Working with detail-oriented signs, like Virgos or Capricorns, can help Libras actually manifest their dreams into reality, especially in the workspace. But don't call out Librans for daydreaming—their imagination is one of their biggest assets, and they take a big-picture approach in making that life look and feel the best it can be. They spend a lot of time figuring out what's missing from that big picture, and they may feel unhappy if they become too focused on one thing, whether it's work, a partner, or a family member. Librans are at their best when they balance their schedule to include plenty of time for self-care rituals and personal pursuits, and when they give themselves enough flexibility to change focus. When Libra falls in love, he or she falls hard, but this sign also recognizes that there's room for more than one grand love in his or her life. The Scales are pragmatic about love, realizing that different relationships often have different seasons. Librans can sometimes be accused of being too pragmatic, and they've been known to call off a relationship pre-emptively if they feel it may not work due to distance, age difference, or another external conflict. Although Libra appears self-confident to outsiders, he or she might struggle with insecurity, especially as it relates to personal identity, which sometimes feels mutable. This sign's lifelong question is: "Who am I?" They may find their identity shifting based on where they are in their identity, social Libras need to get comfortable spending time with themselves and getting to know their gut and their internal voice. Libra is fiercely attracted to intelligence, which is just as important as appearance when it comes to the partners they end up falling for. This sign is all about cerebral connections—role-playing, dirty talk, and games in the bedroom all serve to amp up their interest. Physical connection is nice, but a sexy Snap can truly crank up a Libra's libido. Libra's Love Style Libra adores flirting, loves the drama and pageantry of romance, and is one of the few signs of the Zodiac that actually enjoys first dates. While Libras excel at charming potential partners, they have difficulty figuring out what they want, and all too often can get lost in the twists and turns of a relationship.... For this sign, compromise is key. Librans don't do well when anyone in their orbit isn't happy, and they're especially adept at inviting other signs to see things from a different perspective. A Libra doesn't strong arm or use coercion, but rather relies on his or her communication prowess to help everyone see another side to a story. Libra's Greatest Challenges Libra is great at making everyone happy—but what good is that if Libras themselves don't feel fulfilled? While the Scales have a fine-tuned internal compass, they sometimes ignore what they want in favor of what makes everyone else happy—and this habit ends up backfiring in the long run. Libra's Secret Weapon This sign has weaponized their imagination is unmatched, and they can always come up with a new way of looking at an issue. Libra is also blessed with boundless creativity. Pisces are natural healers who use their intuitive gifts to share compassion and understanding. They have strong imaginations and can be prone to fantasies and escapism. They can also be self-sabotaging and tend martyrdom. Yet Pisces are most compatible with other water signs like Cancer and Scorpio.Pisces people are also an ideal match for earth signs like Taurus, Virgo, and Capricorn. They are easily influenced and can be encouraging to others. The constellation known as Pisces has been associated with many divine figures in history, such as Poseidon/Neptune, Christ, Vishnu, and the Sumerian goddess Inanna. Pisces is the Latin word for "fish," and in Greek mythology, this constellation represents the koi fish that saved Aphrodite and her son Eros from the sea monster Typhon. As a reward, the two fishes were placed in the heavens to shine for all of eternity. Venus, the Roman version of Aphrodite, is said to have an exalted position in Pisces, an affinity that echoes back to her gratitude for the fishes' hospitality and help. Pisces season in the western tropical zodiac begins on February 19, commencing the final phase of Winter is beginning to yield to the oncoming warmth of Spring, and the days are continuing to increase in light. The underlying seasonal sense that growth and renewal are soon returning to the world is mirrored in the reflective and inwardly creative imaginings of the Piscean archetype. Mutable ModePisces is the fourth and final of the mutable signs in the zodiac wheel, who all hold an energy of change, liminality, and adaptation at the end of one season, and the beginning of the next. Pisces begins the last phase of winter, when the cold season is less established, lending to the fluid and changeable sign qualities of Pisces. Water Element is water, the second heaviest element, thought by ancient astrologers to be the fluid, adaptive, yet a tangible form of matter. Water represents the moistening and cohering principle that binds and connects all forms of nature. Without it, nothing that takes a material form could "stick" together. Water fertilizes earth so that nature and creativity can incubate and bloom. the connectivity of the water element. In classical astrology, Jupiter is the planetary ruler of both Sagittarius and Pisces. Supiter has a full affinity with the imaginative and spiritual tendencies of this sign, but because it is in its nocturnal home, these themes take on a more interior and meditative expression. This placement presents a more thoughtful, reflective, and gentle version of Jupiter's bold planetary energy. Pisces is potentially the archetype of a more private and mysterious seeker than the ebullient, outgoing Sagittarius. Those born with Jupiter in the sign of the Two Fishes tend to have a strong belief in the unseen forces of the universe and are often mystic seekers and teachers. Detriment of MercuryPisces is in polarity with the mutable earth sign Virgo. Ruled by Jupiter, Pisces likes to seek, expand, and dissolve boundaries, where Virgo, ruled by Mercury, likes to organize the material world, focus on fine details, and seek perfection. When in the opposite sign of its preferred home, Mercury is said to be in detriment, or at a sort of disadvantage in Pisces. Imagine the planet of clear communication and information having to live in Jupiter's boundless, philosophical world. tangents, and would find it difficult to communicate and translate its ideas. The result is Mercury having to compensate and translate big Jupiterian philosophical ideas into day-to-day conversations. This could also mean that those born with this placement may struggle with focusing on the day-to-day and may often daydream or lose track of time. They may have to work harder on creating intellectual structure and getting to the point. And while this planet-sign combination could present challenges and ways that these natives need to learn at their own pace, it could produce poets and songwriters as well. Exaltation of Venus Since Venus is exalted in the opposite sign Pisces, she is said to be in her fall in Virgo. While not in her domicile, Venus is still very powerfully placed in Pisces as an esteemed guest of honor. In Jupiter's nocturnal sign, she has access to unique resources that help her deliver some of her most positive gifts and expressions. Venus' powers of love, attraction, beauty, and art blend well with Jupiter's spiritual and affirming energies, giving natives with this placement may also have strong creative talents, taking their art to transcendent, inspiring levels. Modern Ruler: Neptune's discovery are as transcendent and mysterious as this planet's significations. Inspired by disturbances in Uranus' orbit, Neptune's founders followed theoretical calculations, and a sort of scientific "faith" in its existence. It turns out it had been observed for centuries before but was mistaken for a blue fixed star. The affirmation of Neptune's existence seems to have unfolded when the world's perceptions and inventions caught up with a dawning reality of how expansive our universe truly is. The illusory states that Neptune is connected to the way it casts an illusion on astronomers until they understood what they were seeing. The awe-inspiring and innovative themes surrounding Neptune's discovery lend themselves to how Neptune earned its significations and connection as a modern sub-ruler to imaginative Pisces. In the modern astrology system of the Twelfth Letter Alphabet, each zodiac sign rules one of the twelve houses in the birth chart. This innovation was created by psychological astrologers to match sign affinities to related house of isolation, confinement, and retreat since Pisces is ruled by hopeful Jupiter and transcendent Neptune, this system invites these philosophical and spiritual planetary sub-signatures to the twelfth house. The Eleventh House of "good spirit" in the birth chart. This house, associated with friends, alliances, hopes, and gifts is a natural, affirming, and happy place for Jupiter to be in. Since Jupiter likes to expand and affirm belief and faith, this house speaks to the opportunities that are available to us when we feel we belong to a loving community. With a connection to the Piscean planetary ruler, these communities could be social, but also spiritual providing encouragement, validation, and support. The eleventh house is associated with alliances we form, and gifts we receive in our public or social roles, perhaps as an extension of our career activities. Pisces' personality traits are derived from its receptive, feminine, or yin qualities, making this sign oriented toward contemplation and engagement with inner awareness. Alive in both a Pisces woman or Pisces man, those born with the Fishes as their rising, sun, or moon sign have a mystical, intuitive, and transcendental dynamic in the core of their personality, an echo of the seasonal awakening in late winter. As a mutable sign, Pisces holds adaptive, fluid, and shape-shifting qualities. Those with the sign of the Two Fishes prominent in their charts are sensitive seekers who have the potential to bring a soulful, healing energy to their relationships and communities. Strengths Can be found in their tender, sympathetic, and receptive natures. Naturally compassionate and empathic, Pisces are wired to offer spiritual and artistic gifts to the world. These are the poets, musicians, painters, and intuitive counselors in our communities. With Jupiter's influence on the faith, belief, and sense of higher purpose, Pisceans can be counted on to offer help and healing support to anyone who is in need. These natives tend to drift through life on their schedule and follow an inner sense that life is unfolding as it should. Idealistic and imaginative, those born under the Two Fishes' sign have an otherworldly quality to them and seem to retain a sense of innocence and wonder their whole lives. love, Pisceans do so completely and will give much of themselves to their friends and partners to selflessly nurture a connection. Piscean chart placements are often mystics, mediums, and psychics. While the rest of us may outgrow the playful reveries our childhood, there is a part of the Pisces personality that never becomes fully practical or attached to material possessions. They often retreat into a meditative solitude to recharge and contemplate, a practice that is especially important to these sensitive solitude to recharge and contemplate. surroundings or ideas, making it hard for them to get bored or stuck in a rut.As the twelfth and final sign of the zodiac, the Piscean archetype is that of the old soul who may be living its last incarnation before ascending to the heavens. Weaknesses in the Piscean archetype is that of the zodiac, the Piscean archetype is that of the old soul who may be living its last incarnation before ascending to the heavens. Weaknesses in the Piscean archetype is that of the zodiac, the Piscean archetype is that of the zodiac archetype is that of the zodiac archetype is the zodi from this sign are tender and sympathetic, they may take certain comments too much to heart and get easily wounded emotionally. Often creative and artistic, Pisceans may struggle with how to materialize their pursuits into a tangible, functional livelihood. Being naturally adaptive and changeable can be an asset, but it can also make it hard for these natives to follow through or stick with tedious details. Following their sense of time and often getting sidetracked, those born under the sign of the Two Fishes need to somehow find a way to be mindful and respectful of others, but they must to be discerning and discriminating. Selflessness and self-sacrifice are beautiful gifts that Pisceans offer, but this can lead them to be too needy, vulnerable, and codependent in love relationships. It may be a sad reality to accept, but these natives need to realize that others may take too much advantage if they cannot build their resilience, structure, and autonomy.When it comes to offering their gifts to the world, boundaries are of prime importance to preserve the Piscean's energy. Like all water signs, Pisces is vulnerable to absorbing toxic energies, so if they are offering healing or counseling work, they need to have cleansing practices.Breathing exercises, saunas, smudging, and protective aura visualizations are all ways these natives can maintain psychic health. Enjoying solitude as well as retreating from time to time to the earth practices for Pisces as well, however, this needs to be kept in balance, as there can be a danger in withdrawing for too long. These natives may begin to feel fearful of re-emerging and can get lost in escapism, self-medication, and avoidance. It will be important for Pisceans to seek support and counseling for themselves if they feel overwhelmed by the weight of the world's emotional needs. Piscean children will be well-nurtured if they are supported in their creative talents, and are encouraged to balance their sweet, giving natures with healthy boundaries. Play at times can be rough and tumble, so these young ones need guidance on how to let the insensitivity of others roll off their backs. The voice of empathy, idealism, and mysticism comes forward in the Pisces mantra: I believe. Those born under the sign of the Two Fishes find purpose in exploring the unknown, by being of service, and in unique creative expression. Operating in the mutable mode, Pisces adapt and share their communities, and channel their creative projects. With one foot in this world and one foot in the next, Pisces seeks to bridge the realm of the spiritual with everyday mundane realities. They are here to remind us that everything is sacred and that we all hold a spark of the divine within. We all have Pisces somewhere in our birth chart, so we can look to the house that the Two Fishes rule to find the specific area of our life we approach in an idealistic, intuitive way, or where we need to call in mystery and creativity to master. Pisces at WorkPisces' expansive, adaptive, and imaginative nature makes them uniquely suited for jobs where they can heal and support, or be creative and imaginative. This could take form in many professions and roles, but will likely not be found in jobs that are high paced, risky, or stressful. These natives may need to cultivate and imaginative. safe, private work environment, where they can connect, dream, and follow their intuition. Routine or structure don't come natural to Pisces natives, so they can borrow the skills of their opposite sign Virgo, to learn how to create a schedule and a sense of material order. That being said, Pisceans are still very productive if left to their own devices, as they are often following a big picture or plan that others don't yet perceive. Those born with the sign of the Two Fishes prominent in their powers of adaptation to create new professions for themselves that do not yet exist. The compassion and healing talents of Pisces, as well as the twelfth house connection to institutions, can lead these natives to roles as physicians and nurses in hospitals. And they may even also do work in rehab, assisting people with healing on a soul level from trauma and addiction. Pisceans are natural therapists and counselors and may be suited for psychiatry and psychology roles. In this field, these natives can use their receptive and listening skills to support growth and positive life strategies. With an interest in spirituality and faith, Pisces can be drawn to leadership roles in religious communities. Here, we may see them as chaplains or pastors at service, or in quiet retreat as monks or nuns. These natives may explore many facets of religious devotion, and are interested in the universal messages behind the various world belief systems. Mystic by nature, these natives are curious about the occult and may go outside of society's norms to practice spiritual devotion. They may have alternative belief systems or may work as psychics, mediums, or clairvoyants. Wellness professions of all kinds would be well suited to Pisces, and we may find these natives teaching yoga, nutrition, and meditation to their local communities. They may prefer seeing people on a one to one basis, where they can offer personalized care and practices that suit the unique needs of their clients. Pisceans may take to water-based professions like their fish archetype as sailors, divers, swimmers, and lifeguards. They may also enjoy roles in marine biology, or as oceanographers, with environmental protection in mind. Those with strong Two Fishes placements in their charts can be found in creative professions of all kinds. With the modern connection to illusory Neptune, many of these folks are working in the film industry, either in front of or behind the camera. Pisces are often natural musicians, poets, fantasy writers, and explore universal messages with their various mediums. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary alignments and aspects will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, Pisces natives and private Pisces may find the volatile and impulsive fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Fire signs have a directness and intensity that these gentle natives may find overwhelming. For example, being adjacent signs on the zodiac wheel, Aries and Pisces share little in common. In many ways, they are quite opposite, but not in a complimentary manner. Mars-ruled Aries is assertive and individualistic, where Jupiter-ruled Pisces is reflective and self-sacrificing. They might have lessons to teach each other, but they have very different ways of exploring these themes. Sagittarius likes to roam, where Pisces needs to retreat, so they may not agree on how to spend time together. Even more so, their signs form a square aspect to each other in the zodiac, which can hint at friction. Leo and Pisces also do not share anything modally or elementally in common. It's as if they have trouble "seeing" and understanding the other's different nature. Leo's self-centered passions may clash too much with Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. Leo may feel forgotten or neglected when Pisces' soulful and universal ideas of love. be fun and refreshing in Pisces' insular and private world, but ultimately these natives may find the air signs too talkative and frenetic to fully relax with. Gemini and Pisces form a square aspect to each other on the zodiac wheel, so their very different intervery dintervery different intervery dinterv every other way. Gemini is restless, talkative, and is endlessly fascinated by facts and information, while Pisces is reflective, slow to speak, and is focused on universal truths. They may find little common ground.Libra and Pisces have some similarities. Both tend to be peaceable and seek calm and balance in their lives. Libra is more outgoing, and Pisces is more private, so they may not share the same space very often. Libra also tries to keep the conversation light and on the surface, while Pisces are adjacent to each other on the zodiac wheel and share no common element, mode, or planetary ruler. Aquarius is dry and aloof, while Pisces is sensitive and sentimental, so they speak very different love languages. It may not be a satisfying match long term. Water SignsWater signs are a lovely match to Pisces sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. They speak a similar soul language and share a psychic, creative, and intuitive current between them that transcends words. Cancer with Pisces is a sweet, sensitive, and caring match. Both are interested in healing service work and will love sharing secluded privacy. They make a good team and agree on how to create a harmonious home and life. They understand and empathize with each other's deep moods, offering empathetic support to one another. Pisces and Scorpio share a love for the mystical and will likely explore spiritual and philosophical ideas to the relationship. This is a complementary pairing that is innately intuitive, creative, and otherworldly. They share a love for mystery and the inner workings of the mind and soul. Scorpio is the more daring of the two, inspiring Pisces out of its comfort zone. Pisces with Pisces potentially have the most affinity and understanding between them, however, they may be creative collaborators and explore spiritual practices together, but they will need to remember to make time for coming out of their meditative solitude and enjoy activities that keep them grounded.Earth signs Earth signs bring a complementary and elemental affinity to a relationship with Pisces since practical, structured earth and emotive water blend well; helping Pisces be more practical and grounded.Pisces and Capricorn are a good fit, with Capricorn offering patience and practicality to the Two Fishes dreamy world. Pisces reminds Capricorn of its mystical side, and Capricorn helps Pisces materialize its unique ideas. They are an inspiring, complementary pair, and have many beneficial resources to share. Pisces and Virgo are opposite signs in the zodiac wheel, which can create a complimentary or polarizing pair Virgo offers structure and attention to detail to Pisces' dreamy life, and Pisces helps Virgo to relax and just be. Each has a little something that the others' patience at times. Pisces with Taurus is a lovely, pleasure-seeking match. Both enjoy taking their time together and exploring the sensory indulgences the world has to offer. Taurus helps Pisces ground into their bodies and supports their emotional needs patiently. Pisces helps Taurus to stay in touch with life's mysteries and to not become too materialistic. In classical astrological medicine, four temperaments were connected to four vital fluids their emotional needs patiently. and four essential constitutions. Pisces is a water sign, and so is associated with the phlegmatic temperament, which was understood to be cold and moist. The phlegmatic temperament was thought to be connected to moisture and fats in the body and the production of phlegm, which lubricates tissues and protects these from infection. Phlegmatic however, can be the source of imbalance for the phlegmatic constitution, often overproduced