin crust. What this pizza really has going for it is that it's vegetarian without being plain. There's the umami from the tomatoes and mushrooms, the salt kick from the cheese and olives, and plenty of flavor coming from the onions and peppers. Even meat lovers can appreciate, if not fully embrace, a vegetarian pizza as loaded as the Pacific Veggie pizza is. Sure, it might lead to conversations that start with, "Do I have anything in my teeth," but that alone is not a deal breaker. The Deluxe pizza from Domino's comes with pepperoni, Italian sausage, green peppers, mushrooms, onions, and mozzarella cheese. The Deluxe is essentially a very similar — but slimmed down — version of the ExtravaganZZa specialty pizza. Consider it an ExtravaganZZa-lite that's built for people who are unsure about going the full distance. The Deluxe does play with the hits, though. Pepperoni and Italian sausage are the two ideal options for anyone looking to use only two types of meat. Pepperoni is the number one pizza topping followed by Italian sausage, according to Domino's, and the blend of pork with garlic, fennel, paprika, and chili powder in the sausage is a nice compliment to pretty much anything else typically put on pizza. The three types of veggies on top balance the pizza out to keep it from becoming too one sided like the MeatZZa or any of the veggie-only specialty options. All in all, the Deluxe is a prime order for someone looking for a pizza that lacks any extreme ingredients and is right down the middle in terms of flavor due to an equilibrium of meat and veggies. Few things will make a certain subset of pizza lovers more mad than declaring allegiance to the Hawaiian pizza (which was actually invented in Canada by a Greek immigrant, but that's a different story). Truthfully, the style doesn't get enough respect when it included the Honolulu Hawaiian as one of the original American Legends specialty pizzas, though. The chain adds in a couple more ingredients that may even convert some devout Hawaiian pizza lovers: sliced ham, smoked bacon, pineapple, fresh green peppers, and a mix of mozzarella and provolone cheeses define the Honolulu Hawaiian has plenty of with the one-two punch of ham and bacon). Island resort luaus aren't the only places you'll see capitalize on combining sweet pineapple and savory pork. Al pastor tacos — arguably one of the best types of taco — also mix the two. Putting the combo on pizza to bring them together with crust and sauce is a logical, and flavorful, move. Order the Honolulu Hawaiian pizza from Domino's if you are already a Hawaiian pizza fan, but also give it a try if you're not. You have to appreciate Domino's dedication to specialty pizzas that include chicken. According to the company, non-traditional toppings like chicken started in California in the 1980s as "California Pizza." Domino's isn't trying to pull the wool over anyone's eyes and knows that these types of toppings are "derided by some pizza purists," but you shouldn't deprive your taste buds of new flavor combinations solely in the name of tradition. Enter the Memphis BBQ Chicken pizza. Throwing in a Memphis spin takes the California-inspired addition of chicken up a notch.
Memphis is famous for its barbecue made with a tangy tomato-based vinegar sauce that's all about balance. Domino's does a fine mass market take of Memphis barbecue that works on pizza. The grilled chicken and onions are enough of a topping option when you factor in the sauce and the mix of mozzarella, provolone, and cheddar cheeses.
Domino's positions the pizza as "summer in a box" that can "beat back winter blues when you're longing for the carefree living of warmer months." But why restrict yourself? This pizza is a good go-to any time of year that you're in the mood for barbecue flavors and pizza. If you haven't noticed by now, Domino's has a habit of replacing the sauce first and foremost when it designs a specialty pizza. Sauce variance does indeed alter the look, feel, and taste, so the move makes sense. The Buffalo Chicken specialty pizza falls into that category of saucy, but not traditionally saucy. This pie, as the name suggests, uses Buffalo sauce, which has a vinegar acidity and lightly spicy flavor reminiscent of Buffalo, New York's most famous food. Doubling down on that association, of course, is the addition of chicken. This is far from just a novelty pizza for people who appreciate chain restaurant wings. Buffalo wings became an immensely popular bar food across the country because the blend of hot sauce and butter in the sauce is hard to hate. The same is true for the Buffalo Chicken pizza from Domino's. The bread and cheese add another factor, making the experience akin to ordering a side of mozzarella sticks (or, to match the cheese used for this pizza, provolone sticks) along with your Buffalo wings and eating both as one. Tomato sauce is lovely, but white pies exist for a reason: They're good. As far as meatless pizzas go, it's hard to beat the Domino's Spinach & Feta pizza. Creamy Alfredo sauce replaces a red sauce, and spinach for the sweetness), onions, and a mix of feta, Parmesan, Asiago, and provolone cheeses round the pie out. It can feel just about as filling as a meat-topped pizza as well thanks to loads of cheese and the creamy sauce. Spinach may have had a starring role as Popeye's favorite muscle-boosting food, but here it's main job is to balance out the rich dairy. Cream, cheese, and bread is a winning combination, but it can get tiresome after too many bites. The spinach (combined with the different textures and flavors of the various cheeses) keeps the Spinach & Feta specialty pizza interesting for however many pieces you choose to eat. And while this won't win any healthy awards (even the thin crust has 240 calories per piece), it will keep the carnivore-minded satisfied when they're ordering and eating pizza in a crowd of vegetarians. This is a solid everything-but-the-kitchen-sink type of pizza designed for those who really just can't decide what to order. Sure, it won't blow you away by featuring a carefully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done and get the job done and get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors, but it will get the job done are fully selected mix of complementary flavors. onions, green peppers, mushrooms, black olives, and extra mozzarella. Classically inspired? Maybe not. Filling and obliging to those who love pretty much everything on their pizzas? Definitely. The ExtravaganZZa pizza is for when you're with an indecisive crowd where the only set opinion is nothing boring. There's a lot there to pick out for the picky eaters, but it's almost always better to start with more and narrow down than to start with more and brings the ExtravaganZZa to the top of the specialty options. American multinational pizza restaurant chain This article is about the restaurant