when Pisces falls ill or become somewhat chilled and bogged down physically and emotionally. Natives from this sign can become too clingy and sentimental in their moods, and overly retentive of water and other fluids in their bodies. Their tissues can become boggy, lax, and clogged with toxic substances and emotions, building up too much and not being adequately cleaned out. Pisces' constitution has another layer that makes it unique, which comes from Jupiter's traditional rulership over this sign. Jupiter is thought to be a hot and moist planet, which may in some ways help heat the coolness in the Piscean constitution. It does, however, bring extra moisture to the body, which can present as a build-up of gasses and congestion. Piscean constitution. Piscean constitution is a build-up of gasses and congestinate build-up of gasses and congestinate build-up of gasses and c mucus-forming foods, and to support adequate sweating and elimination. Body PartsIn classical astrological medicine, the entire zodiac was mapped out on the human body, with Pisces ruling over the feet, and internally, the liver and lymphatic system. Their feet may be rather long, sensitive, and well-developed, with flexible finger-like toes. feet may be vulnerable to cold, joint pain, and disorders like arthritis and gout. The liver, being Jupiter's organ, is also in need of protection and care. Similar to Sagittarius, Piscean natives will benefit from bitter foods and herbs that stimulate the digestive bile and help the liver cleanse their blood of toxins and hormonal byproducts. The lymphatic system is also a key area for these natives to support, as excess toxins, mucus, and stagnant fluids can block this cleansing system from circulating freely. The principle of osmosis seems to be an active force for the Piscean body, as they tend to absorb chemical and emotional impurities from their environments. They can also be prone to catching colds and viruses, and to take on the depression and frustrations of those in their lives. Whole unprocessed foods, immune-boosting remedies, and cleansing practices will help Pisceans protect their bodies and auras from disease. Herbal Allies that clear the liver and promote digestion. Being very Jupiterian, it tends to grow abundantly, and its tea and tinctures help calm the nervous system and stimulate bile to help promote fat digestion and liver function. With its anxiety soothing and uplifting properties, it can help comfort sentimental and sensitive Pisceans. Wood Betony is also connected to Jupiter and has many unique benefits. Traditionally, it was used in herbal remedies for arthritis and gout, the latter being a disorder that Piscean feet can be used to heal and clear the respiratory, digestive, and nervous systems. Wood betony can also be used to treat anxiety, gallstones, heartburn, high blood pressure, migraine, and neuralgia.Sage has many culinary and medicinal uses that are especially supportive of Pisces. It is considered another Jupiterian plant and was called by the Romans "the holy herb." Sage is of great use to the phlegmatic constitution, as it can help dry up the excess moisture and mucus these types can be prone to.It can stanch any excessive menstrual flow and can clear up the respiratory tract infections when treating colds. Sage also has an uplifting and clarifying guality and has been used to fight depression, mental fog, and Alzheimer's symptoms. Each of the twelve zodiac signs represents a thirty-degree band of constellations circling the earth. The thirty degrees of each sign can be further subdivided into 3 ten-degree decans or faces, each with its planetary sub-ruler placed around the zodiac in Chaldean order. These faces can be used for timing magical rituals when seeking to evoke and harness Jupiter's planetary power. In studying the Piscean personality, we can use the faces of the Two Fishes to fine-tune the flavor and nuance of planets or points placed within these decanic degrees. First Decan of Pisces are ruled by stern Saturn. This may heighten discipline, discernment, and boundary setting for those with planets or points in this face. Here, we may find some of the more grounded, serious, and old soul Pisceans compared to the other decans. Second Decan of Pisces is this benevolent planets and points in this face especially spiritual, mystical, and self-sacrificing. These natives are more likely to be religious teachers or mentors of some kind. Third Decan of Pisces are ruled by assertive and driven Mars. This can be a bit of an unusual combination, since Mars is a warrior planet, and Pisces is soulful and sensitive. This decan can have a theme of the spiritual warrior, where those with planets or points here are seen to take up charitable causes or to help the less fortunate. There also may be a suppression of anger, and an aversion to confrontation. The Tarot card that correlates to Pisces is number 18: The Moon. Regardless of its name, this card has been assigned Piscean qualities to its significations, carrying with it some Jupiterian and Neptunian sub-signatures. The mysterious and nocturnal realm that the Moon card depicts is the world of the Pisces archetype, which appears when we are feeling overwhelmed with emotions and are confused about what choice to make next. This card warns of the illusory quality of dreams, delusions, and ideals that can cloud our clarity at the moment. It also reminds us that when we are lost in a storm of feeling, we need to reconnect with our core and our authentic nature to navigate through an alternate reality. The Moon teaches us how to join the mystic with the tangible and accept that the two are one so that we do not become destabilized by fears, phobias, or old trauma signatures. Working with and accepting that reality is multifaceted by nature will help us release a need to control the outcome, or project our unrealistic desires onto our circumstances. It's a rather mysterious card that is not always immediately positive but can help us find clarity and a path toward authenticity. Minor Arcana 8, 9, and 10 of Cups In the Minor Arcana of the Tarot, the Suit of Cups is associated with the element of water. Here, we see the three decans of Pisces assigned to the 8, 9, and 10 of Cups is associated with arriving at the end of an emotive, intuitive, and relational cycle. These Cup cards help us to recognize our feelings and instincts as we go deeper into the nuances of these to attain psychic mastery and fulfillment.8 of Cups: Saturn in Pisces The 8 of Cups corresponds to the first decan or face of Pisces. It carries the reclusive sub-signature of Saturn and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Indolence." This card depicts a dejected figure appearing to abandon a scene of accumulation and investment. It points to a mood of disillusionment, when something creative or relational that we wave working toward did not bring the happiness that we had hoped. There may be a need to withdraw and reflect, or there may be a temptation to avoid a problematic emotional situation, and simply escape. The "Indolence" card hints at a crisis of stagnation, symbolizing "Pisces is calm but stagnant water; and Saturn deadens it completely..." It carries the powerful and benevolent sub-signature of Jupiter in PiscesThe 9 of Cups corresponds to the second decan or face of Pisces. It carries the powerful and benevolent sub-signature of of Thoth as the card of "Happiness." This card is more stable and prosperous than the previous card, and perhaps represents the resolution of number 8's disillusionment. It depicts contentment, satisfaction, and can symbolize a wish coming true. It also echoes the joy and gifts that Jupiter can provide by inviting us to indulge in pleasures and creativity. The number 9 is numerologically dynamic and reminds us of the transient nature of our good fortune, and that we need to be ready to adapt if circumstances change. Therefore, it is important to be in the moment and enjoy fortune while it lasts. The "Happiness" card is the pageant of the culmination of the original force of Water... (Book of Thoth)10 of Cups: Mars in PiscesThe 10 of Cups card corresponds to the third decan or face of Pisces. It carries the potent and assertive sub-signature of Mars and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Satiety." The number 10 card represents harmony, satisfaction, and bliss in relationships. It depicts the ultimate expression of this, in the loving, supportive family unit. This card symbolizes fulfillment, wholeness, and contentment that can be arrived at after working and evolving to find peace and emotional balance. We can now trust our well-developed intuition with confidence when moving forward. The "Satiety" card depicts the Pisces influence as "peaceful" and spiritualized..." Scorpio is an intense zodiac sign, powerful and seductive. Scorpio is the sign that rules life, death and resurrection. Your life is a story of transformation and reinvention. Many Scorpios are also drawn to "dark" things, and often wear the color black, or a shocking tone like red or hot pink. The essence of Scorpio energy is magnetic, passionate, loyal, protective, trendsetting, controlling, powerful, charismatic, transformational, focused, loyal, healing, psychic, bonding-oriented and brave. Scorpio is ruled by Pluto, god of the underworld and all things connected to the occult. The legend goes that the primary Greek gods—Jupiter, Neptune, and Pluto—drew straws to determine who would respectively rule the earth, the ocean, and the underworld. Unfortunately, Pluto received the bad end of the deal and was compelled to oversee the domain of the deceased. Pluto is often depicted sitting on his throne with a two-pronged staff. Since Pluto wasn't discovered until the 1930s, Scorpio has Mars as its minor ruler. Mars is the god of war who is depicted as charging forth into battle. In love and relationships, Scorpio has a reputation as "sexiest" of the zodiac signs. The Scorpio? Learn more and taboo. For Scorpio? Wisdom seeking Sagittarius star sign is happiest in wide-open spaces with plenty of adventure and excitement. The typical Sagittarius juggles a million projects, hobbies and friends. The more, the merrier! Sagittarius is forever pursuing a super-sized goal. Even when you fail, nothing can keep you down. You'll chalk it up as a life lesson and inspire everyone with tales of your experience. Sagittarius is ruled by expansive Jupiter, the largest planet in our solar system. As a result, this sign can be larger than life. Jupiter is one of the gas giants, and indeed, overconfident Sagittarius habit. Luckily, fortunate Jupiter helps us land on our feet. But it's not without a few bumps and bruises (also known as life lessons in the Book of Sag). Jupiter was the most widely revered god in ancient Roman times, often referred to as Jupiter Optimus Maximus (literally translating to "all good" and "all powerful"). Not surprisingly, his was the largest temple in Rome. Sagittarius desires the biggest and best, at times to the point of excess and indulgence. In fact, Jupiter was the mythic god of the feast. People with Sagittarius in their charts may quickly expand in girth. Hedonism and decadence without limit can make Sagittarius is an adventurer, always on the move, seeking novelty and knowledge. In love and relationships, Sagittarius is an adventurer, always on the move, seeking novelty and knowledge. Sagittarius, sex can be idealized. The Sagittarius ruling planet is larger-than-life Jupiter, which gives this sign the confidence to try many romantic partners. Breakups for this sign are hard. As an eternal optimist, they'll do anything to make a relationship work. If the other person isn't willing to try, that's when Sagittarius walks away. If this sign walks down the aisle, emphasis is on the party, not the ceremony. This sign's fierce independence ensures nothing planned will be 100 percent by-the-book. Once a Capricorn person has set sights on something, they begin to climb slowly and steadily toward that goal. Capricorn people like to do everything. Capricorn people like to do everything. Capricorn people may see life as an uphill battle, with the ultimate reward arriving. only through suffering and sacrifice. If you're born under the Capricorn star sign, remember to let yourself have fun, too! Life doesn't always have to be a struggle. It's okay to enjoy your victories, even if you didn't work hard to win them. Lighten up and share your wacky, down-to-earth humor. When you get moody, let your family and closest friends friends be there for you—just as you always are for them. The planetary ruler of Capricorn is stern and authoritative Saturn—in a rebellious act to overthrow his father, Uranus—castrated his dad and assumed power as the next-of-kin. Much like Saturn, Capricorns are the "daddy" sign of the Zodiac, and want to be respected for their paternalistic command. Additionally, Saturn is the planet of repression, which can make Capricorn urges come out in shocking or subversive ways. Don't be surprised if Capricorn has a few freaky secrets under the stoic exterior. In love and relationships, Capricorn is an ambitious sign who has mind on the past and the future but lives in the present with the right partner. Capricorn? Learn more about the Capricorn? One of the many Aquarius traits that makes you a paradox? You're highly individualistic, but also an amazing team player. You might look like the fresh-faced guy or girl next door on the outside, but you're a true individual... Uranus is the planet that rules emotional detachment, unpredictable energy and rebellion. In mythology, Uranus was the Sky God who mated with Gaia the Earth Goddess. He hated their children and imprisoned the youngest ones in the earth where they tormented Gaia. She made a sickle and asked her children to castrate Uranus. The youngest, Cronus (Saturn) did it. After that, the Sky and Earth became separate. Interestingly, Saturn was considered the ruling planet of Aquarius until Uranus was discovered and named. Structured Saturn is still thought of as the "minor ruler" of Aquarius. This can explain why many Aquarius is an open-minded sign that can toggle between easy-breezy friendship and surprising bouts of emotional vulnerability. A part of you is always trying to "swim away" or escape reality. The other part is so intuitive that you get swept up in everything going on. Your imagination is the perfect Pisces hideout when you want to escape, since the Pisces zodiac sign is so creative. The planetary ruler of Pisces is Neptune. The Ancient Romans praised and glorified Neptune as the almighty God of the Sea. When Jupiter and Pluto (or Zeus and Hades, as they're referred to in Greek mythology) met with Neptune, they divided the three main realms of the Universe—earth, sea, and underworld—amongst themselves. Neptune was feared for his furious temper, which could incite earthquakes on land and intense storms for those away at sea. In love and relationships, Pisces can be all-consuming and addictive. This fantasy-loving sign loves to be in love (in theory!) The Pisces ruling planet is Neptune, planet OF fantasy. This sign wants to be swept away by romance. We have never lacked such a category of people around us: although they may seem very simple on the outside, in fact, they are often the most dangerous, so that other people cannot afford to deal with them. Let's find out at which star signs have such personality. Capricorn Capricorn is a star sign that is hard for people to see through, and there are a lot of dangerous elements within this imperviousness. Because Capricorn will be more mature and sensible than the average people. As such, they will also be more concerned about reality and admit cruelty than the ordinary people. They may also be the most eager for quick success in the twelve zodiac signs. So, they often appear unkind. If they are too excessive and extreme, they may even do whatever they can to achieve their goals. . Scorpio is a sign that lingers and hovers between the angel and the devil. Scorpio is smart, and has the inherent desire. They are very possessive, and this possessiveness is not only to people. As long as they have this desire, it will present a "dangerous" state. And people often say that the dark and scheming traits, including many other comments, are all from the Scorpios who are immersed in desire. Therefore, there is always a huge difference among Scorpios and it is precisely due to their different states and thoughts. Gemini always shows people that they are good at attacking others in various ways, especially language. For Gemini, language is their most powerful weapon Moreover, Gemini is difficult to control themselves. It is said that they do as they please, and it can be seen that Gemini does not like to be bound, and people who are not bound are actually a bit dangerous because you can't get them connected. The zodiac is made up of twelve constellations and signs, dividing the sky into twelve sections. These pieces of the cosmos are ruled by the constellation they are affiliated with, forming each member of the zodiac. These twelve sections are further defined by the elements they are affiliated with, and the planets they are ruled by. For example, the sun travels through each sign throughout the year, marking significant shifts that occur about every thirty days. However, we also see change occur as other planets and the moon soar through our galaxy, enriching our lives with a variety of challenges, blessings, and emotional movement. The sign any given planet is placed under will give us insight around how that celestial bod is acting in the moment, providing a map for the energy we are to contend with throughout the day. The Elements of the Zodiac Signs Each of the zodiac signs is ruled by an element: fire, earth, air, or water. Each of the element is unique to that sign. Water signs are seen as shy, reserved, and sensitive, but also intuitive and in-tune with their feelings. They make natural empaths, with an ability to tap into the emotions of people around them. They're nurturing towards the ones they love but need to be careful they're not overly giving with anyone who might take advantage of this quality. The water signs are Cancer, Scorpio, and Pisces. Fire signs, meanwhile, are known for passion, creativity, competitiveness, and inspiration. Earth signs are considered conservative, realistic, and "down-to-earth." Patience is what gets them ahead in life, because they understand the importance of building up personal or professional goals over time. They love to be spoiled but do the same for anyone lucky enough to win their affections. The earth signs are Taurus, Virgo, and Capricorn. Finally, air signs are thought of as rational, social, and intellectual. People with this sign are naturally friendly, communicative, and analytical. They love keeping up-to-date with their friends, but need to be mindful to carve out time for quiet reflection, and avoid overstimulation, anxiety, or insomnia. The air signs are Gemini, Libra, and Aquarius. The Zodiac Signs Traits They're assertive by nature and won't hesitate to tell you how they feel. But they don't hurt anyone's feelings by speaking impulsively. They can be headstrong at times, and make better leaders than followers. This fixed earth sign has impeccable taste and loves to indulge. They tend to be financially responsible, but still know how to treat themselves and the ones they love. Though they do have a darker side to them. They love to socialize but can become nervous or overstimulated when they don't take time for themselves. This sign is also great at multitasking but needs to be careful not to take on too much at once. They are intuitively nurturing and love to take care of the people around them. best at unpacking their feelings with others. They often opt to sort out their issues alone. They are confident and larger-than life, easily charming the people they encounter. However, this sign can be dramatic from time to time, especially if they feel disrespected. They feel disrespected. They are very detail-oriented, making them master editors with extremely high standards. However, they need to be mindful that they are not overly demanding or critical of themselves or those around them. They are extremely relationship-oriented but can sometimes needs over their own. This Venus ruled sign has a keen eye for aesthetics with impeccable personal style and well decorated homes. They are extremely intuitive and make natural psychologists with their friends and romantic partners, but they can become possessive or jealous if they're not completely confident with themselves. They lean toward optimism and love to take risks, but need to be mindful of living in the present and making practical plans for the future. Sagittarius are natural philosophers and are always looking to explore the mysteries of the universe. Career-motivated and focused on status, these earth signs are highly driven to reach their professional goals and take their responsibilities very seriously. They're typically resistant to change and will often stick with their personal routines for many years. They can be seen as unpredictable or disorganized, but often surprise people with their streaks of brilliance and hidden genius. They're extremely malleable and need to be careful of who they surround themselves with. Since they are hyper-intuitive, they can sometimes become disconnected-making it important for this water sign to ground often. The Rulers of the Zodiac Each of the zodiac signs is also associated with a planet, or a "ruler." This planet exerts a stronger influence over a given sign than any other planet. It affects how your zodiac sign interacts with others, approaches life, and forms relationships. A sign's temperament is often defined by its planetary ruler, bringing through a passive, aggressive, conservative, receptive, or extroverted personality type. The traditional planets-Mars, Venus, Mercury, Saturn, and Jupiter-all serve more than one sign. While the sun and moon are assigned only to Leo and Cancer. Mars-ruled signs have a natural curiosity, making them excellent students and communicators. With Venus as a planetary ruler, we see a desire for romance, aesthetics, and luxury. Saturn can bring out a restrained or traditional personality type who values structure and order. of Leo can be credited for this member of the zodiac's warmth and sense of pride. The Moon is responsible for Cancer's intuition and nurturing tendencies. But as astronomers continued to discover planets, some members of the zodiac were given a secondary, or modern, ruler. Pluto represents power and transformation, aligning with the intensity it brings to Scorpios. Uranus is known to shake things up, bringing an unpredictable element to Aquarius signs. Meanwhile, Neptune is thought to be responsible for the dreamy outlook of Pisces. Though the modern planetary rulers have prominent roles in the signs they govern it's important to take into account each sign's traditional planets as well, and how these rulers work together. House Systems In addition to having a planetary ruler, each member of the zodiac has a "house" that it is the natural ruler of. If you've ever pulled up your birth chart, you likely noticed that it is divided into