The corporation is Delaware-domiciled[4] and headquartered at the Domino's Farms office park in Ann Arbor Township, near Ann Arbor, Michigan.[5][6] As of 2018, Domino's had approximately 15,000 stores, with 5,649 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,249 in the United States, 1,500 in India, and 1,500 in Indi an existing location of a small pizza restaurant chain that had been owned by Dominick DeVarti, at 507 Cross Street (now 301 West Cross Street)[11] in Ypsilanti, Michigan,[12] near Eastern Michigan University.[13] The deal was secured by a $500 down payment, after which the brothers borrowed $900 to pay for the store. The brothers planned to three locations in the same county. Monaghan wanted the stores to share the same branding, but the original owner forbade him from using the Domino's".[11] Monaghan immediately loved the idea and officially renamed the business to Domino's Pizza, Inc. in 1965. [14] The company logo originally had three dots, representing the three stores in 1965. Monaghan planned to add a new dot with the addition of every new store, but this idea guickly faded, as Domino's Pizza opened its first franchise location in 1967 and by 1978, the company had expanded to 200 stores.[15] In 1975, Domino's faced a lawsuit by Amstar Corporation, the maker of Domino Sugar, alleging trademark infringement and unfair competition. On May 2, 1980, the Fifth Circuit Court of Appeals in New Orleans found in favor of Domino's Pizza.[16] During the lawsuit, Domino's opened fifteen new stores under the name Pizza Dispatch, while also converting other stores to the name.[17] The former logo used until 2015. In 1998, after 38 years of ownership, Monaghan announced his retirement, sold 93 percent of the company to Bain Capital, Inc. for about $1 billion, and ceased being involved in day-to-day operations of the company, [18] A year later, the company named Dave Brandon as its CEO. Associated Architects, the inheritors of Frank Lloyd Wright's practice, to erect a structure based on an un-built tower that Wright designed in 1956 for Chicago called the Golden Beacon. Sometime during the planning of the tower, Monaghan and the Taliesin architects parted company, allegedly because both parties felt the project may have not served justice to the spirit of Wright's architecture. [21] Monaghan then went to Gunnar Birkerts, the architect of Domino's unusual half-mile (800 m) long headquarters office building who came up with a design for a tower that would rise at a 15-degree angle with a swooping top reminiscent of the forms of Wright's late work. Birkerts' design, no doubt, had serious intent, but would immediately and forever be dubbed with the nickname "The Leaning Tower of Pizza" after Italy's Leaning Tower of Pizza headquarters in Ann Arbor Charter Township, Michigan, outside of Ann Arbor.[21]

the Dominican Republic and the first one to open in Haiti, under the direction of entrepreneur Luis de Jesús Rodríguez.[23] By 1995, Domino's opened its 1,500th international location, opening seven stores in one day across five continents.[24] By 2014, the company had grown to 6,000 international locations and was planning to expand to pizza's birthplace, Italy; this was achieved on October 5, 2015, in Milan, with their first Italian location. CEO Patrick Doyle, in May 2014, said the company would concentrate on its delivery model there. [25] After having faced tough competition from local restaurants and falling behind on its debt obligations, Domino's exited the country in 2022.[26] In 1995, Domino's Pizza entered China through the Pizza Vest Fast Food Group, which also owned the rights to operate Domino's opened its 1,000th store in India.[27] Outside the United States, India has

In December 2006, Taiwan's Jinghua Hotel Group invested NT$500 million to acquire the rights for Domino's Pizza in Taiwan and Beijing. In 2017, Dash Brands Ltd., a foreign investment company specializing in restaurant chains, obtained the exclusive rights for Hong Kong and Macau. In China over 90% of orders are placed online. Orders can be made in the stores and on the company website, via app, and through the messaging app WeChat.

Domino's Pizza). At the same time, Domino's introduced a new logo that removed the blue rectangle and text under the domino to be blue on the side with one dot.[38][39] This was done because the company wanted to "expand" menu choices rather than simply rely on its traditional pizza. In April 2022, Domino's Italy franchise operator EPizza SpA filed for bankruptcy at a Milan court after two years of declining sales caused by the COVID-19 lockdowns in Italy. In addition, Domino's Pizza faced competition from local pizza chains and restaurants, which had begun using food delivery app services such as Glovo, Just Eat and Deliveroo. The reason for the failure, however, is mainly due to the fact that the customer rating of Domino's outlets is very low in Italy, which explains the difficulty of competing with the high quality of Italian pizzas. After the 90-day grace period expired in July 2022, Domino's closed all its Italian stores on 20 July.[40][41][42][43]
On December 12, 2024, Domino's announced that it would transfer its stock to the Nasdaq Global Select Market which took effect on January 2, 2025 at the stock market open. The company retained the ticker symbol "DPZ".[44] Domino's has announced on February 7, 2025, that it plans to close over 200 stores worldwide, 172 of them just in Japan where Domino's Pizza Japan operates 1000 stores. The decision comes after CEO and Managing Director Mark van Dyck took the reigns of the company. The reason given for the closures, is low sales in the selected stores. Of all the markets that include the brand, Australia - New Zealand was the only market to report positive growth. [45] With the closures, Domino's expects to reduce costs by approximately 9.8 million dollars.[46] Domino's menu varies by region. The current Domino's menu varies by region and current Domino's pizzas available in a variety of crust styles and toppings. In 2011, Domino's launched artisan-style pizzas. Additional entrees include pasta, bread bowls, and oven-baked sandwiches. The menu at Domino's Pizza was kept simple relative to other fast food restaurants, to ensure efficiency of delivery.