twelve sections-each of which are correlated with a number. These numbers make up the house system and will give you additional insights to help you unlock the secrets of your natal chart. While Aries is the natural ruler of the first house, it won't necessarily govern your rising sign-and is known as the house of self. It can provide information regarding our identities, as well as physical appearances. It can even uncover information around how a person learns and communicates can be found in the third house, while the fourth tells the story of your home life. The fifth house rules creative expression and leisure activities, while astrologers turn to the sixth house is often referred to as the house of "sex, death, and taxes." Our spiritual paths can be understood through the ninth house, and our career paths unfold in the tenth. Your connection to community and social activism will be found in the eleventh house, as well as group activities you like to participate in. The twelfth house is perhaps the most misunderstood area of a birth chart, as it rules the unseen the subconscious, and secrets. When reading your natal chart, you'll want to pay close attention to the rulers of each house in your chart and take note of your planetary placements and how they interact with one another. The house system is the backbone of any astrology reading, allowing us to interpret many areas of our life piece-by-piece. Tropical and Sidereal Astrology Tropical astrology is typically practiced by western astrologers and is formed around the traditional dates of equinoxes and solstices. It finds these calculations based off its relationship to the sun. on its axis-and pays more attention to the movement of our constellations versus the fixed nature of our sun. Why People Believe in Astrology for many reasons, which won't be the same for all. Some take a surface-level interest, turning to their daily horoscopes for a glimmer of what the day might hold. Others plummet into extensive dives into their natal charts in an effort to understand themselves and those around them more clearly. There is a general belief that a greater force in the cosmos has an effect on us humble humans, which leaves us turning to the heavens for clarity on our paths. For daily wit & wisdom, sign up for the Almanac newsletter. Today, we Man of Signs," which is astrology. Astrology is about so much more than simple horoscopes. It's an ancient study with a rich history that focuses on how the stars and planets affect our lives on Earth. Astrologers believe the celestial bodies can dictate our personalities, life paths, and day-to-day events. While an element of fate is involved, modern astrologers believe you have free will and can work with the energy rather than assume you're fated to one destiny based on your birth chart. The History of AstrologyAstrology is a profound practice that has intrigued and captivated people for centuries. Imagine the awe of our ancestors as they learned to stand upright, communicate, and become fascinated with the night sky. They began to notice planets, eclipses, patterns, movements, and more. Soon, they learned how to use the energy of the moon for planting, fishing, and daily living. In time, this led to the development of a philosophy that became known as astrology. Although there is no concrete "start date," Yale professor Eckart Frahm explains that the earliest beginnings of astrology can be traced back to the Babylonians, a civilization deeply interested in mathematics and the heavenly bodies. They meticulously created tables to track the movements of the stars, and it's believed they were the ones who invented the 12 zodiac signs. This knowledge eventually made its way to Egypt and Greece, where it continued to evolve. According to David Wray, an assistant professor in the Department of Classical Languages and Literatures at the University of Chicago, by the second century B.C.E., the format for astrology was set. The birth chart could determine your personality and fate. Classical astrologers such as Ptolemy further refined the art. Ptolemy is credited with developing the concept of 'houses' in astrology. These houses are divisions of the birth chart representing different aspects of life, such as career, relationships, and health. Learn more about the 12 houses of astrology. The Renaissance brought a resurgence of astrology, thanks to astrologers such as Michel Nostradamus and John Dee. Later, astrologers such as Dane Rudhyar turned astrology from prediction to self-actualization. As the New Age movement began to take root in the late twentieth century, astrology became popular once again. Modern astrology has evolved and adapted, adding in Uranus, Neptune, and Pluto, giving us nine planets to work with. While Hellenistic astrology, which is more popular today than ever thanks to the work of people like Chris Brennan, only focuses on seven planets, you can choose which makes the most sense. Despite that, Pisces are kind, compassionate, and always willing to help those in need. They can make great sacrifices for people they love or for good causes. Pisces have a strong sixth sense. When they get a feeling about a situation, they should always trust it. Common Myths and MisconceptionsMyth: Your Sun Sign Determines Your Personality TraitsFact: Your Sun sign is only one part of your natal chart. When you're born, all the planets and other celestial bodies, such as asteroids, line up into different signs. For example, you may be a Taurus Sun sign, but your Moon might be in Aquarius. The Moon rules your emotional life. This combination would amplify stubbornness due to both signs being fixed. Still, the Aquarian Moon would also add an element of coolness to the way you express your feelings. What is your Moon sign? And what does it mean? Myth: Astrology is not fatalistic. It may offer insights into your talents, interests, challenges, and possible vocation, but you have free will. If you do not like the way the stars are showing up for you, you can find alternate routes. Myth: You Can Only Get Along With Certain Zodiac SignsFact: This is not true. Astrological compatibility, known as synastry, isn't determined by Sun signs. Many other points are considered. Even so, you can have a chart that is compatible with someone but still struggle to get along. In contrast, so-called incompatible charts might have few, if any, issues. Myth: If You're Born on the cusp, You are either one sign or another. Cusps are only considered when you look at the zodiac signs on the divisions of the houses. Other than that, they're not a thing! Leo Zodiac Sign Traits Bold, intelligent, warm, and courageous, fire sign Leo is a natural leader of the Zodiac, ready to blaze a trail, vanquish injustice, and make a name for themselves for a job well done But Leo isn't self-aggrandizing or unwilling to roll up those sleeves and do the work: this sign knows that in order to be respected and admired, he or she needs to put in the effort worthy of a leader. Heal your heart! Don't miss this chance to eliminate doubts with a 3 minute FREE reading. But it's not all hard work for Lions. Intense and energetic, Leos thrive on social interactions and have no problem making friends—although pinning them down to spend time with you is another story. Leos put themselves first, and will turn down a plan that doesn't fit with their agenda or idea of fun. This trait has gained them an unfair reputation for arrogance. But on the flip side, when a Lion chooses to spend time with you, it's genuinely because he or she wants to. Leo signs are passionate in all pursuits, including relationships, and take it upon themselves to be the best partner you've ever had. They love grand gestures, and they want to show the world how attentive and caring they can be. They also can't resist flashiness and often buy their partner the biggest and best presents. Leo is an adventurer, seeking to balance an intense life of social obligations and travel with plenty of downtime to relax and luxuriate. Work and outward appearances matter to this sign, and they're willing to do whatever it takes to gain a job title or workplace status, even if it means temporarily sacrificing their precious leisure time. Benevolent with their time and attention, Leos are never cliquey, always showing friendliness and politeness to everyone. While almost everyone else is entranced by the Leonine personality, Leos are their own harshest critic and consider each day a challenge to be the best, brightest, and boldest Lion they can be. Leo's Love Style Passionate, intense, and fiery, Leo loves hard. For Leos, love itself—whether falling in love, thinking about love, making love—is one of their favorite things in the world. That's why social gatherings can be overwhelming for Cancers. They'd much rather spend time in small groups where everyone is on the same page. In romance, Cancer is a giving and generous lover and expects the return. The Crab is above mind games and hates the thrill of the chase—if you love someone, why not say it now? It's not uncommon for Cancer to fall into committed love after just a few days or weeks, and even though that decision is sudden, it can easily last a lifetime. Cancers tends to be happiest when they're part of a pair, and the best relationship brings out their greatest traits. But even though a Cancer thrives in a duo, he or she also has an independent streak, and needs plenty of time to do things solo. This sign has an active internal life, and is often are happy living in the realm of imagination. Sometimes Cancers need help from one of the more grounded signs to make their dreams a reality. Cancer loves creating and needs some type of creative outlet, whether it's painting, or even just reading. Cancer also loves connecting to a higher power, and may find comfort in religion or spiritual practices. And even though Crabs can be intense, they also have a funny side with a wry sense of humor, and they're adept at observing and mimicking people around them. Finally, Cancer is incredibly loyal, sometimes to a fault. Cancers will go to the ends of the earth and even against their own beliefs to help someone they love. Learning how to step up for what they believe in—even if it means turning down or against a friend—is a lifelong lesson for Cancer. As the emotional heart of the Zodiac, this sign teaches everyone else that, while there's so much in life that we may not be able to see, we should still pay attention to the unseen because it does exist—and we do need it! Cancer's Love Style Sensual, passionate, and super in tune with their bodies, Cancers are highly attuned to love and physical sensation—as long as they can trust enough to let down their barriers and allow another person into their world... Their name says it all: C for caring A for ambitious N for nourishing C for creative E for emotional intelligence, Cancer quickly cuts through the BS and noise to the heart of an issue. Crabs don't need all the facts and figures to know the right course of action, and their ability to trust intuition without judgment can aid them well. This gift is one that other Zodiac signs can learn from and be inspired by. Cancer's Greatest Challenges While Cancer easily and accurately reads situations when they're presented, he or she may not share those opinions with others. Speaking up is key, because turning inward with emotions may erupt unexpectedly. Crabs also expect others to know what they're thinking, which is another source of pent-up frustration. Learning to voice opinions, even if it leads to conflict, is a lifelong lesson for Cancer's Secret Weapon Emotions. While many Cancer signs probably get the message to "be less emotional," the huge range and depths of Cancers' emotions may in fact be their situation. In general, a Cancer's mercurial moods do a better job than a long speech, and by sharing their emotions with the world, Crabs help other signs tap into theirs as well. The 5 Top Reasons to Love Being a Cancer Practically psychic, Cancers can take the emotional temperature of almost every room they're in, and can intuit whether a situation is good or bad before anyone says a word. Passionate lovers, Cancers are adept at throwing both mind and body into over-the-top relationships. They absolutely adore letting go and totally connecting to their body in bed. Ruled by the moon, Cancer is incredibly in tune with the earth's rhythm, and finds solace and pleasure in nature. More than many signs, Cancers intuitively know that tuning into the natural rhythms of the earth, the moon, and the planets can help when they have a problem. Incredibly loyal, once a Cancer chooses to become friends with someone, he or she will have that person's back for life, and won't let judgment get in the way of an amazing friendship. Creative and resilient, Cancers can always find pleasure in their own company and their own mind, and they can make anything—even jury duty or a trip to the DMV—a fascinating story. Famous Cancers The constellation known as Scorpio contains the red star Antares, which means "the rival of Mars," and is also called "the heart of the Scorpion." This potent fixed star is observed in various astrological and magical practices as having an intense Mars-like quality. In Greek mythology, the Scorpio tells of a boastful hunter Orion, who bragged that he could kill all of the animals in the wild kingdom. The earth goddess Gaia objected and sent a Scorpion to stop Orion. He confronted, and fought the Scorpion, but died when the great beast stung him in the head. The Scorpion was placed in the heavens as a reward from Gaia for his service, and Zeus placed Orion there as well to commend his valiant fight. Scorpio season in the western tropical zodiac begins on October 23, commencing the middle of the autumn in the Northern Hemisphere. This is the time of year when the daylight hours. From this point, the days continue to decrease in length toward the Winter Solstice. It is during Scorpio's time that many world cultures observe themes of death and rebirth, in holidays like Halloween, Samhain, All Saints Day, and El Día de Los Muertos. Scorpio's connection with inward reflection, the shadows, and transformation is mirrored in the mystery and melancholy of the Autumn season. Fixed ModeScorpio is the third of the four fixed signs of the zodiac, who all hold the elemental energy of endurance and stability in the center phase of the four seasons. Scorpio begins the middle of Autumn, when the season is most "fixed" and established, lending to the deep, tenacious, and obsessive tendencies of Scorpio.Water ElementScorpio's personality traits are related to its element, which is water, the second heaviest element, thought by ancient astrologers to be the fluid, adaptive, yet a tangible form of matter. Water represents the moistening and cohering principle that binds and creativity can incubate and bloom. Scorpio's creativity, intuition, imagination, and strong investigative powers are all akin to the consolidating connectivity of the water element. In classical astrology, Mars is the planetary ruler of both Aries and Scorpio. Aries was thought to be the day, or diurnal home of Mars, with Mars finding a second nocturnal home in brooding and secretive Scorpio. In Scorpio, Mars has full affinity and potency in the warrior-like tendencies of this sign, but because it is in its nocturnal home, these powers take on a more secretive and covert expression. This placement presents in a slower, cooler, and more calculated use of anger and drive. Scorpio is more patient, and emotionally and psychologically nuanced than brash and brazen Aries. Those born with Mars in Scorpio can be more tactical and observant to wield behind the scenes of power. The motto "revenge is a dish best served cold" suits this tenacious and fixated archetype. Modern Ruler: PlutoThe planet Pluto, named for the god of the underworld, was discovered during a pivotal time in modern history. Found by astronomer Clyde Tombaugh in 1930, Pluto appeared out of the darkness through theories of a trans-Neptunian planet. At the time, many powerful Plutonian synchronicities were happening in the world, like massive world wars, the exploration of depth psychology, and the splitting of the atom. The latter discovery saddled humanity with the responsibility and ability to unleash mass destruction, and inner discovery were similar to the themes of power, destruction, and inner discovery were similar to the themes of power, destruction, and inner discovery were similar to the themes of power. of Mars, Scorpio's Plutonian sub-signature makes this archetype uniquely suited to confront and transform personal and collective trauma. Detriment of Venus, ruled by Mars, Scorpio is in polarity with the fixed earth sign Taurus. Ruled by Mars, Scorpio likes to confront and conquer, where Taurus, ruled by Venus, likes to connect and keep the peace. Venus, when in the opposite sign of her preferred home, is said to be in detriment, or at a sort of disadvantage in Scorpio.Imagine the planetary goddess of love, luxury, and attraction having to stay in a secret military bunker, with only weapons and war trophies as the resources to make a life. With this sign placement, she would have to compensate, with Venus in Scorpio natives often being private, secretive, and perhaps mistrustful in love. They may have frequent conflicts in following their passions and may be overwhelmed by their desires and emotional attachments. Those born with this placement have a do or die attitude when it comes to love, either going all-in or becoming vengeful if they are scorned. Love, affection, and connection may either be somewhat fraught for these natives, or very potent, exciting, and outside the norms of society. The passion and friction that this placement produces may be channeled into the artistic pursuits of these natives, or very potent, exciting, and outside the norms of society. opposite sign of Scorpio. While not as challenging to integrate as a detriment, the fall shows the emotional "pitfalls" that those with this placement may fall into. Here, the moon's nurturing and receptive gualities are concentrated and intensified in this fixed water sign. The moon in Mars' nocturnal sign can heighten the powers of intuition and concentration, but can also exacerbate dark moods. Those with this placement often have a potent, all-encompassing emotional life, that is deep and shadowy. These natives could face many inner demons and are also acutely aware of the psychic imbalances of others in their sphere. On the positive side, the moon in Scorpio is often found in the charts of uniquely creative and intuitive people who make great investigators, psychologists, or psychic counselors. People with this placement may need to do a lot of their healing and soul-tending to keep their psychic counselors. People with this placement may need to do a lot of their healing and soul-tending to keep their psychic counselors. rules one of the twelve houses in the birth chart. This innovation was created by psychological astrologers to match sign affinities to related house topics. Scorpio is ruled by assertive Mars, and potent Pluto, it invites these transformative planetary sub-signatures to the eighth house. The Sixth House of "bad fortune," health, and service of the birth chart. This is related to Mars classically being considered one of the more difficult, or "malefic" planets in astrology, responsible for conflicts, violence, and injuries in the life of these natives when badly placed. Since the sixth house has a connection to health challenges and hard luck, Mars can "joyfully" express its more unwelcome offerings here, or at least has a leg up on being "extra-Marsy" and powerful. Scorpio's archetypal traits are derived from its receptive, feminine, or yin qualities, making this sign oriented toward contemplation and engagement with inner awareness. Alive in both a Scorpio woman or Scorpio man, those born with the Scorpion as their rising, sun, or moon sign have a mysterious, intuitive, and power-wielding dynamic in the core of their personality, and echo of the shadowy Autumn season. As a fixed sign, Scorpio holds the qualities of being a sustainer, being able to apply profound powers of concentration to projects, and discovering hidden truths. As a result, those with the sign of the Scorpion prominent in their charts tend to be magnetic, highly sensitive, intuitive, creative, and secretive at times. Strengths The primary Scorpio strengths can be found in their devoted, determined, and observant natures. They are hard workers, often artistic, and deeply committed to through to the end. Scorpios tend to be receptive and patient, letting others play their cards and show their intentions first to better understand the emotional and psychological dynamics of their relationships. Magnetic and mysterious, Scorpio is drawn toward dark, taboo, or occult subjects, and are curious about the hidden facets of life that others may shy away from. The Scorpio is drawn toward dark, avoided, and mysterious inner depths of the psyche, and potent realities of life like death and transformation. While Scorpio is often misunderstood and feared as an archetype, those born under this sign are very sensitive, empathetic, and can be quite compassionately bond themselves, heart and soul, to those they care for. Once they feel they can trust, they are quite loyal to the friends and lovers that make it into their inner circle. Scorpio understands innately what it feels like to be the weirdo or those who are deemed untouchable in society. Because of this, they are uniquely poised to be of great service to those in our society that suffer the most, like the homeless, the mentally ill, and people who have been outcast for divergent spiritual beliefs or lifestyles. Anyone with preferences that challenge conventional intelligence understanding, and healing to the darkest circumstances, and may have had to overcome some healing or transformative experience of their own in their lives. Their fearless understanding of trauma, and survival, makes these folks the strongest psychic and spiritual warriors. Weaknesses Some potential weaknesses in the Scorpio archetype are rooted in their great strengths. Though they are determined and devoted to their work, they can be come so rigid, fixated, and obsessed that it can be difficult to adapt to changes or to let go of an idea that is no longer useful. Those born under the sign of the Scorpion are receptive and patient, but they can be come so rigid, fixated, and obsessed that it can be difficult to adapt to changes or to let go of an idea that is no longer useful. forthcoming about their vulnerabilities, but if Scorpios are feeling insecure, they can use what others have revealed to be emotionally manipulative and controlling. Like the other fixed signs, they can be slow to forgive, and those that cross the Scorpion may feel their vulnerabilities, but if Scorpion may feel their vulnerabilities, but if Scorpion may feel their vengeful sting. Being naturally drawn to taboo and occult subjects can have the Scorpion inordinately focused on the dark side of life, giving them a pessimistic and nihilistic worldview. They may start seeking darker motives everywhere, which can lead to isolation and paranoia. It can then be hard to relax, trust, and enjoy life's simple pleasures to stay in balance. Naturally sensitive and passionate, those born under the sign of the Scorpion give themselves heart and soul when seeking love and sexual connection, but if this isn't reciprocated with their lovers. Because of their co-relation with planet Pluto, Scorpios are often drawn to go beyond the fringes of society to seek thrill and adventure, yet this can easily lead the Scorpion into danger and self-destruction. Like a moth to a flame, they are lured toward intensity, but this may not always be in their best interest. Like all water signs, Scorpio is vulnerable to absorbing toxic energies, so if they are offering healing or counseling work, they need to have cleansing practices. Breathing exercises, saunas, smudging, and protective aura visualizations are all ways the Scorpio natives, especially, may have to work through dark moods and depression at times in their lives. Scorpio children will be wellnurtured if they are accepted unconditionally, and not shamed for having unique interests or big life questions. Acceptance at home may help offset a teenage Scorpio's rebellion, and challenging artistic pursuits or martial arts may keep these fearless natives positively occupied. The voice of depth, mystery, and intuition comes forward in the Scorpio mantra: I transform. The Scorpion's sense of purpose is all about plumbing life's shadows to uncover hidden truth and to attain power. Operating in fixed mode, Scorpios direct their intense laser focus into their work, projects, and relationships. These take on an all-encompassing mythic proportion, as those born under the sign of the Scorpion live their lives actively exploring the unseen depths of the soul.We all have Scorpio somewhere in our birth chart, so we can look to the house that this sign rules to find the specific area of our life we approach in a driven and intuitive way, or where we need to call in penetrating magnetism and mastery. Scorpio's focused and determined nature makes them uniquely suited for professions where they are needed either to solve a problem or mystery, or to make a discovery. This could take form in many professions and roles, but will likely not be found in jobs that are overly multi-faceted and distracting. While they are intelligent enough to multi-task, they prefer not to, and do their best work when they are left to manage themselves and concentrate. Once on a trail, they will keep digging and uncovering until they get to the root of what they make a big show of it in the workplace, they are usually wielding power and authority behind the scenes. The Scorpion is a nocturnal creature, and so we may find these folks working through the quiet hours of the night making great progress while the world is asleep. Scorpios are likely to have a talent for research. With their keen focus and knack for recognizing patterns, they will work well in many fields like medicine, science, and mental health. They may even design or conduct experiments, collecting and evaluating their discoveries and observations. All behind the scenes or after-hours work are well suited to Scorpio, making them naturals at investigative work. These natives will be drawn to being private investigators, detectives, and even secret service or espionage agents. Mars-ruled Scorpios are similar to Aries natives in that they may be suited for many facets of the military or martial arts. These fields take them fearlessly into the most physically and psychologically challenging scenarios, which they excel at by overcoming limitations.With the Plutonian sub-rulership, we may find many Scorpios drawn to dark, underground work, perhaps as miners or geologists. Those born under the sign of the Scorpion may also be drawn toward professions handling the dead, as cemetery workers, morticians, or funeral home directors.With strong mystic talents, Scorpios study the occult, and may themselves be leaders in this mysterious world. This unique skill could take many forms, such as astrologers, psychics, tarot readers, or spiritual teachers. As a water sign, Scorpio has potent healing powers and may take various roles in medicine and mental health. We may find these natives becoming our steadiest surgeons, our brightest psychologists, and most precise pharmacists. Scorpio natives would also be suited for roles as hospice workers, death doulas, or grief counselors, bravely attending to those in their darkest hours. Those born under the sign of the Scorpion have deep, creative souls. They are often musical and artistic, and may explore themes of power and potency in their work. These natives may also make excellent music therapists, understanding how to wield the transformative vibrations of sound. When exploring overall astrological compatibility, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon and other planetary connections will tell the whole story in all kinds of relationships. That being said, Scorpio natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs the most challenging to relate to. Although Scorpio and Aries share the Mars rulership and therefore some affinity when it comes to power, they have such a different way of wielding it that it may be hard for these signs to relate. Aries is confrontational, while Scorpio is covert, so they may struggle for control and little ability to compromise. Sagittarius and Scorpio share nothing when it comes to their elements or modalities, being adjacent signs. They are like neighbors that have no reason to talk to each other except for the fact that they share a fence. Sagittarius is boldly optimistic, while Scorpio are both fixed signs and form a challenging are social, speedy, and swift, which can either ignite sexual tension or devolve into power struggles. They may, however, have an interesting creative chemistry that can help their potent personalities blend. Air signs are social, speedy, and swift, which could be a breath of fresh air in Scorpio's dark and insular world, but intimately Scorpio may find the air signs a bit too breezy and changeable to truly trust long term. Gemini and Scorpio do not share much in common, except for their shared love of button-pushing. Gemini knows how others tick, and Scorpio likes to pull the levers behind the curtain. They may appreciate each other's mischief and mental capacities but will need to be careful to not turn this tendency on each other too often. Libra and Scorpio are opposite in many ways. Venus-ruled Libra loves to keep the peace and wants to see the world through rose-colored glasses. Mars-ruled Scorpio is wired for confrontation and has x-ray vision when it comes to the secrets others are trying to hide. The result is a clash in world views that may be too different to reconcile. Aquarius with Scorpio is a unique match, that has the potential to go very right, or very wrong. There will be little moderation between them. Both are stubborn fixed signs and share a love for debates and bubble bursting Aquarius can be very abstract and conceptual, where Scorpio relies on instinct and feel, making this a tough combination when it comes to elemental nature. Water Signs Water signs match Scorpio's sensitivity and emotional intelligence with the greatest affinity. There seems to be a psychic, creative, and intuitive current running between them that transcends words. Scorpio with Cancer is a good fit, with both signs being private, sensitive, and lovers of solitude. Scorpio may open shy Cancer up to sexual expression, and they may form a deep bond of emotional trust. Cancer nurtures Scorpio, and Scorpio is protective of Cancer, so they potentially understand what the other needs. Pisces and Scorpio share a love for the mystical and will likely explore spiritual and philosophical ideas together. This is a complementary pairing that is innately intuitive, creative, and otherworldly. They will enjoy their privacy and retreat together, with Scorpio supporting Pisces' imaginative wanderings. Scorpio with Scorpio can be a potent, sexually magnetic pairing. They are both fearless and enjoy exploring life's mysteries together. They may need to watch out for being too much alike, as they may experience the same time. The positive side of this is that they will have empathy for each other, which can help them bond and trust. Earth signs Earth signs bring a complementary, elemental affinity to a relationship with Scorpio since practical, structured earth and powerful enough in their own right to respect one another, and neither are individual and powerful enough in their own right to respect one another. Scorpio investigates and explores, and together, their focuses and talents merge well in love as well as business. Virgo and Scorpio are a potentially strong match, especially when it comes to love compatibility. They will appreciate each other's attention to detail, and love for perfection. They may have overlapping interests in health and medicine and enjoy collaborating creatively. Scorpio brings some thrill and mystery into Virgo's orderly world, which may be refreshing and intriguing to Virgo. Scorpio and Taurus loves pleasure and comfort, while Mars-ruled Scorpio thrives on challenge and thrill. Both signs are fixed, so they are likely to be equally slow to compromise. They may either balance each other out, or be too different to last long term. In classical astrological medicine, four temperaments were connected to four vital fluids and four essential constitutions. Scorpio is a water sign, and so is associated with the phlegmatic temperament, which was understood to be cold and moist. The phlegmatic temperament was thought to be connected to moisture and fats in the body and the production of phlegm, which lubricates tissues and protects these from infection. when Scorpios fall ill, or if they become inactive or overnourished. This represents a tendency for the phlegmatic constitution to become somewhat chilled and stagnant, physically and emotionally. They can become boggy lax, and clogged with toxic substances and emotions, building up too much and not being adequately cleaned out. Scorpio's constitution has another layer that makes it unique and in need of particular care, which comes from Mars' rulership over this sign. Mars is thought to be a hot and dry planet, which may in some ways help heat and dry out the coolness and excess moisture in the Scorpio constitution. It can also point to a tendency for swelling, inflammation, or blocked heat to occur in Scorpio's tissues if they lack circulation or become clogged with impurities. With Mars' influence, Scorpio sare often somewhat athletic and active, giving them good powers of recuperation. It will be important for swelling, inflammation, or blocked heat to occur in Scorpio's tissues if they lack circulation or become clogged with impurities. With Mars' influence, Scorpio sare often somewhat athletic and active, giving them good powers of recuperation. for them to focus on whole, unprocessed foods, and activities that keep them warm and stimulated. Body PartsIn classical astrological medicine, the entire zodiac was mapped out on the human body, with ruling over the genitals, reproductive organs, and the bowels. These vital "root" areas of the body represent the organs that need the most protection and care in the Scorpio native. Being innately connected to sexual expression, the genitals are highly sensitized and can become easily damaged, inflamed, or prone to infection. The reproductive organs are intrinsically linked, and can become easily damaged, inflamed, or prone to swellings, blockages, and disruptions if the Scorpio native is feeling stressed, emotionally imbalanced, or not properly nourished. The bowels, and most specifically the colon, is a sensitive organ in the Scorpionic constitution, as this organ absorbs most of our water and nutrients back into the body in the digestive process. To some extent, the prostate is also connected to Scorpio and should be cared for as well. As a result, those with strong Scorpio placements in their chart need to guard their emotional, physical, and psychic health to protect the balance of these vulnerable organs. Sugary and allergy-producing foods promote mucus and should be avoided to keep the Scorpio plant ally in their chart need to guard their emotional, physical, and psychic health to protect the balance of these vulnerable organs. sense that it offers the medicine of antipathy to help restore balance. Mugwort is ruled by Venus, whose signs are opposite to Mars in the zodiac, which is a clue that it will have a balancing and remedial property to Mars-ruled bodies and functions. Mugwort is drying and warming, which helps to balance the cool and damp phlegmatic constitution. It also has an affinity for the reproductive organs, helping tone and clear any blockages in the uterus so that the menstrual cycle can be regular. It also has pain-relieving and anti-inflammatory properties, which will balance the vulnerabilities of the Mars-ruled body. Nettles are an important Mars plant that helps with blood cleansing, easing allergy symptoms, and inflammation. The sting of nettle leaves can soothe rheumatoid arthritis pain in the joints, which the phlegmatic constitution can be prone to. It's stingers stimulate the joint swelling and congestion to break up and clear, as it invites blood flow into these areas. Nettles have many vitamins and minerals, which help support blood building and immunity, all important facets of Mars' function in the body. Nettles also have some supportive and clearing properties that can help the prostate gland. Blackberry is another Mars plant that can be a helpful Scorpionic ally. It grows in a very aggressive, invasive Mars fashion, and is covered with sharp, sword-like prickles. Blackberry root is an astringent which is very helpful to balance the phlegmatic constitution since it can tighten and tone lax and boggy digestive tissues. It can also dry up excess moisture and mucus, and is helpful if someone is running the risk of dehydration from being ill with diarrhea for too long. Each of the twelve zodiac signs represents a thirty-degree slice of a 360-degree band of constellations, circling the earth. The thirty degrees of each sign can be further subdivided into three ten-degree decans or faces, each with its planetary power. In studying the Scorpio personality, we can use the faces of the Scorpio to fine-tune the flavor and nuance of planets or points placed within these decanic degrees. First Decan of Scorpio are ruled by Mars, which is at home in this sign, boosting the magical strength of this decan. This amplifies the power and potency of Mars, giving those with planets or points in this decan a Martial boost that they can tap into. This is the most Scorpio: The sunDegrees 10 through 19 of Scorpio are ruled by the sun. This may heighten the social and outward expressing qualities of those with planets or points in this face. These natives may take roles of leadership and authority, and may not be as shy of the spotlight as those with placements in the other decans. Exploring the ego may be of interest, and here, we may find our Scorpionic psychologists or psychiatrists. Third Decan of Scorpio: VenusDegrees 20 through 29 of Scorpio are ruled by affectionate and artistic Venus. This, however, is a bit of an uneasy combination for the planet of love, since Venus is in her classical detriment in the sign of Scorpio. This decan may heighten the artistic ability and expression of those born with planets or placements here, but it may also add a layer of complication in matters of love. The native may be passionate about pursuing romantic and sexual connection, but they may have some relational conflicts that they need to tend to at times. The Tarot card that correlates to Scorpio is number 13: Death. This card can seem rather ominous, but rarely is a portent of actual death. The Death card points that they need to tend to at times. to the transformative phase in the circle of life that Scorpio as an archetype is most aligned with exploring. Number 13 of the major arcana illustrates the principle of death and letting go so that what is past its due date can return to the earth, and become the compost that fertilizes new growth. We can observe and feel this phenomenon happening in nature and also on an internal, soul level. This card appears to remind us of this process so that we don't become fearful of change and growth. Once we recognize "death" as a time of surrendering to an important part of the creative and evolutionary cycle, we can begin to trust and flow with it. We may need to allow ourselves the time to withdraw and grieve, and be with our sense of loss before we are ready to truly move forward and renew. Death is not the end, but only a passage through a world of mystery and shadow that allows us to embrace the fullness of life. Minor Arcana5, 6, and 7 of Cups is associated with the element of water. Here, we see the three decans of Scorpio assigned to the 5, 6, and 7 of Cups, cards associated with working through an emotive, intuitive, and relational cycle. These Cup cards help us recognize the highs and lows of our sensory capacities, so that we may feel our way toward better self-understanding and emotional mastery.5 of Cups: Mars in ScorpioThe 5 of Cups corresponds to the first decan or face of Scorpio. It carries the potent and assertive sub-signature of Mars and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Disappointment." This card depicts a lonely figure standing among spilled and empty cups. It appears when we are questioning our emotional awareness, and are perhaps grieving the loss of intimacy and abundance that the previous cup cards portrayed. It's a card of contemplation and emotional dissatisfaction. The "Disappointment" card hints that all is not lost in this dark mood as "influences do not show actual decay, only the beginning of destruction; hence, the anticipated pleasure is frustrated..." (Book of Thoth)6 of Cups: Sun in ScorpioThe 6 of Cups corresponds to the second decan or face of Scorpio. It carries the bold and expressive sub-signature of the sun and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Pleasure." This card is more stable than the previous card and depicts a happier, more fruitful scene. Here, the cups are full of life and promise, and all appear to be well. This card depicts a heartfelt emotional pleasure, that warms us and encourages us. The "Pleasure" card "implies well-being, a harmony of natural forces without effort or strain, ease, satisfaction..." (Book of Thoth)7 of Cups: Venus in ScorpioThe 7 of Cups: Venus in luxury-seeking sub-signature of Venus and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Debauch." The number 7 is dynamic and hints that emotional forces have been tipped out of the stability and balance of the previous card. Here, we see many cups full of exotic and magical treasures. It has a chaotic and confusing element and warns what can happen when pleasure turns into excess and debauchery. This may be a result of indulgence, addiction, and emotional imbalance. The "Debauch" card depicts "external splendor and internal corruption." (Book of Thoth) Scorpio rising means that Scorpio was the zodiac sign that was on the eastern horizon at the time of your birth. As a Scorpio rising, you're ruled by water, and your ruling planets are Pluto-the planet of transformation and evolution-and Mars-the planet of anger, passion, sex and war. Since then it is a symbol of victory, pride, and courage. The constellation of Leo contains many bright stars, one of which is called Regulus, which means "lion", becoming the official name for this sign in western astrology through translations of ancient astrological texts. In the western tropical zodiac, Leo season begins on July 23, commencing the middle and height of Summer in the Northern Hemisphere. This is the time of year when the sun, Leo's planetary ruler, is at its most potent strength, heat, and light. The Leo archetype radiates proud "solar" confidence, heart-felt courage, and is linked to the celebration of the fruits of Summer. Fixed ModeLeo is the second of the four seasons. Leo begins the middle, and height of Summer, the symbolic source of this sign's assured, well-established, and sustained confidence. Fire ElementLeo's element is fire, the lightest, brightest element, thought by ancient astrologers to be akin to the divine light of the stars and the vital, life-living rays of the sun only ruled one sign, and so is the natural planetary ruler of Leo. Here, the sun has full affinity and potency in this regal, radiant archetype, being able to be as proud, performative, and vital of a planetary force as it likes to be. With the sun as the center of our solar system, it puts Lions in the center of life and in the middle of their families. The sun in Leo is found in the charts of courageous, often dramatic and artistic people, that do not mind taking leadership or being in the limelight. In more modern, psychological forms of astrology, the sun is connected to our core ego expression, giving folks with this sun sign a reputation for having a strong, well-developed sense of self. Detriment of SaturnLeo is in polarity with the fixed air sign Aquarius. Ruled by the sun, Leo likes to express, conquer, and perform, where Aquarius (classically ruled by Saturn), likes to test, judge, and set boundaries. When in the opposite sign of his preferred home, Saturn is said to be in detriment or at a sort of disadvantage in the bold sign of the Lion. Imagine the stern planetary god of time, trials, and discipline, thrust into a world of drama, pride, and passion. Leo tends to be a sign associated with pride, vanity, and youth, where Saturn is associated with pride, vanity, and youth, where Saturn is associated with pride, vanity, and youth, where Saturn is associated with pride vanity, and youth, where Saturn is associated with pride vanity, and youth, where Saturn is associated with pride vanity, and youth, where Saturn is associated with pride vanity, and youth, where Saturn is associated with pride vanity, and youth, where Saturn is associated with pride vanity associated with pride vanity. who need to learn how to strike a balance by being discerning and disciplined when expressing themselves. It may result in them either inhibiting their own hardest critics. In the modern astrology system of the Twelve Letter Alphabet, each zodiac sign rules one of the twelve houses in the birth chart. This innovation was created by psychological astrologers to match sign affinities to related house of children, good fortune, and creativity since its bold, childlike enthusiasm is similar to the way the fifth house indicates what themes a person will be drawn to when seeking pleasure, expression, and inspiration. Since Leo is ruled by the sun, this modern astrology system invites a radiant, solar sub-signature to the significance of the fifth house. The Ninth House of "god", spirituality, higher learning, and foreign travel of the birth chart. This is related to the sun classically being considered the light that is central to life and growth that illuminates all that is hidden and that clarifies our perceptions. The sun is able to "joyfully" express it's more radiant, life-giving offerings here, giving those