[48] Historically, Domino's menu consisted solely of one style of pizza crust in two sizes (12-inch and 16-inch), eleven toppings, and Coca-Cola as the only soft drink option.[49] Domino's Pizza in Tel Aviv, Israel A "make line" at a Domino's Pizza The first menu expansion occurred in 1989, with the debut of Domino's deep dish. Its introduction followed market research showing that 40% of pizza customers preferred thick crusts. The new product launch cost approximately $25 million, of which $15 million was spent on new sheet metal pans with perforated bottoms.[50] Domino's started testing extra-large-size pizzas in early 1993, starting with the 30-slice, yard-long "The Dominator".[51] Domino's tapped into a market trend toward bite-size foods with spicy "Buffalo Chicken Kickers", as an alternative to Buffalo wings, in August 2002. The breaded, baked, white-meat fillets, similar to chicken fingers, are packaged in a custom-designed box with two types of sauce to "heat up" and "cool down" the chicken.[52] In August 2003, Domino's announced its first new pizza since January 2000, the "Philly Cheese Steak Pizza". The product launch also marked the beginning of a partnership with the National Cattlemen's Beef Association, whose beef Check-Off logo appeared in related advertising.[53] Domino's continued its move toward specialty pizzas in 2006, with the introduction of its "Brooklyn Style Pizza", featuring a thinner crust, cornmeal baked in to add crispness, and larger slices that could be folded in the style of traditional New York-style pizza.[54] In 2008, Domino's once again branched out into non-pizza fare, offering oven-baked sandwiches in four styles, intended to compete with Subway's toasted submarine sandwiches made varied references to its competition, such as offering free sandwiches to customers named "Jared", a reference to Subway's spokesman of the same name. [55] The company introduced its "American Legends" line of specialty pizzas in 2009, featuring 40% more cheese than the company's regular pizzas, along with a greater variety of toppings.[56] That same year, Domino's began selling its "BreadBowl Pasta" entree, a lightly seasoned bread bowl baked with pasta inside, and the "Lava Crunch Cake" dessert, a crunchy chocolate shell filled with warm fudge.[57] Domino's promoted the dessert by flying in 1,000 cakes to deliver at Hoffstadt Bluffs Visitor Center near Mount St. Helens in Washington state. [58] In 2010, shortly after the company's 50th anniversary, Domino's changed its pizza recipe "from the crust up", making significant changes in the dough, sauce, and cheese used in their pizzas. [59] Their advertising campaign admitted to earlier problems with the public perception of Domino's product due to taste issues. [60] [61] In September 2012, Domino's announced it was introduced 23 years prior was discontinued in favor of the new pan pizza. In December 2013, Domino's Pizza in Israel unveiled its first vegan pizza, which uses a soy-based cheese substitute [63][64] supplied by the UK company VBites. Latin America, the first franchise was opened in 1988 in Colombia. [78] During the next years, Domino's Pizza started operations in Mexico, Guatemala (1993), Ecuador and Peru (1995). However, due to problems in administration and after several cases of unhealthiness, the Domino's Peruvian franchise closed in 2015,[79] and reopened one year later with new owners. [80] The master franchises for India, Nepal, and Sri Lanka are currently owned by the Indian company Jubilant FoodWorks. India is the largest international market for Domino's outside its home market, being the only country to have over 1,000 Domino's outlets. [7]
With the first store opening in Delhi in 1996, the company operates 1,362 stores across 264 Indian cities as of 2018.[7][8][81] In Bangladesh, the franchises for Domino's Pizza Bangladesh Limited'. In this entity, Jubilant FoodWorks is the majority shareholder

After the sale, it changed its name to Domuno Pizza.[88] As of November 2022, Domino's Pizza opened in Montevideo, Uruguay, being the franchise's first location in the Southern Cone, and announcing the plan of opening 20 stores in this city in the next five years. [89][90][91] In Central Asia, Domino's Pizza opened its first franchise in May 2024 in Tashkent (Uzbekistan). There are currently 6,157 total Domino's units in the US and of those 5,815 of those are franchised units. In 2018, the Average Weekly Unit Sales (AWUS) for franchised units was $22,045, showing a consistent increase over the past five years. Per year, this amounts to an average of over a million dollars in sales. Domino's EBITDA was 15.0% for stores making more than $25,000. The vast majority of stores fell under this category, over 1,500 units. According to Domino's 2019 income statement, their net income was just over $400,000. The initial franchise fee for a Domino's franchise is $10,000, the royalty fee is 5.5% of the store's weekly sales, and the advertising payment is 4% of the store's weekly sales. the 30-minute guarantee In late 1986, Domino's was well known for its advertisements featuring a slapstick character called the Noid, created by Group 243 Inc. who hired Will Vinton Studios to produce the television commercials that featured the character was designed to be the personification of any and all possible unsatisfactory experiences when having pizza delivered; as such, the catchphrase associated with the commercials was "Avoid the Noid". The ad campaign gained notoriety, however, in 1989, when a man named Kenneth Lamar Noid, believing the mascot to be an imitation of him, held two Domino's employees hostage in Chamblee, Georgia.[93] The employees escaped while Noid ate a pizza he had ordered.[94] Noid was eventually diagnosed with paranoid schizophrenia and acquitted due to insanity, and later committed suicide in 1995.[95][96] Contrary to popular belief, Domino's has stated that the retirement of the Noid was eventually diagnosed with paranoid schizophrenia and acquitted due to insanity, and later committed suicide in 1995.[95][96] Contrary to popular belief, Domino's has stated that the retirement of the Noid was eventually diagnosed with paranoid schizophrenia and acquitted due to insanity, and later committed suicide in 1995.[95][96] Contrary to popular belief, Domino's has stated that the retirement of the Noid was eventually diagnosed with paranoid schizophrenia and acquitted due to insanity, and later committed suicide in 1995.[95][96] Contrary to popular belief, Domino's has stated that the retirement of the Noid was briefly brought and acquitted due to insanity.
back for a week in 2011 in an arcade-style game on the Domino's Facebook page. The person with the top score received a coupon for a free pizza. [97] Due to a glitch on the Domino's website, the company gave away nearly 11,000 free medium pizzas in March 2009. The company had planned the campaign for December 2008 but scrapped the idea and never promoted it. The redemption code to receive the pizzas was never deactivated, however, and resulted in the free giveaway of the pizzas across the United States after someone discovered the promotion on the website by typing in the word "bailout" as the redemption code and then shared it with others on the Internet. Domino's deactivated the code on the morning of March 31, 2009, and promised to reimburse store owners for the pizzas.[98] Arie Luyendyk's Lola-Chevrolet, which was driven by Arie Luyendyk and won the 1990 Indianapolis 500. In 2003, Domino's teamed up with NASCAR for a multi-year partnership to become the "Official Pizza of NASCAR".[99] Domino's also sponsored Michael Waltrip Racing and driver David Reutimann during the 2007 season in the NASCAR Sprint Cup Series. In June 2018, Domino's announced that it had started a project to pave over cracks and potholes on roads in the United States called "Paving for Pizza" to prevent their pizzas from being ruined, giving cities and towns, including Burbank, California; Bartonville, Texas; Athens, Georgia; and Milford, Delaware, to pave their roads.[100] The paved sections feature the Domino's logo along with the slogan "OH YES, WE DID".[101] Beginning in 1973, Domino's Pizza offered a guarantee to customers their pizza would be delivered within 30 minutes of placing an order or they would receive the pizza free. This guarantee was changed to $3 off in 1987. In 1992, the company settled a lawsuit brought by the family of an Indiana woman who had been killed by a speeding Domino's delivery driver, paying the family $2.8 million. In another lawsuit in 1993, a woman who was injured when a Domino's delivery driver ran a red light and collided with her vehicle was awarded nearly $80 million by a jury, but accepted a payout of $15 million. [103] The half-hour guarantee was dropped that year because of the "public perception of reckless driving and irresponsibility", according to the earlier pledge, but stopping short of promising delivery in half an hour.[105][106][107] The company continues to honor the 30-minute guarantee for orders placed in its stores located in Colombia, Vietnam, Mexico, China, and India.[108] The 30-minute guarantee is subject to the terms and conditions applied in the respective country.[108] In 2001, Domino's launched a two-year national partnership with the Make-A-Wish Foundation of America. That same year, company stores in New York City and Washington, D.C., provided more than 12,000 pizzas to relief workers following the September 11 attacks on the World Trade Center and The Pentagon. Through a matching funds program, the corporation donated $350,000 to the American Red Cross' disaster relief effort. [24] In 2004, Domino's began a partnership with St. Jude Children's Research Hospital, participating in the hospital's "Thanks and Giving" campaign began in 2004, and raising $5.2 million in 2014.[109] In 2007, Domino's introduced its Veterans Delivering the Dream franchising program and also rolled out its online and mobile ordering sites.[15] In 2008, Domino's introduced the Pizza Tracker, an online application that allows customers to view the status of their order in a real time progress bar.[111] In a 2009 survey of consumer taste preferences among national chains by Brand Keys, Domino's was last—tied with Chuck E. Cheese. In December that year, Domino's announced plans to entirely reinvent its pizza's quality and chefs were shown developing a new pizza. [112][113] The new pizza was unveiled that same month. The following year, 2010 and Domino's 50th anniversary, the company hired J. Patrick Doyle as its new CEO and experienced a 14.3% quarterly gain.[114][115] In 2011, Domino's launched a billboard advertising in New York's Times Square which displayed real time comments from customers, including good, neutral and bad comments.[116] In 2015, Domino's unveiled a "pizza car" that can carry 80 pizzas, sides, two-liter bottles of soda, and dipping sauces.[117] It also has a 140 °F (60 °C) oven on board and is more fuel efficient than a standard delivery car. Officially named the Domino's DXP, the car is a Chevrolet Spark customized by Roush Performance. Once each car reaches 100,000 miles, it will be retired and returned to Roush, where it will be returned to stock form.[118] In 2016, Domino's cooperated with Starship Technologies and applied self-driving robots to deliver pizzas in specific German and Dutch cities.[119] In 2016, Domino's cooperated with Starship Technologies and applied self-driving robots to deliver pizzas in specific German and Dutch cities.[119] In 2016, Domino's cooperated with Starship Technologies and applied self-driving robots to deliver pizzas in specific German and Dutch cities.[119] In 2016, Domino's cooperated with Starship Technologies and applied self-driving robots to deliver pizzas in specific German and Dutch cities.[119] In 2016, Domino's cooperated with Starship Technologies and applied self-driving robots to deliver pizzas in specific German and Dutch cities.[119] In 2016, Domino's cooperated with Starship Technologies and applied self-driving robots to deliver pizzas in specific German and Dutch cities.[119] In 2016, Domino's cooperated with Starship Technologies and applied self-driving robots to deliver pizzas in specific German and Dutch cities.[119] In 2016, Domino's cooperated with Starship Technologies and applied self-driving robots to deliver pizzas in specific German and Dutch cities.[119] In 2016, Domino's cooperated with Starship Technologies and applied self-driving robots and a