born with the sun in the ninth house natural confidence. Often being great teachers themselves, this placement makes them great seekers of knowledge and truth. Leo's archetypal traits are derived from its active, masculine, or yang qualities, making this sign oriented toward assertive engagement with the outer world. Alive in both a Leo woman or Leo man, those born with the sun-god as their rising, sun, or moon sign have radiant energy in their core personality—like the solar power in the heart of Summer. As a fixed sign, the Lion holds the qualities of being a sustainer, making these with Leo in their charts great at dedicating themselves passionately to projects as well as taking leadership in inspiring their team. Ruled by the sun, these natives can be thought of as the "performers" of the zodiac that will courageously set themselves in the center of any dynamic. Strengths Being natural-born leaders, the primary strengths of Leo are courage and confidence. Being born with a sunny, solar disposition, they usually find it easy to feel happy, enthusiastic, and optimistic. When embarking on their journeys and endeavors in life, those with strong, well-supported Leo chart placements rarely question them selves and can usually access a strong baseline of self-assuredness. Leos have a great sense of pride and loyalty, and if you let them shine in your world and give them the praise life. Being so confident and optimistic themselves, they tend to see their friends and loved ones through the same lens, encouraging their abilities and self-confidence as well. In enjoying life's pleasures, and wealth, they tend to be very generous with others, showing love and appreciation with fine gifts and experiences. Leadership is a natural strength for this sign in the sense that they can be a figurehead or representative of an idea, a group philosophy, project, or movement. Unless their charts lend other more earthy placements, their leadership strong suit will not necessarily be administrative, but rather inspirational, keeping everyone connected to a message and purpose through their motivating presence. Those born with strong Leo placements tend to be artistic and express their fiery nature through body movement as well as active, stimulating, and bold art forms. Leo's connection with royalty and rulership lends a regal and magnanimous presence to the embodiment of those born under the Lion's sign. WeaknessesSome sources of weakness for Leo are rooted in their great strengths. Being a fixed fire sign, Leos can get passionately "fixed" in their opinions or principles and proudly defend these long after they even believe in them anymore. Because of their great pride, it may be difficult for them to admit when they have been wrong, or hasty. A helpful practice to balance an self-centered Leo nature can be to engage in active listening and taking time to consider another's point of view. The Leo hunger to be in the limelight can make them rather ruthless and self-serving, making it important for them to remember the people that supported their ascension to success along the way. At the core Leo-type personality imbalances is a surprising vulnerability and insecurity that others may not see because of the way they project confidence regardless of how they may be feeling. It points to a potential over-dependency on compliments, soothing, and assurance from friends and family that can be exhausting and unrealistic for all parties to sustain. The deepest pitfalls for Leo can be their own vanity and jealousy, which are intrinsically linked. In need to have constant assurance and attention from their lovers, they can become deeply jealous and competitive with anyone who tries to share the affections of those they care about. This is an important message to teach Leo children; there is enough love in the world for everyone, and everyone needs a chance to shine. The voice of authority, confidence, and zeal for life comes forward in the Leo mantra: I will. Leo's sense of purpose is all about conquering obstacles, achieving victory, and rising to prominence. They are performers, moving into center stage in life to lead and inspired and inspired of authority. others.We all have Leo somewhere in our birth chart, so we can look to the house that Leo rules to find the specific area of our life we approach in a confident, generous way, or where we need to call in this solar energy for mastery. Natives from this sign tend to be drawn to any pursuit where they can shine by creatively expressing themselves, or can inspire others to do the same. Art, dance, fitness, movement, and any performative, dynamic activity provide Leo an outlet for their potent fiery energy. Leo at WorkLeo's sense of pride and confidence makes them uniquely suited for professions where they are the center of their work through their talents or presence. Their careers need to have some dynamic of creativity and performance to be fulfilling. With their personality most likely as their strong suit, jobs where their light is dimmed would be a waste of their persuasive potential. This could manifest in many professions, but likely will not be found in staid, routine-type jobs that require laboring over finicky details or analysis. Like all the fire signs, Leo needs a challenge, movement, and space, so will not be content for long behind a desk—unless of course... that desk is an art table! If they do have a sedentary aspect to their work, they need to counterbalance this with dance, art, or other inspirational activities. Since Leo is ruled by the sun, the planet of confidence, inspiration, and rulership, a natural career fit could potentially be found in the many facets of the political world. Any way that a Leo native worlds of theatre, film, dance, and the music industry hold many naturally challenging and stimulating avenues of expression for those with strong, expressive Leo placements. Leos tend to be active, and like all great cats, are very proud of their appearance, making them naturally drawn to teaching others how to optimize their own beauty and well-being through health and fitness practices. Leos love luxury, but fine things cost money, making Leos very good at creating the wealth that they love to spend. Their friendly and confident natures give them a talent for persuasion that can make them excel in sales of all kinds, especially real estate—every ruler needs a castle! The confidence and charisma that Leo naturally embodies inspire great admiration from others, often prompting people to ask how they can have a little of the Lion's mojo in their lives. This uniquely positions Leos as natural motivational speakers and life coaches. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to take more than the sun sign into consideration, as other planetary cross-connections will tell the whole story in relationships. That being said, these natives will tend to blend best with fire signs, and may need to work harder on relationships with water signs, as they will understand each other's impulsive, spontaneous nature. Aries and Sagittarius can handle its heat and are individualistic enough to not have to compete for Leo's spotlight. Two Leos have the potential to be a great match, as they understand each other's needs and motivations, and are drawn to the same creative pursuits. Drama could have a great match, as they understand each other's needs and motivations, and are drawn to the same creative pursuits. great affinity or great rivalry, with either scenario stoking very strong passions. Air SignsAir signs bring a natural complementary energy to Leo, as air feeds fire, stoking it to grow and become more alive. Gemini and Libra brings discernment, thoughtfulness, and objectivity to this proud and solar-ruled sign. And together, they potentially have an "opposites attract" connection that can be either magnetic or polarizing. Leo teaches Aquarius to get out of their head and live in the moment, to put themselves first. While Aquarius teaches Leo the benefits of patience, time-tested knowledge, and considering all sides of an argument. Water Signs Water signs may have the biggest challenge when relating to Lion, even though they may bring vulnerability and emotional intelligence to help cool and counterbalance Leo's proud, self-focused, and reactive tendencies. Cancer will be very good at caring for Leo, which Leo will love, but may prefer to stay in when Leo wants to go out. Pisces will potentially be a great creative collaborator for Leo, yet may be too sensitive and private to fully enjoy Leo's performative world. Mars-ruled Scorpio can bring sexual potentially be a great creative collaborator for Leo, yet may be too sensitive and private to fully enjoy Leo's performative world. volatile match that needs to be handled with awareness and emotional maturity to work out. Earth Signs Can potentially stabilize the Lion's dramatic nature, with Capricorn, the authoritative cardinal earth signs. Taurus, although a kindred soul in loving life's pleasures and beauty, is just as stubborn and unwilling to compromise as Leo can be, making this match a hard one to navigate. Virgo may be too demure and focused on doing things perfectly to enjoy the scrutiny of Leo's on-stage life. In general, when this sign joins forces with earth signs in work, they can cover a lot of ground together, with earth signs offering the practicality and dependability to collaborate and help support Leo's bold campaigns and ideas. In classical astrological medicine, there were four temperaments, that were connected to four vital fluids, and four essential constitution types. Leo, being ruled by the sun, is associated with a more moderate version of the choleric temperament, which was thought to be hot and dry, and connected the production of digestive bile. This temperament provides these folks with a potentially strong appetite and fast metabolism, and a tendency to run hot—both physicality of an athletic body, blood pressure fluctuations, and vulnerability to dehydration. Body PartsIn classical astrological medicine, the entire zodiac was mapped out on the human body, with Leo prominent in their charts display the quality of courage or "heart" when meeting life with passion and confidence. This highlights the need for natives from this sign to take care of their heart and arteries caused by stress and high cholesterol. These folks need to keep their diets and exercise in balance with their love of celebrating life with good food and drink. They can keep their systems cool and stress levels low with calming, relaxing practices, fiber-rich fruits and vegetables, and good hydration. Herbal Allies Hawthorn Berry is a prime herbal ally, with its primary benefits being helpful, supportive, and healing for the heart. Loaded with antioxidants and anti inflammatory properties, Hawthorn is known to heal cardiac tissue after heart failure, helps lessen heart palpitations, and lowers blood pressure and cholesterol. Interestingly enough, Hawthorn extract can help promote hair growth and prevent hair loss when applied topically, making it an asset to preserve that beautiful mane!Rosehips are another ally, containing vitamin C and flavonoids that promote immunity and calm inflammation. Rosehips are known to strengthen the walls of the arteries and the connective tissue in the body, helping to tone up and lessen varicose veins. This helpful herb can help relieve hypertension and contains pectin that can help the body detox. Combined with Hibiscus, Rosehips makes a cooling tea to help soothe Leo's hot, fiery systems. Horsetail is an example of a Saturnian plant, bringing the medicine of "antipathy" to Leo's solar constitution. Rich in minerals and silica, Horsetail also strengthens hair and nails again, nurturing and protecting Leo's glamourous lifestyle. Second Decan of Leo: Jupiter Degrees 10 through 19 are ruled by Jupiter. This is a very strong, expansive decan, making those born with planets here the more enthusiastic, optimistic, and proud of all the Leos. They are likely to demonstrate the more social and friendly qualities of Leo than first and third, making them naturally persuasive and easy-going leaders. Third Decan of Leo: Mars/ the planet of conflict, war, and drive. Mars' influence here amps up the ambition and competitiveness of this sign and can make those born with planets in the third decan of this sign more drawn to ascension, power, and conquering their opponents. This decan gives people incredible courage and fearlessness that will help them go far in life but may lead them into conflict and power struggles at times. The Tarot card that correlates to Leo is number 8: Strength. The Strength card depicts a lion being calmly and gently subdued by a graceful, confident character. It speaks to a sense of true inner strength and courage when we bring our primal passions into balance and harmony. This card tends to appear when we need to take some kind of action in life that may require some force or initiative to get off the ground. It signifies being bold and decisive, yet aware that we may be met with some confrontation or resistance. This can be harmonized if we are non-reactive and conduct ourselves with integrity. Minor Arcana of the Tarot, the Suit of Wands, also known as Rods, is associated with the element of fire. Here we see the 3 decans of Leo assigned to the 5, 6, and 7 of wands, cards associated with the initiation of projects, the process of finding inspiration, and exhibiting courage in our spiritual and creative endeavors.5 of Wands: Saturn in LeoThe 5 of Wands: Saturn and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Strife." This card appears when we may be feeling angst and unrest, as it depicts a fray of youthful, unbounded energy that needs some authority or discipline to manage. The "Strife" card explores how "there is no limit to the second decan or face of Leo. It carries the sub-signature of Jupiter and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Victory". This card appears when we are about to take on a new challenge or quest, feeling supported and assured by our previous victories. The "Victory" card shows the stabilization of energy and a "completely balanced manifestation." (Book of Thoth)7 of Wands: Mars in LeoThe 7 of Wands corresponds to the third decan or face of Leo. It carries the sub-signature of Mars and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Valour." This dynamic card appears when we need to suddenly stand up and fight for what we believe in, yet are also facing the consequences of past actions. The "Valour" card represents an abrupt "departure from equilibrium." (Book of Thoth) Leo rising means that Leo was the zodiac sign that was on the eastern horizon at the time of your birth. As a Leo rising, you're ruled by fire, and your ruling planet is the sun, the planet of ego, identity and personality. Many people hold a wait-and-see or skeptical attitude toward the legendary 13th zodiac sign: is there really an Ophiuchus zodiac? What is the evidence of its existence? It is generally known that, the signs we belong to are located on the path of the Sun in the sky. Ophiuchus is another constellation on the ecliptic in addition to the twelve familiar ones. Unlike the other twelve constellations which are almost entirely contained in the ecliptic. That is why it is often ignored in previous astrology. Due to the wobble of the earth's axis over a cycle of 26,000 years as well as the movement of the solar system and stars, the position of the ecliptic in the sky also changes. Every two thousand years or so, the time of the Sun reaches a certain constellation, but also the thirteenth constellation, Ophiuchus. So Ophiuchus is one of 13 zodiac signs! According to scientific records, a British astronomer observed the astrological changes and discovered certain time error every year, which would be more and more significant over times. Because of this, a new constellation - Ophiuchus was born! Ophiuchus does exist in astronomy: it is one of the equatorial constellations. Looking from the Earth, you will find this constellation south of the Hercules, north of the Scorpio and Sagittarius, and west of the Milky Way. As the only constellation connecting with another constellation in the shape of rectangle diagonally crossed by the celestial equator Despite the short span over the Milky Way, Ophiuchus is not far from the Galactic Center located within the Sagittarius. Although the ecliptic crosses through Ophiuchus from November 29 to December 17 until it enters Sagittarius. Scorpic has no solar term but Ophiuchus does have a solar term Great Snow. Besides, Ophiuchus is actually not a new discovery. The earliest record of Ophiuchus been listed in the constellations? It is said that in ancient times, people believed that those under the Ophiuchus sign would bring bad luck and this crossed the bottom line of the Vatican. Therefore, the bad constellation was dropped by the Vatican. Zodiac, belongs to those born between the dates of October 23rd and November 21st. Learn all about the Scorpio Sign Below. Famous Scorpios Do you know that your zodiac sign is on the apparent path (the ecliptic with twelve constellations) of the Sun across the celestial sphere over the course of the year? Do you know that the Sun was already the matter over 2000 years ago. Now, the date of zodiac signs have changed and it is no longer consistent with the astronomical phenomenon. Due to the change of the earth's axis swings in a circle of 26000 years, the ecliptic position also changes in the sky. As a result, the time of the Sun arriving at a constellation would delay about one month every 2000 years. In addition to the twelve zodiac signs, the current ecliptic also spans the thirteenth constellation Ophiuchus which is located between Scorpio and Sagittarius. If you think you are under the Aquarius sign, you might be a Piscean while the original Scorpio also needs to be redesigned, perhaps only including people born on between November 23 and 29 while people born on between November 23 and 29 while people born on between November 23 and 29 while people born on between November 29 and December 17 should be under the Ophiuchus rather than Sagittarius sign. The constellation known as Cancer has its roots in many ancient civilizations, where it has been identified as various hard-shelled mythological creatures. In Egyptian belief, it was associated with the scarab, the symbol of immortality. The connection with the afterlife continues into Babylonian culture, where it has been identified as various hard-shelled mythological creatures. that was the guide to the passage through the underworld and death. The Crab makes an appearance in Greek legend, with its notable part in the tale of Hercules, to distract him and give the Hydra an advantage. When Karkinos bites Hercules on the foot, he kills him by cracking his shell. As a reward for risking his life to do Hera's bidding, Karkinos is placed in the heavens, to shine for eternity. In the western tropical zodiac, Cancer season begins on June 21, commencing the Summer Solstice in the Northern Hemisphere. daylight outweighing the night hours. From this point, the days slowly begin to decrease toward the Autumn Equinox, representing the second of the four cardinal signs of the zodiac, who all hold elemental energy of initiation and leadership at the beginning of the four seasons. Cancer season is the beginning of Summer, where the light and energy are in abundance. This definitive, nourishing seasonal quality is the root of Cancer's strong cardinal authority and nature as an archetype. Water ElementRuled by the moon, Cancer's element is water, the second heaviest element, thought by ancient astrologers to be the fluid, adaptive, yet a tangible form of matter. Water represents the moistening and cohering principle that binds and connects all forms of nature. Without it, nothing that takes a material form could "stick" together. Water fertilizes earth so that nature and creativity can incubate and bloom. Cancer's affinity for nurturance, protection, and leadership in melding people into family units are all akin to the consolidating connectivity of the night, a receptacle and reflector of the sun's vital rays, guiding us in the darkness. Classically, the moon was thought to be the protector of the earth, interceding between us and the bold, active, and divine rays for all life in her "sublunary realm" so that we are not overwhelmed or destroyed by their powers. One wonders if the ancients saw the moon's craters as evidence that she was shielding us from potential cosmic hits. These are where some of the maternal qualities of the moon were observed to be at work, giving the moon in Cancer a special potency and divinity while at home in the Crab's sign. In the watery and protective sign of cancer, the moon can be as nurturing, emotive, and as intuitive of a force on the psyche and in the cosmos, as she likes to be. Regardless of the gender they identify with, those with the moon in Cancer will have a strong maternal, protective, emotive, and psychic energy in their core nature.Detriment of SaturnRuled by the moon, Cancer is in polarity with the cardinal earth sign Capricorn. Ruled by Saturn, Capricorn is a contrast to moon-ruled Cancer, whose insular and emotive instincts wire this archetype to be innately maternal and intuitive. Imagine a stern and unyielding Saturn in Cancer's soft, sentimental, and somewhat out of their element in this fluid environment. This may simply mean that natives born with this placement may either tend to have protective barriers around their emotions, or they may blend Saturn's judgement with Cancer's emotiveness, to be inordinately defensive and self-protective. It can have a Saturnian effect on the moods of these natives, making them prone to bouts of sadness and depression. This placement could also cause the native to place many rules and restrictions around themselves when it comes to their emotional engagements with others, and they may be prone to holding long grudges if they are hurt or crossed. Saturn compensating in Cancer may also present a strong instinct to protect others who are vulnerable, in their communities, or their societies at large.Exaltation of JupiterJupiter, the planet of belief, benevolence, and opportunity, has a specially exalted place in Cancer's nurturing and protective qualities. This placement can combine to produce great teachers, parents, spiritual guides, and may amplify the Cancerian psychic abilities. Depending on how or where Jupiter in the moon's sign is placed in a person's birth chart, it can be a very lucky placement that offers prosperity and privileges to the native, that in their generosity they will no doubt share with others. Fall of MarsMars was said to be exalted in Capricorn by classical astrologers, where he can uniquely and constructively express his tenacious martial powers. When in the opposite sign of Cancer, Mars was said to be in his fall, which may not pose as strong of an adaptive challenge as a detriment might, vet still puts the planetary force somewhat out of its comfort zone. It points to ways that Mars' typically aggressive and divisive energies present as somewhat volatile, in that they often vacillate between being over or underutilized in the life of the native. As a