at HM Dockyard, Portsmouth, in January 1909, she was the first British battleship to be built with superfiring guns. Shortly after her completion in 1911, she carried out trials of an experimental fire-control director and then became the flagship of the Home Fleet. Neptune became a private ship in early 1914 and was assigned to the 1st Battle Squadron. The ship became part of the Grand Fleet when it was formed shortly after the beginning of the First World War in August 1914. Aside from participating in the Battle of Jutland in May 1916, and the inconclusive action of 19 August several months later, her service during the war generally consisted of routine patrols and training in the North Sea. Neptune was deemed obsolete after the war and was reduced to reserve before being sold for scrap in 1922 and subsequently broken up. (Full article...) June 28 June 29 Archive By email List of days of the year About Myosotis scorpioides, the water forget-me-not, is a herbaceous perennial flowering plant in the borage family, Boraginaceae. It is native to Europe and Asia, but is widely distributed elsewhere, including much of North America, as an introduced species and sometimes a noxious weed. It is an erect to ascending plant of up to 70 cm, bearing small (8-12 mm) flowers that become blue when fully open and have yellow centers. It is usually found in damp or wet habitats, such as bogs, ponds, streams, ditches, fen and rivers. This focus-stacked photograph shows a water forget-me-not growing in Niitvälja bog, Estonia. For other uses, see Chairman of the Board (disambiguation). Agustín Vásquez Gómez, ambassador of the Republic of El Salvador, chairing the OPCW's Fourth Review Conference, November 2018 The chair, also chairman, chairwoman, or chairperson, is the presiding officer of an organized group such as a board, committee, or deliberative assembly. The person holding the office, who is typically elected or appointed by members of the group or organization, presides over meetings of the group, and is required to conduct the group's business in an orderly fashion.[1] In some organizations, the chair is also known as president (or other title).[2][3] In others, where a board appoints a president (or other title) are used for distinct positions. The term chairman may be used in a neutral manner, not directly implying the gender of the holder. In meetings or conferences chamber is sometimes called the speaker.[10][11] Chair has been used to refer to a seat or office of authority since the middle of the 17th century; its earliest citation for chairman.[12][13][14] Feminist critiques have analysed Chairman as a possible example of sexist language, associating the male gender with the exercise of authority, this has led to some use of the generic "Chairperson".[15] In World Schools Style debating, as of 2009, chair or chairman refers to the person who controls the debate; it recommends using Madame Chair or Mr. Chairman to address the chair.[16] The FranklinCovey Style Guide for Business and Technical Communication and the American Psychological Association style (2000) suggested that the gender-neutral forms were gaining ground; it advocated chair for both men and women.[19] The Daily Telegraph's style guide bans the use of chair and chairperson; the newspaper's position, as of 2018, is that "chairman is correct English".[20] The National Association of Parliamentarians adopted a resolution in 1975 discouraging the use of chairperson and rescinded it in 2017.[21][22] Ambassador Leena Al-Hadid of Jordan chairs a meeting of the International Atomic Energy Agency, 2018.[23] The word chair can refer to the place from which the holder of the office presides, whether on a chair, at a lectern, or elsewhere.[1] During meetings, the person presiding is said to be "in the chair" and is also referred to as "the chair".[1] Parliamentary procedure requires that members address the "chair" as "Mr. (or controlling any rowdy elements in the audience. The role was popularised on British TV in the 1960s and 1970s by Leonard Sachs, the chairman on the variety show The Good Old Days. [25] "Chairman" as a quasi-title gained particular resonance when socialist states from 1917 onwards shunned more traditional leadership labels and stressed the collective control of Soviets (councils or committees) by beginning to refer to executive figureheads as "Chairman of the X Committee". Lenin, for example, officially functioned as the head of Soviet Russian government not as prime minister or as president, but as "Chairman of the Council of People's Commissars".[26][27] At the same time, the head of the state was first called "Chairman of the Central Executive Communist China, Mao Zedong was commonly called "Chairman of the Presidium of the Presidium of the Chairman of the Chairman of the Communist China, Mao Zedong was commonly called "Chairman of the Chairman Commission. Sam Ervin (right), chairman of the United States Senate Watergate Committee, 1973 In addition to the administrative or executive duties in organizations, the chair presides over meetings include: Calling the meeting to order Determining if a quorum is present Announcing the items on the "order of business", or agenda, as they come up Recognition of members to have the floor Enforcing the rules of the group Putting questions (motions) to a vote, which is the usual way of resolving disagreements following discussion of the issues Adjourning the meeting While presiding, the chair should remain impartial and not interrupt a speaker if the speaker has the floor and is following the rules of the group. [29] In committees or small boards, the chair votes along with the other members; in assemblies or larger boards, the chair cannot vote twice and cannot override the decision of the group unless the organization has specifically given the chair such authority).[31] The powers of the chair vary widely across organizations. In others they only make recommendations to a board of directors, or may have no executive powers, in which case they are mainly a spokesperson for the organization. The power given depends upon the type of organization, its structure, and the rules it has created for itself. If the chair exceeds their authority, engages in misconduct, or fails to perform their duties, they may face disciplinary procedures. Such procedures may include censure, suspension, or removal from office. The rules of the organization would provide details on who can perform these disciplinary procedures. [32] Usually, whoever appointed or elected the chair has the power to disciplinary procedures the chair has the power to disciplinary procedures.