sign, Cancer promotes inflaming, confronting, and healing, where Mars promotes inflaming, confronting, and take initiative. In the interest of not hurting others, Mars in Cancer natives may suppress, or deny their anger, causing it to fester and come out in untimely ways. The insight that natives with this placement gain in melding these very different energies are found in how they create balance and set appropriate boundaries when dealing with anger. They may have to find activities to vent their frustrations so that they do not become inordinately defensive, or overly protective of those that they love. This placement can also be seen as the use of martial talents in Cancerian ways. For example, Mars' affinity with fire and sharp knives blended with Cancer's love of nurturing, could produce passionate cooks and chefs. In the modern astrology system of the Twelve Letter Alphabet, each zodiac sign rules one of the twelve houses in the birth chart. This innovation was created by psychological astrologers to match sign affinities to related house topics. Cancer was assigned the fourth house of ancestry, roots, and home since Cancer's watery, emotive, and protective expressions are aligned with the concerns of this house. Since Cancer is ruled by the receptive and reflective moon, it invites a nurturing sub-signature to the fourth house of siblings, neighbors, and short-term travel in the birth chart. The third house was also called the house of "the goddess" by classical astrologers, meaning it was connected to longer, yearly solar perambulations and travels. By contrast, the moon, with its swift movement around the zodiac every month, was associated with shorter, more local travel, around one's village or neighborhood. The moon, as a result, has some special potency or "dignity" in the third house of the birth chart. Ruled by the moon, Cancer's archetypal traits are derived from its receptive, feminine, or yin qualities, making this sign oriented toward contemplation, and engagement with inner awareness. Alive in both a Cancer woman or Cancer man, those born with the Crab as their rising, sun, or moon sign have a sensitive, intuitive, and protective awareness in the core of their personality; an echo of the lifesupporting and sustaining energies of the Summer season. As a cardinal sign, Cancer takes leadership in the roles of being a nurturer, host, protector, and caretaker. Those born with the sign of the Crab prominent in their charts are focused on forming and maintaining family ties. nature. Strengths The primary Cancer strengths can be found in their kind, giving, and sympathetic natures. Always ready to host, and set a table, they can be counted on to feed and care for friends, family, and sympathetic natures need often long before they have articulated it themselves. The famous sideways walk of the Crab can be observed in the cautious way a Cancer native enters a space or social gathering. They tend to come in quietly, carefully surveying their surroundings, before they open and reveal their whole selves. This protective instinct makes Cancerians good at reading the emotional tone in a room, helping them anticipate danger or crisis early. There is always something familiar about those born under the sign of the Crab, and those with this sign rising, especially, give people the uncanny feeling they have met them before. This quality has roots in this archetype's connection to nurturing and building a home, often making people instantly feel at home with them. The ease, familiarity, and trust they inspire allow those who meet them to open up in quickly, saying to the Cancerian "I feel like I could tell anything" or "It's like I've known you my whole life." This uncanny quality serves the Crab natives well in their roles and professions, which usually have some healing or nurturing aspect to them. Cancer natives are usually steadfast and loval, and once you have been accepted into their hearts, and inner circle, they will be your friend for life. No matter what gender Cancerians identify with, they often have a strong matriarchal presence in their homes, communities, and workplaces. Cancer natives have great sympathy for the underdog and the downtrodden, and though usually quiet and peaceable, their claws come out when protecting the importance of strong emotional and energetic boundaries from a young age. Weaknesses Some potential weaknesses in the Cancer archetype are rooted in their great strengths. Though they love creating a comfortable home, they can become so emotionally and sentimentally connected to their space and their belongings, that it's hard to let go and make changes when needed. Their natural giving tendencies, if unbalanced, can cause natives from this sign to over-identify with being needed. They could be vulnerable to projecting their neediness onto others, by enabling codependent relationships. Cancerian emotional instincts can be protective, and hyper-vigilant when exploring the outer world. Gentle Cancer naturally inspires trust in others; however, this can be taken advantage of, causing those born under the sign of the Crab to get caught doing too much emotional labor, and stuck holding other's emotional baggage. Like all water signs, Cancer is vulnerable to absorbing toxic energies, so if they are in healing or counseling work of some kind, they need to have cleansing practices. Breathing exercises, saunas, smudging, and protective aura visualizations are all important to Cancer, yet these natives need to beware of a tendency to be clannish, exclusive, and slow to trust outsiders. There may be good reasons for this caution, but it is still important for Cancer natives to keep this reflex in check so that they don't hurt, reject, or alienate anyone who is feeling vulnerable. The strong matriarchal tendencies of this archetype are a powerful asset but can be overdone, showing up in bossy, smothering, and even manipulative tendencies if the Cancer native is trying too hard to control their environment. With the moon's connection to the brain, Cancerians are famous for their long memories, making them prone to holding grudges. sensitive Cancer children will be well-nurtured if they are allowed to come out of their shells on their own time. The voice of empathy, intuition, and sensitivity comes forward in the Cancer mantra: I feel. The Crab's sense of purpose is all about facilitating and nurturing emotional understanding, expression, and awareness. With strong cardinal leadership skills, these natives will be fulfilled by taking prominent roles as heads of families, households, communities, and are often involved in supporting the emotional well-being of those in their workplaces. We all have Cancer somewhere in our birth chart, so we can look to the house that the Crab rules to find the specific area of our life we approach in a nurturing and intuitive way, or where we need to call in an empathic Cancerian sensibility for material mastery. Cancer at WorkCancer's caring and comforting nature makes them uniquely suited for professions and roles, but will likely not be found in jobs that are high risk, stressful, or move at an accelerated pace. Some exceptions could be found in health care, where their attentiveness and vigilance in a crisis may be an asset, or when cooking in high energy kitchens. Otherwise, Cancers will enjoy peace, solitude, and intimate environments in which to do their work. They love belonging to a group but may prefer the one-to-one dynamic, where they can create a protected container and apply their undivided attention. It is very likely that by using their nesting instincts, these natives will find a way to work from home, or will have work that is connected to home visits. Should they work in an office or modern building, they will add cozy elements to their workspace to make it feel "homier." Their section of the staff room, or office refrigerator, will be brimming with snacks, teas, and their favorite flatware so that they feel nourished and prepared for their day. Cancer's connection to home has them overseeing many styles of accommodations and abodes in their professions. You may find them managing hotels, bed and breakfasts, or working as landlords, property managers, home inspectors, or realtors. The Cancerian maternal instincts also make these natives suited to all kinds of caretaker, and childcare roles. They may work in nursing homes, daycares, as nannies, and will likely find satisfaction in housekeeping and homemaking. The Crab's strong healing and caring tendencies make them suited for the many facets of our health care system. We could easily see them working as family doctors, pediatricians, and nurses. Cancer's connection with nurturing and protecting the young will likely lead many of these natives to teach children. They may do this through art and music in preschools and elementary schools. They may also use their creativity and storytelling powers as children's authors and illustrators. Social welfare and mental health are likely to be of interest to Cancer natives, as they can be suited to work that supports emotional welfare and mental health are likely to be of interest to Cancer natives, as they can be suited to work that supports emotional welfare and mental health are likely to be of interest to Cancer natives, as they can be suited to work that supports emotional welfare and mental health are likely to be of interest to Cancer natives, as they can be suited to work that supports emotional welfare and mental health are likely to be of interest to Cancer natives, as they can be suited to work that supports emotional welfare and mental health are likely to be of interest to Cancer natives, as they can be suited to work that supports emotional welfare and mental health are likely to be of interest to Cancer natives, as they can be suited to work that supports emotional welfare and mental health are likely to be of interest to Cancer natives, as they can be suited to work that supports emotional welfare and mental health are likely to be of interest to Cancer natives, as they can be suited to work that supports emotional welfare and mental health are likely to be of interest to Cancer natives, as they can be support to a support of the sup social work, and also in roles as therapists and counselors. The Crab's mystic side can emerge in the role of the local psychic, or medium, as they offer insight and comfort to spiritual seekers. Those born under the sign of the Crab delight in setting a table and creating a comfortable dining atmosphere. vocation path for the Cancer native. They may enjoy keeping this passion on an intimate, home-based level, or it could take form in roles as fine food merchants, restaurateurs, chefs, caterers, bakers, or even as servers or hosts. All signs have their creative side, and this can take many forms for the Cancerian. We may find it alive in talents for interior design, as well as home decorating. These natives may also be drawn to water sports like swimming and surfing, and they would make dependable protective lifeguards. When exploring overall compatibility, it's important to consider more than the sun sign, as the rising sign, moon and other planetary connections will tell the whole story. That being said, Cancer natives will tend to blend best with water signs and earth signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with fire signs the trickiest to relate to. Although Cancer's shy and cautious nature may benefit from collaborating with fiery warmth and enthusiasm, Mars-ruled Aries, especially, may be too brash and headstrong to relax and settle down with Cancer. Both are cardinal signs, so they may wrestle for leadership and control of their shared environment. Aries may have impatient and harsh words at the moment, but Cancer will never forget the burn. Sagittarius and Cancer share nothing modally or elementally in common. This pairing is unusual and may have many challenges set against it to truly work. Cancer is sentimental and home-based, where Sagittarius' brand of brutal honesty, and many misunderstandings will ensue. Leo and Cancer also have nothing elementally or modally in common, being in adjacent signs of the zodiac, so they may have a hard time relating and connecting romantically long-term. Leo is ruled by the outgoing sun, and Cancer also have nothing elementally or modally in common, being in adjacent signs of the zodiac, so they may have a hard time relating and connecting romantically long-term. attract" connection. This polarity is more likely to keep them forever as divided as the day is from the night. Air signs are speedy, swift, and social, which could be a breath of fresh air in Cancer's reflective and somewhat moody world, but intimately Cancer may find the air signs a bit too breezy and changeable to truly depend on. Gemini and Cancer do not share much in common, with the Twins being intensely social, and Cancer being intensely private. The Crab may often find they are soothing Gemini's frayed nerves and may have a hard time keeping up with their mental chatter. But the two may tire of this dynamic after a while and will need to respect each other's different rhythms to last long-term.Libra and Cancer can work well together, with Venusian and lunar natures blending more easily than with other air signs. Libra's social and artistic world doesn't seem to overlap much with Cancer's private life, but they could come together as co-hosts of beautiful and intimate dinner parties. Eventually, Cancer will need to withdraw and will seem moodier than upbeat Libra. They would need to learn how to navigate these emotional differences. Aquarius is ruled by stern and remote Saturn. Though Aquarius may benefit from Cancer's attention and care, it may not be natural for them to reciprocate what Cancer truly needs to feel secure. A potential pitfall presents if they are too much alike and struggle for control, or if they are having an intense mood at the same time They will likely have enough caring and empathy between them to work it out. Pisces broadens Cancer's receptive capacities by bringing spiritual and philosophical ideas to the relationship. This is a complementary pairing that is innately intuitive, mystical, and otherworldly. They will enjoy their privacy and solitude together and may collaborate easily on creative projects. Mars-ruled Scorpio can bring sexual magnetism to a relationship with Cancer, helping them open up to sensuality and explore potent themes of power and mystery together. Cancer, being a quite intense sign, is not intimidated by Scorpio's deep and moody nature. The Scorpion may be at times a little too taboo for shy Cancer, but this may be what they are attracted to, to help broaden their horizons. Earth and emotive water blend well. Cancer is Capricorn's polar opposite, bringing care and nurturing to Capricorn that they will sorely need. The two have an opposites attract connection, that may either complete the whole picture, or be too polarizing. Cancer enjoys creating a warm home, where Capricorn is often married to their work, so if they can blend each other out. Cancer and Virgo together are a potentially strong match. They will appreciate each other's conscientious, sensitive, and thoughtful natures and may collaborate well on a shared business in health or nutrition. Virgo adds detail and structure to Cancer's nurturing and generous life. Their lives and approaches mesh well, and they make natural companions. Cancer and Taurus share many affinities and may especially connect over their enjoyment of fine food, wine, and sensual pleasures. Venus-ruled Taurus draws the romantic lover out of moon ruled homebody Cancer, and the Crab appreciates Taurus' supportive, dependable nature. create a nurturing ambiance. In classical astrological medicine, four temperaments were connected to four vital fluids and 4 essential constitution types. Cancer is a water sign, and so is associated with the phlegmatic temperament, which was understood to be cold and moist. The phlegmatic temperament was thought to be connected to moisture and fats in the body, and the production of phlegm, which lubricates tissues and protects these from infection. Phlegmatic constitution, often being overproduced when Cancers fall ill, or if they become inactive or overly nourished. This represents a tendency for the phlegmatic constitution to become inactive or overly nourished. somewhat chilled and stagnant, physically and emotionally. Because of their tendency to mood swings, Cancer natives can become too clingy, sentimental, and other fluids in their bodies. Their tissues can become boggy, lax, and clogged with toxic emotional substances, building up too much and not being adequately cleaned out. Cancers, in particular, tend to be doubly phlegmatic, as their planetary ruler, the moon, adds another cold and moist layer to their constitution. As a result, it is important for Cancers to stay warm and active, and to guard against emotional eating that can cause them to feel sluggish. They may, however, have good powers of recuperation and regeneration, and will need lots of sleep to recharge. Body PartsIn classical astrological medicine, the entire zodiac was mapped out on the human body, with Cancer ruling over the stomach, brain tissue, and breasts. Being phlegmatic, and under the moon's rule, all moist and fatty tissues are connected to Cancer, as are organs that provide or absorb nourishment. This is why the stomach and the moon rule over the brain, the moon is connected to this maternal and nurturing sign. In medical astrology, both Mercury and the moon rule over the brain; the soft fatty tissue that forms the brain's mass. This is where Cancer's retentive powers and long memory were observed and understood according to this classical system. As a result, Cancers should focus on eating whole, unprocessed foods, and keep their bodies and lymphatic systems circulating toxins out of their fats and glands. Herbal Allies Marshmallow root is a truly lunar plant. It has a somewhat sweet, nourishing flavor, and has a lubricating, repairing, and protective effect on the body and tissues. It grows in what would be considered lunar conditions, in damp, cool mashes, where there is abundant moisture. If one were to be suffering from inflammation, irritation, or dehydration, this lunar plant contains moistening mucilage, a gel that cools and lubricates the respiratory and digestive tract. White willow bark has been regarded as a lunar plant since ancient times. Its dry, astringent qualities are constrictive, reducing swelling and excess moisture. fluid build-up.White willow bark can be chewed to relieve toothache and general pain and is known to contain salicin, an ingredient in Aspirin. Willow bark also contains flavonoids that help with the reduction of fever and inflammation. It is a known cramp and pain reliever for the moon-cycle, which can be potent for moon-ruled Cancerians.Mullein is traditionally a Saturnian plant that offers the medicine of antipathy to the damp, congested conditions that Cancer can suffer from. Its dry hairy leaves hint at its affinity for the cilia of the respiratory tract, that can become clogged with mucus in the phlegmatic constitution in illnesses that produce excess phlegm. Mullein tea and tinctures have been used to treat all manner of respiratory infections, including tuberculosis, asthma, and dry chronic coughs. It also contains soothing, mucilage ingredients that help make coughs more productive. Each of the twelve zodiac signs represents a thirty-degree slice of a 360-degree band of constellations, circling the earth. The thirty degrees of each sign can be further subdivided into three ten-degree decans or faces, each with its planetary sub-ruler placed around the zodiac in Chaldean order. These faces can be used for timing magical rituals when seeking to evoke and harness the moon's planetary power. In studying the Cancer personality, we can use the faces of the Crab to fine-tune the flavor and nuance of planets or points placed within these decanic degrees. First Decan of Cancer: Venus planets in the first decan. There may be a tendency to seek comfort and security in romantic relationships; with love and attraction taking on a soulful, healing, and spiritual importance to those with planets or points in this decan. Second Decan of Cancer: MercuryDegrees 10 through 19 of Cancer are ruled by Mercury. This may heighten and intellectual activity of those born with planets or placements in this decan. In the degrees, we may see some of the more literary Cancers emerge. Their communication style may be soothing and comforting, which makes them inclined toward counselling or therapist work. Third Decan of Cancer: The moonDegrees 20 through 29 of Cancer are ruled by the cool and receptive moon. This is the lunar domicile, enlightening the psychic and intuitive abilities of those born with planets or placements in this decan. We may see spiritual advisors, clairvoyants, but also great nurturers and matriarch emerge from this potent face of Cancer, which is an auspicious placement for lunar magic rituals. The Tarot card that correlates to Cancer is number 7: The Chariot. This card depicts a balanced and benevolent warrior, riding off on a journey or battle, with poise and calm. This is the card of the peaceful warrior, who is emotive, intuitive, but also a powerful protector and defender of the weak and vulnerable. This card appears when this archetype may need to be cultivated within us, or when we are about to embark on a new trip or project. The driver is depicted as harnessing and steering the horses of initiative, and receptivity. Upright, it is an encouraging card, that bodes well for acts of determination, courage, and emotional strength. The Chariot has echoes of the tover's card, the clear judgement of the cover's card, the clear judgement of th Justice card, and also hints at all of these qualities combined in the Chariot helping us triumph over the material vices of the polar opposite, the Devil card. Minor Arcana of the Tarot, the Suit of Cups is associated with the element of water. Here, we see the three decans of Cancer assigned to the 2,3, and 4 of Cups, cards associated with the beginning of an intuitive and relational cycle. These Cup cards help us focus on developing our receptive and reflective capacities, so that we may feel our way toward better self-understanding and emotional mastery.2 of Cups: Venus in CancerThe 2 of Cups corresponds to the first decan or face of Cancer. It carries the affectionate and benevolent sub-signature of Venus and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Love."Depicting two partnership between lovers, friends, or business collaborators. It hints at the emotional support and reciprocation needed to foster emotional trust and intimacy, and can symbolize marriage or the inception of a new business. The "Love" card shows "the harmony, radiating an intensity of joy and ecstasy..." (Book of Thoth)3 of Cups: Mercury in CancerThe 3 of Cups corresponds to the second decan or face of Cancer. It carries the swift and communicative sub-signature of Mercury and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Abundance." This card depicts three friends, dancing in celebration and camaraderie. It is a very social and creative card, that