board frequently names an independent member of the board as a lead independent director.[33] This position of président-directeur général in France.[citation needed] Executive chair is an office separate from that of CEO, where the titleholder wields influence over company operations, such as Larry Ellison of Oracle Douglas Flint of HSBC and Steve Case of AOL Time Warner. In particular, the group chair of that institution, outranking the company in meetings with government figures. Before the creation of the group management board in 2006 HSBC's chair essentially held the duties of a chief executive at an equivalent institution, while HSBC's chief executive served as the deputy. After the 2006 reorganization, the management cadre ran the business. [34][35][36] Non-executive chair is also a separate post from the CEO; unlike an executive chair, a non-executive chair does not interfere in day-to-day company matters. Across the world, many companies have separated the roles of chair and CEO, saying that this move improves corporate governance. The non-executive chair's duties are typically limited to matters directly related to the board, such as:[37] Chairing the meetings of the board. Organizing and coordinating the board's activities, such as by setting its annual agenda. Reviewing and evaluating the performance of the ECO and the other board members. Christina Magnuson, as chairman,[38] presides over the 2016 annual meeting of the Friends of the Ulriksdal Palace Theater. Many companies in the US have an executive chair; this method of organization is sometimes called the British model. Expert opinion is rather evenly divided over which is the preferable model. [39] There is a growing push by public market investors for companies with an executive chair to have a lead independent director to provide some element of an independent perspective. [40][41] The role of the chair in a private equity-backed board differs from the role in non-profit or publicly listed organizations in several ways, including the pay, role and what makes an effective private-equity chair.[42] Companies with both an executive chair and a CEO include Ford,[43] HSBC,[44] Alphabet Inc.,[45] and HP.[46] A vice- or deputy chair, subordinate to the chair is being discussed.[47] In the absence of the chair and vice-chair, groups sometimes elect a chair pro tempore to fill the role for a single meeting. [48] In some organizations that have both titles, deputy chair title on its own usually has only an advisory role and not an operational one (such as Ted Turner at Time Warner).[50] An unrelated definition of vice- and deputy chairs describes an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than an executive who is higher ranking or has more seniority than a seniori pepperoni, and pineapple. It's all so good but the garlic Parmesan pizza is killer. Uber Eats' 2021 Cravings Report shows that pizza ranks fifth in the most ordered cuisine. But how should you order your pizzas for the best experience? Kevin Beirne shared his experience on the website Joe in his article, "29 Secrets I Learned Working for Domino's Pizza." Beirne provided a behind-the-scenes look at the pizza chain. For example, he mentioned that Roquito peppers are an underrated topping. One of his most surprising revelations, however, concerned the number of toppings on a pizza. In his article, Kevin Beirne explained that adding more than four toppings to your Domino's pizza results in getting smaller portions of each topping. This isn't necessarily a drawback. If you enjoy a variety of meats and vegetables on your pizza, it might seem like you're getting less value. However, this practice is intended to benefit the customer. Beirne further explained that limiting toppings helps maintain the pizza's structural integrity. When you overload a pizza with toppings, they'll slide off when you pick up a slice. You can also customize your pizza order at Domino's states that - and I'm inclined to agree - "the best pizza ever is the pizza you enjoy the most" there is one pizza that has everything you could possibly want...in a pizza. This honor belongs to Domino's ExtravaganZZa Pizza, a name with double capital ZZ's emphasizing just how lavish it really is. It's part of Domino's Specialty Pizzas, with nearly a third of every topping you can think of including Italian sausage, pepperoni, beef, ham, onions, mushrooms, green peppers, black olives, and extra cheese. It's essentially a meat lover's dream pizza with lots of veggies. According to Domino's, the Italian sausage is the ingredient that really elevates this pizza. Its taste evokes "Mom's spaghetti sauce and Grandma's meatloaf." Add it to a pizza, and it's like a comforting culinary embrace. Moreover, Domino's notes that Italian sausage ranks as America's second-favorite pizza topping. You can also order desserts and beverages at Domino's Best 34 Pizza and it's only available in Japan for now. The toppings are:

tomato sauce, white sauce, basil sauce, basil sauce, hokkaido gouda, cheese and cheddar cheese, green peppers, onions, spinach, pepperoni, rice cake, big pepperoni, pineapple, ham, potato slices, pork sausage, beef ribs, Italian sausage, corn, pancetta, teriyaki chicken, charcoal-grilled beef, roast chicken, shrimp, seafood mix, mushrooms, mayonnaise, bacon, cherry tomatoes, sliced asparagus, spicy cod roe mayonnaise sauce, Hokkaido camembert, jalapenos, Italian bocconcini and garlic. I wish this pizza would be offered here in the US but I doubt it as many of the ingredients are not widely available here. And yet we all can dream right? Just kidding. I personally prefer pizzas with 4 toppings or less anyway. 14 Domino's Pizza, a global leader in the pizza industry, is known for its quick delivery and wide variety of pizza stand out as some of the most popular and well-loved options. These pizzas are unique, combining creative toppings, flavorful sauces, and specially crafted crusts to provide a a meal — they want an experience. 1. The Backbone of Specialty Pizzas: The Crust Options One of the key factors that make Domino's specialty pizzas unique is the variety of crusts available. While some pizzas offer the classic hand-tossed crust, others feature crusts that add a special twist to the pizza experience. Domino's has invested time and resources into creating different crusts, each designed to complement the toppings and sauces of their specialty pizzas. Hand-Tossed Crust The Hand-Tossed Crust is the most traditional option offered by Domino's. It's known for being soft and slightly chewy with a crisp exterior. The dough is stretched by hand to create a naturally raised edge, offering a satisfying bite with every slice. For many customers, the Hand-Tossed Crust is the go-to option because of its balance of texture and flavor. Crunchy Thin Crust is much thinner and offers a crisp, cracker-like texture. It's an ideal base for those who want the toppings to shine and prefer less dough in their pizza experience. Gluten-Free Crust for customers with dietary restrictions. 80 percent of its items keep improving every now and then.Let's rank Domino's tastiest pizzas. Yeah, I know, taste buds are different from one person to another. However, this ranking is based on what most Domino's enthusiasts order.9. Cali Chicken Bacon Ranch We all love bacon - oh, except for our vegetarian brothers and sisters. Domino's Cali chicken bacon ranch stands out due to its white parmesan sauce. Other than ranch and bacon, the pizza is topped with grilled chicken breast, provolone to give the pizza a cheesy taste. The Cali bacon ranch pizza doesn't feature much of the Alfredo sauce, which might be a disappointment for some folks. Still, the pizza is an excellent option if you're hosting a party consisting of bacon and chicken lovers. To enjoy the pizza, I'd recommend ordering extra or double sauce (there's a difference). But note the time. You're less likely to get your desired sauce during peak hours. 8. Domino's Spinach & Feta Pizza If you aren't into meat but still want something really, really tasty, Domino's Spinach and Feta pizza is a perfect choice. It has a creamy Alfredo sauce mixed with spinach, parmesan, onions, and a feta mix. The Asiago and parmesan cheese round up the pizza's ingredients. While the spinach's job is to balance the dairy in the pizza, it's the feta that dominates the taste. The feta adds a salty and tangy flavor to the pizza. If you're looking for a great alternative to a birthday cake, get the Domino's Spinach and feta pizza that good? Of course, YES. Give it a try and wait for some magic. 7. Chicken Taco! Taco! Taco! Taco! Everyone loves taco. And it even tastes better in a pizza. While the main ingredient is the grilled chicken, the Domino's chicken taco pizza also comes topped with diced tomatoes, onions, and a blend of three kinds of cheese - cheddar, provolone, and white American cheese. The moment you take a bite of the Chicken taco pizza, your body reacts in two ways. First is euphoria, where you're teleported to a zesty, spicy world. Secondly, your arteries clog immediately, and you feel the blood rushing through your body. The chicken taco pizza is so delicious that you won't even realize you're in your mouth as the pizza remains flavorful and tender. Despite the refreshing acidity of the fresh tomatoes, the chicken taco pizza from Domino's isn't spicy enough. This is a preferable option for those who don't like spicy pizza. However, if you are the spicy type, you can make the pizza spicier by dressing it with Cholula Hot Sauce. 6. Memphis BBQ Chicken Pizza If you love a crispy pizza with a tangy, peppery taste, then you better order Domino's Memphis BBQ chicken pizza. Inspired by Memphis's famous chicken barbecues, this pizza is made with flavorful tomato-based vinegar. This balances out with the Carolina-style sauces. Domino's Memphis BBQ chicken breast, cheese, mozzarella, BBQ chicken barbecues, this pizza is made with flavorful tomato-based vinegar. sauce, and fresh onions. The crust is made with cheddar and provolone cheese, making the pizza feel crunchy. Still, the Memphis BBQ Domino's pizza has a juicy feel to it, thanks to well-cooked chicken. You don't have to chew so much to swallow. cravings. As well, the pizza also has the right amount of saltiness to it. It's a great option if you're in the mood for a barbecue. 5. Pacific Veggie Pizza If you're looking for a vegetarian pizza, the Pacific Veggie is what you need. The toppings include tomato sauce (Domino's claims to use fresh tomatoes), onions, mushrooms, olives, feta, spinach, provolone cheese, mozzarella, and a sprinkle of roasted red peppers. If you think about it, this is like a salad on a pizza. The taste feels "pacific" since it has a salty kick to it, which is attributed to the cheese and olives. Additional flavors come from the onions, mozzarella, and roasted pepper. The ingredient-loaded slices are convincing even to meat lovers. It doesn't feel "bland," as most carnivorous-minded folks would put it. Instead, the pacific veggie pizza tastes delicious and is very healthy. It's a great addition if you're hosting a party. Despite its many ingredients, the pizza goes well if ordered as Brooklyn style, crunchy thin, or hand-tossed. 4. Domino's Cheeseburger Pizza Are you a burger lover? Do you love pizza? Wondering if you can have the two at once? Well, if you answered yes, go ahead and order Domino's cheeseburger pizza. This is one of Domino's cheeseburger pizza. The hamburger meat has been char-grilled, and you can smell its intense aroma the moment you open the box. I like that Domino's uses ground beef, which is not only burger-like but very tasty. The cheeseburger pizza is also made with a spicy ketchup mustard is Domino's creativity, boasting a fantastic combination of cheeseburger-like flavors. The toppings for Domino's cheeseburger include beef, diced tomatoes, fresh onions, shredded provolone, ketchup-mustard sauce, and cheddar cheese. Extravaganzza Feast Pizza For those who love Italian sausage, the Extravaganzza Feast pizza is the best option. This pizza is loaded with toppings, including olives, green paper, black pepperoni, onions, mozzarella, and mushrooms. The Extravaganzza pizza has the right amount of salt and feels resty with little bits of spiciness. You'll love its coating, which feels roast-ev. A slice of the pizza an addictive taste that will leave you craying for the next slice, and the next one!Domino's Extravaganzza Feast pizza is excellent for open-minded guys and girls. This is because the pizza is loaded with lots of toppings, which are well-blended together to give a savory pizza. And the quality? The quality? The quality? The quality? The quality is hard to beat!2. Buffalo Chicken Pizza Domino's added this specialty pizza on its menu to target lovers of Buffalo wings. And it's worked perfectly well. The Buffalo chicken pizza is one of Domino's most popular orders. Its popularity is attributed to the blend of butter do. Right away! You'll definitely love its sauce, which is not only enough for delicious dips, but the sauce has been combined with balanced sprinkles of spices. Better yet, the cheese and bread are an amazing addition to the pizza, thus giving it a spicy and sweet taste. The spicy taste of the Buffalo wings lingers in your mouth because of the perfect pairing of the provolone cheese and fresh onions. The latter is actually responsible for the pizza's crunchiness. When cooking the Buffalo chicken pizza, you get to enjoy a spicy yet sweet buffalo sauce, as well as relish zesty chicken wings. You get the best of both worlds. Fans love Domino's Buffalo chicken pizza because it's more like a full meal. Make sure to order with the extra sauce. 1. The Philly Steak Pizza This is one of Domino's most requested pizza specialties. The Philly Steak Pizza This is one of Domino's most requested pizza specialties.