hints at a new level of collaboration in a harmonious, yet dynamic group. The "Abundance" card depicts "the fulfillment of the Will of Love in abounding joy. It is the spiritual basis of fertility." (Book of Thoth)4 of Cups: Moon in Cancer The 4 of Cups card corresponds to the third decan or face of Cancer. It carries the intuitive and receptive sub-signature of the moon and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Luxury." The number four is a stable number that suggests a time of withdrawing. The figure is depicted turning their emotional awareness inward, in order to disconnect from the outer world to recharge before moving forward. It can hint at boredom and stagnancy that can come from feeling emotionally dull, or unmotivated. The "Luxury" card implies "a certain weakness, an abandonment to desire." (Book of Thoth Cancer rising means that Cancer rising, you're ruled by water, and your ruling planet is the moon-the planet of deep emotions, intuition, fertility and childbirth. Aries Zodiac Sign Traits The first sign of the Zodiac, Aries are the trailblazers. Passionate and independent, Aries will never do something just because everyone else is doing it—a Ram needs to be 100 percent committed to the task at hand. Competitive to the max, the best way to motivate an Aries is to turn something into a contest. Aries will put everything they have (and then some) into winning. Loyal, smart, and impulsive, they always have multiple projects on their mind, and won't be satisfied until their work, social life, and personal lives line up exactly with the dream life they've envisioned. Those who are drawn to magnetic Aries may have trouble keeping up—but if they can, they'll have a friend for life. Heal your heart! Don't miss this chance to eliminate doubts with a 3 minute FREE reading. An Aries sign will always tell you what they're thinking, with a frankness that may occasionally border on rudeness. But even if an Aries seems overly blunt with their opinion, that's only because Rams value honesty above all else. And it works both ways. While an Aries may be the first to compliment you for a job well done. Rams may also have a short fuse. That fiery temper can be an asset. When an Aries is angry, they'll never play the passive card. But for people who don't know them well, their temper can be a turn off. Learning to chill before they Tweet their thoughts to the world—is a lifelong process for Rams. When it comes to love, Aries signs are all about initial attraction. They can sense chemistry in the first sentence uttered by a potential partner. Forthright and unabashed, an Aries will do everything in their power to go after someone they want. Sometimes, they need to learn how to slow down and foster long-term connections. They don't care what anyone else thinks, and can tune into their intuition and dreams in a heartbeat. Rams never need a plus one—they love their own company, and consider going solo to the movies a rare treat. Aries' Greatest Challenges The world according to an Aries makes so much sense that they have a hard time listening to, much less accepting, alternative viewpoints. Slowing down is also tough. A Ram's mind goes a million miles a minute, and slowing down for others can be excruciating. But when it comes to maintaining relationships, Aries must learn to adapt and embrace other ways of doing, being, and seeing. Aries' secret weapon is iron, one of the strongest elements. Weld, cast, machine, forge, temper, harden, or anneal it, iron can take on a seemingly limitless range of shapes and qualities. For an Aries, an iron-rich diet can boost confidence and performance. The Gemini zodiac symbol of the Twins is based on the half brothers, also known as the Dioscuri, were the children of Leda, who was seduced by Zeus in the form of a swan. Ledaber 2010 Ledaber 201 laid two eggs as a result of this union, and Castor and Pollux, were said to have hatched from each of these along with their twin sisters, Helen and Clytemnestra. Castor and Pollux; a half-god as the progeny of Zeus, sharing his immortality with Castor. The two were then placed in the heavens as the enduring Gemini-Twins constellation, immortalizing the myth that adds to the magical and mysterious duality of this sign's archetype. In the western tropical zodiac, Gemini season begins on May 22, commencing at the end of spring in the Northern Hemisphere. It's a time of year when the days are getting longer toward the summer solstice, where the proportion of daylight outweighs the duration of the night. There is a feeling of change in the air as the spring season heats up, and the hints of the oncoming hot, active summer season are beginning to take hold of the weather. Mutable ModeGemini is the first of the four mutable signs of the zodiac, who all hold an elemental energy of change and adaptation at the transitional end of the four seasons. Gemini's airy and mutable presence appears to clear the stage for the next seasonal performance and helps describe this sign's restless, change-seeking, and curious role in the zodiac. The Twins' affinity for gathering information, making social connections, and exploring the world with childlike curiosity—and at times mischief—are all activities akin to the active, flowing air element. In classical astrology, Mercury was assigned rulership of both Gemini and Virgo. Gemini was thought to be the diurnal/day home of Mercury, an adaptive air sign that allows Mercury to be as fluid, curious, and analytical as it likes to be when placed there. After the moon, Mercury is the fastest planet in our solar system and goes retrograde most often, giving it the reputation for being erratic, changeable, and unpredictable. Those born with Mercury in Gemini may be known for their mental restlessness, swift intellect, and wit. This placement often bestows the native with the ability to learn quickly and assimilate large volumes of information easily. When it comes to Mercurial matters in life, those born with Mercury in its domicile seem to have an advantage when it comes to adaptability and communications and language in general. Detriment of JupiterGemini is in polarity to the mutable fire sign Sagittarius. Ruled by Mercury, Gemini loves to analyze, preferring to focus on gathering small. fascinating details, sometimes using the second second second second second second second second second mischief to tease, prod, and disrupt. Sagittarius, however, is ruled by Jupiter and likes to affirm, expand, and explore universal truths. As a result, Jupiter and its expansive ways are traditionally thought to be in detriment or at a disadvantage when placed opposite from its home in Gemini's detail-focused world. It's a placement that the planet of benevolence and belief would have to compensate for to be in, finding creative ways to open big-picture opportunities without getting lost in the minutiae. This combination could also present Jupiter's energy of abundance being put into overdrive, by wanting to endlessly collect details and facts, as though there could never be enough. Jupiter in Gemini may at times feel challenged to hold a perception of multiplicity in balance with a sense of wholeness. In the modern astrology system of the twelve houses in the birth chart. This innovation was created by psychological astrology system of the twelve houses in the birth chart. topics. Gemini was assigned the third house of short-distance travel, communication, and siblings, since it's restless, changeable, and curious and lively sub-signature to the significance of the third house. The First HouseIn classical astrology, Gemini's planetary ruler, Mercury, was said to find its "joy" in the first house of self and identity in the birth chart. Associated with our bodies and sense of purpose, this house symbolizes a merging of spirit and matter to form a unique being in the world. In traditional astrology, the degree of the rising sign was found inside the first whole sign house, dividing it into a portion that was above the horizon, and a portion that was below it at the moment of our birth. This is connected to the Hermetic alchemical axiom "as above, so below," a phenomenon that is observed and practiced in the magical arts. Magic and its mysteries are given to us by the god Hermes, who is associated with Mercury, making it able to wield special potency as a bridge between the heavens and earth from the first house. Gemini's archetypal traits are derived from its active, masculine, or yang qualities, making this sign oriented toward assertive engagement with the outer world. Alive in both a Gemini woman or Gemini man, those born with the Twins as their rising, sun, or moon sign have a curious energy in their core personality, like swift, adaptive Mercury within themselves. As a mutable sign, Gemini holds the power to be a change-maker, giving those with prominent Gemini in their charts a natural affinity for adaptation, exploring ideas, languages, and information, as well as socializing and communicating to form new pathways of awareness. Natives from this sign can be thought of as the "pollinators" of the zodiac, as they like to swiftly graze from person or topic to topic top skills. Being born with a curious and playful disposition, these folks usually find it easy to feel engaged with the world around them. Being influenced by Mercury's swift and analytical nature, they rarely succumb to boredom and are usually able to propel themselves outward in life with an insatiable zeal for discovering new treasures of information. The Gemini native has a unique "shape-shifting" ability, as the Twins' symbolic duality hints at this sign's affinity for adaptability in utilizing their multidimensional talents. They are able to blend into any environment easily, taking on the customs of local culture and language. Folks born under the sign of the Twins tend to be fun-loving, social, and lighthearted. They excel at connecting people to the right people, so that resources, skills, and information can be disseminated in their communities effectively. A Gemini may have you sized up immediately, with a keen instinct for what buttons to push when trying to elicit a reaction from you. With this skill, this sign reminds us that life is a play and that we shouldn't take ourselves too seriously. Weaknesses or potential blind spots for Gemini are rooted in their great strengths. These folks are known for their facile mind and intelligence, but this can lead them into a tendency to be overly intellectual. They may lean too much on encyclopedic knowledge and need to learn how to process, assimilate, and apply this information in a tangible, embodied, and useful way. With keen, curious minds, they may have a short attention span, wanting to dance on the shiny surface of discovery, rather than committing to learning one subject with depth. Being a mutable air sign, shape-shifting and change feel natural for them, but it may leave others with an uncanny feeling that they never know who the Gemini native really is. This can give this sign the reputation for being non-committal, flaky, or even untrustworthy. These folks are typically fun-loving, lighthearted, and sociable, but this can lead them to be emotionally evasive, using humor to distract or deflect from their deeper feelings. The Mercurial tendencies of these folks to be social connectors can become imbalanced if the native is not caring for themselves, causing them to feel spun-out, anxious, spread thin, and devitalized. Gemini's witty and mischievous talent for button-pushing can become annoying, relentless, and even cruel if not measured with a healthy sense of social boundaries, respect, and compassion. Children born under this sign will be nurtured and well-resourced if they are guided to breathe deeply, have patience, and concentrate on one task at a time as much as they can, before dashing off to the next attraction. The clever voice of curiosity, inventiveness, and thirst for knowledge comes forward in the Gemini mantra: I think. This mantra could even be extended into "I think, therefore, I am," highlighting this sign's sense of purpose being bent toward discovery and expanding their mental awareness. Mercury is named for the messenger god that ruled over currency flow, trade, and merchants, so Gemini's purpose is often tied to expediting communications and democratizing access to information and resources. Those with the archetype of the Twins prominent in their birth charts will gain enormous satisfaction when being able to move freely, with many active outlets for their restless nature. great teachers or lecturers, with endless sources of information to draw from. Gemini at WorkGemini's keen mind and curiosity make them uniquely suited for professions where they are called on to sort, analyze, and perform multifaceted functions. Their careers need to be mentally stimulating enough to occupy their kinetic intelligence and keep them busy enough to channel their restless energies. This sign's wit and sociability will likely be their strong suit, making jobs where they can communicate, teach, and facilitate understanding between people the best. This could manifest in many professions, especially those where the analysis and translation of details is a key feature. Like all the air signs, Gemini needs novelty, activity, movement, and space, so will not be content for long in the same location, unless of course, that location is a library full of information to study and absorb! Mercury, and the signs it rules are connected to transportation, so Gemini jobs may involve travel and operating vehicles that get us from point A to point B. The Twins have the opposite problem that most people have, in that they rarely get caught in a rut and need to be motivated. If anything, their workweek needs to have some structure, routine, and downtime scheduled in it to remind these swift-footed folks to ground and recharge. communication, a natural vocational fit could be found in language translation. With a strong likelihood that the Gemini native is multi-lingual naturally, they would have great satisfaction in facilitating understanding. Other versions of this talent could also be fulfilled in studying linguistics, as well as speech therapy. Writing in all its forms is a natural fit for the Twins, as authors, journalists, and playwrights. They also delight in refining manuscripts, making editorial and proofreading work another natural fit. Geminis often have a keen interest in communications technology and can be found producing many forms of media, like film, television, and online news platforms. Mercurial folks are innately social and entertaining, which draws them to organize and even perform at artistic events themselves. Chances are, your local bookstore is owned by a Gemini, who delights in sourcing and distributing the latest publications. It may even be a way to fulfill a personal addiction by being surrounded by so many books! Publishing books and magazines is another form this interest could take as well. Since natives from this sign are great multi-taskers, they may enjoy being a receptionist for a large firm by keeping the schedule straight, taking messages, and connecting incoming phone calls efficiently. Another similar version of this role could be as a personal assistant to a prominent person. Folks from this sign will know how to prioritize and source what is needed by being able to commit much to memory on the fly. Motion and speed are thrilling for Gemini natives, who may make excellent bike couriers or delivery persons. They will also likely excel at being friendly and chatty bus or taxi drivers, or even pilots, and will take pride in finding the fastest routes for any journey while entertaining you along the way.Lastly, being a "jack-of-all-trades" is often a theme in the lives of folks from the sign, so it wouldn't be surprising to learn that they aspire to follow many of the vocations on the list, perhaps even a few at a time! In astrology, when it comes to compatibility, it's important to take more than the sun sign into consideration, as other planetary cross-connections are key in telling the whole story in all kinds of relationships. That being said, Gemini natives will tend to blend best with air signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with water signs. Fire signs Gemini will typically find a complementary connection with fire signs, as they will understand each other's active, spontaneous natures. Air feeds fire, stoking it to grow and become more alive, so impulsive Aries will likely appreciate Gemini's busy and mobile energy. Leo and Gemini will make a fun-loving, sociable pair, however, Leo may want more individual attention from endlessly curious Gemini than they can give at times. The sign of the Twins brings playfulness, curiosity, and mischief to Sagittarius' adventurous life, and the two can have a complimentary or polarizing relationship. Where Sagittarius' adventurous life, and the two can have a complimentary or polarizing relationship. The two may egg each other on and will need to learn when enough is enough. Air signs are a natural fit for Gemini's stimulating, interconnected world. Aquarius and Gemini will enjoy conversing endlessly, sharing ideas in a harmonious, although largely intellectual relationship. Aquarius' contrarian nature may come to the surface, however, to test the validity and depth of Gemini's novel claims. Gemini with Gemini could be fun, with the two relating easily to the other's curious approach toward life. They may not be able to stay put together long enough to bond in a consistent manner, but this may suit their free-spirited and playful natures just fine in the end. Water signs Water signs bring vulnerability and emotional intelligence to help this airy and active sign to tap into their deeper wells of feeling. Cancer will be very good at caring for Gemini, which they will love, but Cancer may prefer to keep a nurturing home base while Gemini is busy connecting socially and multitasking. Pisces broadens the Twins' receptive capacities by bringing spiritual and philosophical awareness to their lives. Pisces, however, may be too private and sensitive to endure Gemini's hyperactive, button-pushing tendencies, and may retreat the more Gemini prods. Mars-ruled Scorpio can bring sexual magnetism to a relationship with Gemini, but the two may share very little in common in the end. Scorpio's jealous tendencies may be triggered by Gemini's dispersive energies, they may be the hardest for those born under the sign of the Twins to relate to. Capricorn, the authoritative cardinal earth sign, will be a pragmatic partner for Gemini to dependable and loving, may be a bit too stubborn and rooted to roll with Gemini's ever-adapting plans. Virgo and Gemini can make a surprisingly good, if unlikely pair, both bonded by a shared Mercury rulership. Both signs, however, are prone to nervousness and anxiety, that the other will tend to exacerbate. Virgo needs their environment orderly to help calm their nerves, while Gemini may want to change their environment on impulse to channel their nervous energy, creating tension for both parties involved. In classical medical astrology, there were four temperaments that were connected to four vital fluids and four essential constitution types. As an air sign, Gemini is associated with the sanguine temperament, which was thought to be hot and moist, and connected to the production of blood. The sanguine constitution was considered to be naturally healthy and resilient, being connected to the youthful phase of life, and the spring season. Sanguine folks typically have a cheery disposition, lean body shapes, and are naturally necessary disposition, lean body shapes and anxiety. may not experience many health challenges until their later years. At this time, issues related to blood pressure, or blood stagnation may arise when the naturally high sanguine metabolism starts to slow down. Body PartsIn astrological medicine, the entire zodiac was mapped out on the human body, with symmetrical, dual Gemini ruling over the shoulders, arms, and hands. This connects the Gemini archetype to their dexterous and facile natures. This area of the body is emphasized as being uniquely mobile and able, but also sensitive to overwork and injury. Internally, Gemini rules over the lungs, another dual, symmetrical system that interestingly enough receives and expels air in our vital breathing process. Those with the sign of the Twins prominent in their birth charts will need to care for their lung health by protecting themselves from lung infections and irritations. A focus on deep breathing to stay calm will be a huge asset to them, as Mercury's signs tend to be prone to nervousness and anxiety. This nervousness can lead to digestive upsets, so eating vegetables like carrots, parsley, and fennel will promote gut health and digestive elimination. Herbal Allies Lavender is a prime Gemini herbal ally. It grows in warm, dry environments and is itself a dry plant, which can help balance any excess moisture in the sanguine constitution. Its soothing aromatic fragrance is calming, and its oils are used in aromatherapy to cure this sign's anxiety and relieve cramping and tension. It has an opening and clearing effect on the body, warming the head, calming fears and worries, and encouraging sleep. Fennel is related to carrots and its stalks and seeds are usually used for their carminative, digestive support and gas clearing qualities. Fennel bears a sweet aromatic fragrance and when cooked with other foods, it helps to make them more digestible. Its fine green stalks resemble the bronchioles of the lungs and branches of the nervous system. This morphological clue lets us know that it is helpful to clear congestion, blockages, and stagnation in the breathing passages of this sign's sensitive lungs. Parsley is another fine green Mercury plant whose delicate branching leaves resemble the interconnectivity of the body. Parsley is thought to be moderately hot and dry, warming up cold, boggy tissue conditions. It also warms the stomach, liver, and spleen, and is a known diuretic, meaning it helps promote urination to clear water retention. It is also carminative, helping to clear digestive bloating and gas in the anxious Gemini digestive system. Each of the twelve zodiac signs represents a thirty-degree band of constellations, circling the earth. The thirty degrees of each sign can be further subdivided into three ten-degree decans, or faces, each with its own planetary sub-ruler placed around the zodiac in Chaldean order. These decans can be used for timing magical rituals when seeking to evoke and harness Mercury's planetary power. In studying the Gemini to fine-tune the flavor and nuance of planets or points placed within these decanic degrees. First Decan of Gemini: JupiterDegrees 0 through 9 of Gemini are ruled by Jupiter. This is the "detriment" of the benevolent guru planet, making those with intellectual focus and discipline. Personality-wise, the first decan of Gemini