shaved and have the perfect amount of salt. This helps improve the pizza's overall taste. You can also taste a good flavor of well-melted cheese. The veggies added to the pizza to be loaded with meat because there isn't much to go around. However, the little meat it has adds flavor to the pizza while giving it enough tenderness. Note that the Philly Steak Pizza by Domino's doesn't have sauce on it. Instead, the pizza is layered with American cheese with green pepper on top and finally topped off with provolone cheese. Domino's uses provolone cheese on the steak because it provides a more pungent flavor than mozzarella. I recommend getting the Philly pizza without green onions and mushrooms for a better, more delicious taste. The pizza tastes better with basic ingredients. But then again, that's just my solo preference. Verdict While the tastiest Domino's pizza differs from one pizza lover to another, most folks vouch for Buffalo Chicken Pizza and the Philly Steak Pizza. The Domino's Cheeseburger Pizza is also gaining some ground as a fan favorite. It's still a new addition to Domino's Menu. The Extravaganza also comes very close, with its zesty, spicy taste. The same can be said of Memphis BBQ, which has a cult following. As for vegetarians, Domino's Pacific Veggie Pizza is the best option; however, the spinach and feta pizza gives it a run for its money. Basically, I'd recommend trying the aforementioned best Domino's pizzas. That way, you'll be able to settle on a specific pizza specialty to satisfy your taste buds! Barbara is an enthusiastic food-exploring person that goes through different culinary experiences. She got inspired by creating a pizza blog post after she tasted one of the best-selling pizzas in Toledo. Most people when they go to order a pizza stick with the basics. Cheese, pepperoni, or maybe a pizza with just one Veggie topping. It's simple, quick, and something that you know everyone will enjoy. But sometimes you want to step out of that comfort zone. You could carefully craft the perfect list of toppings that mesh well together or you can just pick from the assortment of specialty Pizza, ranked. 12. Spinach & FetaToppings: Onions, Shredded Provolone Cheese, Spinach, Feta Cheese, Shredded Parmesan Asiago Alfredo SauceSpinach & Feta is a decent combo on a pizza and the Alfredo Sauce is also a nice touch. It is lower on the list because it is objectively lower for most people. However, spinach is a topping that I enjoy on pizza. Feta cheese can be a hit or miss but the combo on this pizza with the specialty sauce it is not a terrible option.11. Ultimate

Extravagan ZZaToppings: Extra Cheese, Pepperoni, Italian Sausage, Ham, Onions, Green Peppers, Mushrooms, Beef, Black Olives Loads of meats and veggies really fit into the name of this specialty pizza. The combo is great but can also be a but overwhelming. Which is why it is behind its similar pizza in the Deluxe. I believe that there are just too many flavors going on here for it to be higher.9. DeluxeToppings: Pepperoni, Italian Sausage, Onions, Mushrooms, Green peppers are up there with my favorite pizza topping. This is a staple at any pizza place you go to but with the Domino's crust, it works so well. It is an option that people always go for because it puts together so many things that work well on a pizza. It is definitely worthy of being among the best pizza options at Domino's. I personally never tried it until I was in High School, and it did not disappoint. Chicken and bacon also go well together and getting the ranch as well has a perfect flavor profile. This is one that you should definitely not shy away from. 7. Pacific Veggie Toppings: Onions, Diced Tomatoes, Black Olives, Mushrooms, Shredded Provolone Cheese, Spinach, Roasted Red Peppers, Feta CheeseWhile I may not be a strict veggie man for my pizza I do understand the want for it. I personally think that veggies with some meat are the best combo of pizza toppings. So you may be asking why I have this so high on my list. Well, I do think that there is a different feeling of just having veggies, a sense of freshness that you only get from authentic Italian pizza. Shredded Provolone Cheese, Cheddar Cheese Blend, Feta Cheese be multiple different types and combine a great group of flavors? Well, that's what #6 on my list does. I agree that it is very simple and some might think it's too high, but I do love a classic cheese pizza. And this one adds just enough of a variable that I enjoy it a lot.5. multiple cultures add their own twist. I mean Sweden puts bananas on pizza... But I have tried pineapple on pizza and if done right it is a decent combo of sweet and savory. Which is exactly what a Hawaiian pizza does perfectly. Read More: The Top 10 McDonald's Sandwiches in 2023, Ranked4. MeatZZaToppings: Extra Cheese, Ham, Beef, Pepperoni, Italian SausageI said earlier that I am a meat lover on pizza and well that shows with this spot on the list for sure. The key on this one is the Beef, which to me is the best meat topping to get at any pizza place. The combination of all of this is perfect, I can see why for some it becomes a lot but I just say bring on some meat sweats.3. Buffalo ChickenToppings: Premium Chicken, Hot Buffalo Sauce, Onions, Shredded Provolone Cheese, Cheddar Cheese Blend, American Cheese So, personally, I am not a fan of Buffalo Sauce, it is a flavor I have tried over and over again and it has just never worked out for me. However, on a pizza it does work well, maybe the crust mutes the flavor of it or it was just the right amount. I was pleasantly surprised by this set of toppings. Amount. I was pleasantly surprised by this set of toppings. Honey BBO Sauce, Premium Chicken, Onions, Shredded Provolone Cheese, Cheddar Cheese BlendNow this is my favorite, BBO sauce and chicken are one of the iconic combos. So, seeing that there was a Domino's specialty pizza that had it, I knew it would be at the top of my list. BBQ sauce on pizza has always been underrated in my opinion. With the right toppings and a good crust, it works so well together. A subtle touch is the added onions as well, a great complimentary topping. 1. Philly Cheese SteakToppings: Philly Steak, Onions, Mushrooms, Shredded Provolone Cheese, Green Peppers, American CheeseThe best Domino's specialty pizza and, honestly, the one I was most excited about while doing my research. Philly Cheese Steak is one of my absolute favorites. I know it's greasy as can be but that's what makes it so good. Adding that to a pizza is perfect, I will admit it's not like the sandwich itself but it is such a classic combination of toppings that it works well onto any style of food.