can be more analytical and inclined toward gathering and sharing information than the other faces of Gemini. This makes them potentially great storytellers and teachers, but can also amplify their tendency to be overly focused on accumulating information and knowledge. stream of information can be channeled. Second Decan of Gemini: MarsDegrees 10 through 19 of Gemini are ruled by Mars, making those born with planets here more disruptive and antagonizing side of the Gemini nature present, where their great knowledge and intelligence is used to goad others into debates. It can even simply be expressed as a way to keep the Gemini mischievously amused when misdirected. Those born with prominent planets or points in this decan may need to find healthy ways to channel their especially active and restless natures. Third Decan of Gemini: SunDegrees 20 through 29 of Gemini are ruled by the sun, the star of vitality, radiance, and confidence. Here, the sun's influence potentially warms up and amplifies the Twins' naturally playful, active, and sociable nature. Those with prominent planets or points in the third decan of Gemini may be more publicly visible, with natural gifts for building and leading their community. Where the first decan of Gemini may be more inclined to take the spotlight, as an entertainer or public speaker. The Tarot card that correlates to Gemini is number 6: The Lovers. Showing a pair of people in partnership, or connecting in love and attraction, this card carries echoes of the Twins' sense of self, and the other, in harmony. We may be weighing the pros and cons of collaboration, with our sense of autonomy and independence. The Lovers card reminds us of the interdependent nature of life, and the relational facet that is alive in us all. Minor Arcana 8, 9, and 10 of Swords is associated with the element of air. Here, we see the three decans of Gemini assigned to the 8, 9, and 10 of Swords cards, associated with the management of intelligence and rational, discerning thought. These cards depict an important passage when working to harness the power of the mind, by developing mastery with a keen sense of generation.8 of Swords: Jupiter and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Interference." This card appears when we are experiencing a hindrance or blockage in our thought processes. We may feel hemmed in or nailed down and mentally immobilized by theories and constructs that "interfere" with our ability to see the issue clearly. The "Interference" card highlights a "lack of persistence in matters of the intellect and the will constantly being thwarted by accidental interference." (Book of Thoth)9 of Swords: Mars in Gemini. It carries the confrontational sub-signature of Mars and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Cruelty." This card appears when we are facing fears and mental anguish, or are dealing with the effects of inflicting or receiving verbal wounds. The "Cruelty" card symbolizes that "consciousness has fallen into a realm unenlightened by reason... the world of the unconscious, primitive instincts." (Book of Thoth)10 of Swords: Sun in GeminiThe 10 of Swords corresponds to the third decan, or face of Gemini. It carries the sub signature of the sun and was referred to in the Book of Thoth as the card of "Ruin." This card appears when some process or work has come to an irreversible end. It is a reminder of the disconnect and loss that can occur when we become too aloof and remote from our emotional dimensions. By not connecting to our intuition, we may have overcommitted our energies, and are now crashing under the weight of being mentally "the ruin of the intellect, and even of all mental and moral qualities." (Book of Thoth) Gemini rising means that Gemini was the zodiac sign that was on the eastern horizon at the time of your birth. There is something quite fun about learning all the zodiac signs and their characteristics, especially when it comes to pointing out characteristics, especially when it comes to astrology, it is often the most popular. Meanings and How to Use Them As we mentioned before, the zodiac signs are often both entertaining, while also their archetypal nature helps give us a sense of purpose and understanding about the roles that we play in the universe. It helps us decipher the more difficult questions of our lives; What is our purpose in this world? How do we best deal with problems? How can I be my best self? And while these questions are extremely nuanced, and often require lots of introspection and self-understanding (which is the most difficult and simultaneously rewarding task we can achieve in our lives), it means that we cannot rely on astrology to give us all the answers. On a universal level, astrology makes us believe that each part of humanity has a purpose. And while on a personal level, astrology can be insightful - on a universal level, it makes us believe that each part of humanity has a purpose. What an Aries starts, Taurus knows how to finish, and Gemini can communicate and express. Pisces dreams of the fantastic pulled from their inner depths, while Aquarius seeks to decipher and make real the dreams of all of humanity. Even when they have rather fantastic stories, the charming way they tell them can make those stories convincing. Virgos are curious people, and they have a natural gift for research - whether it comes to assignments, or even people. They also often have great memory and a talent for intuition. They make for excellent team members in both work and social situations. They love to collaborate, although their sometimes critical nature can annoy others when those criticisms are not understood. Read more details about Virgo here Libra Zodiac Sign The Scales September 23 - October 22 The zodiac sign Libra is thrives when their needs of balance, justice, and stability are met. They are charming creatures that somehow always surround themselves with a sense of beauty and harmony. Admittedly, some of them can go to extremes searching for that harmony - which can make their situations unreasonable or unhealthy. Their ruling planet is Venus meaning that Libras are nurturing, caring, and they can make great defenders of the downtrodden. Sometimes, they can be shy if they find difficulties in coming out of their shell and letting their guard down. Despite their more introverted side they still love a good debate. Read more details about Libra here Scorpio Zodiac Sign The Scorpion October 23 - November 21 Unfortunately, those born under the Scorpio zodiac sign are often misunderstood. They are quite bold, with intense personalities and feelings that hide underneath their cool exterior. They are capable people that can complete great and massive projects with control and confidence. Their intensity when approaching a situation means that they can surmount almost all obstacles if they can truly put their mind to the task. Many Scorpios have an unshakable focus when they need to call on it. However, they are often secretive, seeming withdrawn and uninterested, when they are actually keenly observing. Read more details about Scorpio here Sagittarius Zodiac Sign The Centaur November 22 - December 21 The Sagittarius Zodiac Sign often gains the reputation of the philosopher among their fellow zodiac signs. They do have a great ability to focus, but this may be surprising since many of them love exploring and wandering the world, tasting all the pleasures of life. From an early age, they must learn how to channel their energy or else they risk stretching themselves out too thin going in too many directions. They often are hasty individuals and lack patience. When they encounter failure they can sometimes make a sudden comeback, much to the surprise of others. While they are loyal friends, they may find it hard to commit as this can run counter to their desire for freedom and expansion. Read more details about Sagittarius here Capricorn Zodiac Sign The Goat December 22 - January 19 Those born under the Capricorn zodiac sign are talented at applying their keen intelligence and ambition to practical matters. Stability and order are important to them - and this makes them good organizers. Their goals are often lofty, and they achieve them slowly - but purposefully, and systematically. They are gifted with a sharp intuition, although they can be rather secretive about what they perceive. They are patient with themselves - they have confidence that they can accomplish all their goals if they follow their step-by-step plan. They are responsible people that often take the heavy burden of others - whether willingly, or just because they are so capable. However, they find it difficult to share their own troubles and can struggle with depression if they don't learn how to express their feelings. Read more details about Capricorn here Aquarius 20 - February 18 Aquarius often comes off as an oddball - they have quirky personalities and quietly go about accomplishing their goals in quiet, and unorthodox ways. Oftentimes, just because Aquarius chooses to take the path less traveled, the results of their eccentric methods are surprisingly effective. They are the humanitarians of the zodiac, taking up banners for the greater good of humanity. Many of them are also easy going and their peculiarity alongside their curious nature make them fast friendships. Sometimes, if they don't strive to motivate themselves, they can succumb to laziness. Many are often gifted with a strong sense of art and poetry. Many of them have extremely vivid inner lives - filled with fantasy, magic and wonder. They may find it hard to express that inner life, meaning that many of them are introverts. They are honest, compassionate, and trustworthy but they can be taken advantage of. Beneath their quiet exterior, Pisces has an intense determination, which helps them transcend any obstacles that come their way. Read more details about Pisces here. Anatomical Zodiac Man from the Très Riches Heures du Duc de Berry In Western astrology, astrological signs are the twelve 30-degree orbit around the Sun. The signs enumerate from the first day of spring, known as the First Point of Aries, which is the vernal equinox. The astrological signs are the twelve 30-degree sectors that make up Earth's 360-degree sectors that make up Earth signs are Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius, and Pisces. The Western zodiac originated in Babylonian astrology, and was later influenced by the Hellenistic culture. Each sign was named after a constellation the sun annually moved through while crossing the sky. This observation is emphasized in the simplified and popular sun sign astrology. Over the centuries, Western astrology's zodiacal divisions have shifted out of alignment with the constellations they were named after by axial precession[1] of the Earth while Hindu astrology (i.e. a system of omina based on celestial appearances) was developed in Chinese and Tibetan cultures as well but these astrologies are not based upon the zodiac but deal with the whole sky. Astrology is a pseudoscience.[3] Scientific investigations of the theoretical[4] basis and experimental verification of claims[5] have shown it to have no scientific validity or explanatory power. More plausible explanations for the apparent correlation between personality traits and birth months exist, such as the influence of seasonal birth in humans. According to astronomy, celestial phenomena relate to human activity on the principle of "as above, so below", so that the signs are held to represent characteristic modes of expression.[6] Scientific astronomy used the same sectors of the ecliptic as Western astrology until the 19th century. Various approaches to measuring and dividing the sky are currently used by differing systems of astrology, although the tradition of the Zodiac's names and symbols remain mostly consistent. Western astrology measures from Equinox and Solstice points relating the sky are currently used by differing systems of astrology. to equal, longest, and shortest days of the tropical year), while Hindu astrology measures along the equatorial plane (sidereal year). Main articles: Zodiac and History of a sign and they are separated by 30°. The intersection of the celestial equator and the ecliptic define the equinoctial points: First Point of Aries () and First Point of Aries () and P'), intersect the ecliptic at 0° Cancer () and 0° Capricorn (). In this illustration, the Sun is schematically positioned at the start of Aquarius (). Western astrology is a direct continuation of Hellenistic astrology as recorded in Ptolemy's Tetrabiblos in the 2nd century. Hellenistic astrology in turn was partly based on conceptual construction.[7] This division of the ecliptic in twelve equal sectors is a Babylonian tradition. the ecliptic originated in the Babylonian "ideal calendar" found in the old compendium MUL.APIN. In a way, the zodiac is the idealisation of an ideal lunar calendar. By the 4th century BC, Babylonian astronomy and its system of celestial omens influenced the culture of ancient Greece, as did the astronomy of Egypt by late 2nd century BC. This resulted, unlike the Mesopotamian tradition, in a strong focus on the birth chart of the individual and the creation of Horoscopic astrology, employing the use of the Ascendant (the rising degree of the ecliptic, at the time of birth), and of the twelve houses. Association of the astrological signs with Empedocles' four classical elements was another important development in the characterization of the twelve signs. The body of the Hellenistic astronomical tradition not only in the West but also in India and the Islamic sphere and has remained a reference for almost seventeen centuries as later traditions made few substantial changes to its core teachings. The following table shows the approximate dates of the twelve astrological signs, along with the classical[9] and modern[10] rulerships of each sign. By definition Aries starts at the First Point of Aries which is the location of the Sun at the March equinox. The precise date of the Equinox varies from year to year but is always between 19 March and 21 March. The consequence is the start date of Aries and therefore the start date of Aries and therefore the start date of the Equinox. astrology table enumerates the twelve divisions of celestial longitude with the Latin names. The longitude intervals, are treated as closed for the first point of Taurus, not part of Aries. The signs are occasionally numbered 0 through 11 in place of symbols in astronomical works. Negative signs make up the earth and water triplicities. [20] The modalities: cardinal fixed, and mutable.[21] Since each modality comprehends four signs, they are also known as Quadruplicities.[22][23] For example, the sign Aries is found in the first month of spring in the Northern Hemisphere, so practitioners of astrology describe it as having a cardinal modality.[24] The combination of element and modality provides the signs with their unique characterizations. For instance, Capricorn is the cardinal earth sign, impressing its association with action (cardinal modality) in the material world (earth element).[25][26][27] Modalities of astrological signs Modality 3 primes Alt. symbols[28] Keywords[29][30] Fire signs Water signs Earth signs Cardinal Action, dynamic initiative, great force Aries Cancer Libra Capricorn Fixed Resistance to change, great willpower, inflexible Leo Scorpio Aquarius Pisces Gemini Virgo Main article: Triplicity Further information: Classical element The planets' sign positions on May 16, 2012. Additional symbols may be added to represent apparent retrograde motion (R), or apparent stationary moment (shift from retrograde to direct, or vice versa: S). The Greek philosopher Empedocles identified fire, earth, air, and water as elements in the fifth-century BC. He explained the nature of the universe as an interaction of two opposing principles, love and strife, which manipulate the elements are equal, the same age, rule their own provinces, and possess their own individual character. Empedocles said that those born with nearly equal proportions of the elements are more intelligent and have the most exact perceptions.[31][32] The elemental categories are called triplicities because each classical element is associated with three signs[22][23] The four astrological elements are also considered as a direct equivalent to interpretations by studying the balance of elements in the location of planets (especially the Sun's and Moon's ascendant signs) and the position of angles in the chart.[36] Triplicities of the four elements Polarity Element Symbol[37] Keywords Sign triplicity Positive Fire Assertion, drive, willpower Aries, Leo, Sagittarius Air Communication socialization, conceptualization Gemini, Libra, Aquarius Negative Earth Practicality, caution, material world Taurus, Virgo, Capricorn Water Emotion, empathy, sensitivity Cancer, Scorpio, Pisces See also: Domicile (astrology) Representation of the western astrological signs in a 1716 Acta Eruditorum table illustration Rulership is the connection between planet and correlated sign and house.[38] The conventional rulerships are as follows:[9][39] Aries: Mars Taurus: Venus Gemini: Mercury Cancer: Moon Leo: Sun Virgo: Mercury Libra: Venus Scorpio: classically Mars, Pluto starting in the 20th century Sagittarius: Jupiter Capricorn: Saturn Aquarius: Classically Saturn, Uranus starting in the 20th century Pisces: classically Jupiter, Neptune starting in the 20th century A traditional belief of astrology, known as essential dignity, is the idea that the Sun, Moon, and planets are more powerful and effective in some signs to be weak or difficult to operate in because their natures are thought to be in conflict. These categories are Dignity, Detriment, Exaltation, and Fall. Dignity and Detriment: A planet is strengthened or dignified if it falls within the sign that it rules. In other words, it is said to exercise Rulership of the sign. For example, the Moon in Cancer is considered "strong" (well-dignified). If a planet is in the sign opposite which it rules (or is dignified in), it is said to be weakened or in Detriment (for example, the Moon in Capricorn). This may also be termed a "debility".[40] In traditional astrology, other levels of Dignity are recognised in addition to Rulership. These are known as Exaltation, Triplicity, Terms or bounds, and Face or Decan, which together are known as describing a planet's Essential dignity, the quality of one's true nature.[40] Exaltation and Fall: A planet is also strengthened when it is in its sign of exaltation. In traditional horary astrology, this denotes a dignity just less than rulership. significance(s) the dignity of an honoured guest: the centre of attention but constrained in power. Examples of planets in their Exaltation are: Saturn (Libra), Nercury (Virgo, although some disagree with this classification), Mars (Capricorn), Jupiter (Cancer). A planet in the opposite sign of this is in its fall, and thus weakened, perhaps more than Detriment.[40] There is discord as to the signs in which the two extra-Saturnian planets may be considered to be exalted.[41] Planetary positions in Western astrology Planet (Symbol) in dignity in detriment in exaltation at fall Sun () Leo Aquarius Aries Libra Moon () Cancer Capricorn Taurus Scorpio Mercury ( Gemini and Virgo Sagittarius and Pisces Virgo Mars () Libra and Scorpio Libra and Sc astrologer considers Accidental dignity of planets. This is placement by house in the chart under examination. Accidental dignity is the planet's "ability to act". So we might have, for example, Moon in Cancer, dignified by rulership, is placed in the 12th house it would have little scope to express its good nature.[42] The twelfth is a cadent house as are the third, sixth and ninth and planets in these houses are considered weak or afflicted. On the other hand, Moon in the first, fourth, seventh, or 10th would be more able to act as these are Angular houses. Planets in Succedent houses of the chart (second, fifth, eighth, eleventh) are generally considered to be of medium ability to act. Besides Accidental Dignity, there are a range of Accidental Debilities, such as retrogradation, Under the Sun's Beams, Combust, and so forth. Further information: Decans Equirectangular plot of declination vs right ascension of the modern constellations with a dotted line denoting the ecliptic. (detailed view) Each sign can be divided into three 10° sectors known as decanate is sub-ruled by the sign ruler.[43] The next decanate is sub-ruled by the by the next in order in the same triplicity.[44] While the element and modality of a sign are together sufficient to define it, they can be grouped to indicate their symbolism. The first four signs, Leo, Virgo, Libra, and Scorpio form the group of interpersonal signs. The last four signs of the zodiac, Sagittarius, Capricorn, Aquarius, and Pisces, form the group of transpersonal signs.[45] Dane Rudhyar presented the tropical zodiac of seasonal factors as opposed to the sidereal zodiac (constellation factors). The primary seasonal factors are based on the changing ratio of sunlight and darkness across the year. The first factor is whether the chosen time falls in the half of the year when darkness is increasing. The second factor is whether the chosen time falls in the half of the year when there is more daylight than darkness, or the half when there is more darkness than daylight. The third factor is which of the four season is when daylight is increasing and there is more daylight than darkness. The summer season is when darkness is increasing and there is more daylight than darkness. The autumn season is when darkness is increasing and there is more darkness than daylight. The winter season is when daylight. A particular feature of the Chinese zodiac is its operation in a 60-year cycle in combination with the Five Phases of Chinese astrology (Wood, Fire, Metal, Water and Earth).[51] Nevertheless, some researches say that there is an obvious relationship between the Chinese 12-year cycle and zodiac constellations: each year of the cycle corresponds to a certain disposal of Jupiter For example, in the year of Snake Jupiter is in the Sign of Gemini, in the Sign of Cancer and so on. So the Chinese 12-year calendar is a solar-lunar-jovian calendar is a solar-lunar-jovian calendar. The following table shows the twelve signs and their attributes. England: The Wessex Astrology. England: The Sagittarius zodiac symbol of the Centaur is based on the Greek mythological association with Chiron, the great teacher of music, medicine, hunting, and prophecy. Chiron healed the hero Achilles and mentored him in archery and many other great arts when he cared for him as a child. Achilles later grew to be victorious in the Trojan War, likely having learned to be brave and clever while under the tutelage of this benevolent centaur. Sagittarius' connection to travel, higher knowledge and truth-seeking stem from the centaur race's questing attributes, yet mostly from Chiron, who was the kindest, most generous and friendly to humans of them all. Being half-beast, the centaur/archer holds both an intelligent civilized side, and also an untamed, bestial nature, embodying a balance of primal instinct and wisdom. In the western tropical zodiac, Sagittarius season begins on November 22, commencing at the end of the Autumn in the Northern Hemisphere. It's a time of year when the days of the fall begins to dominate. There is a feeling of change in the air as the last warm days of the fall begins to dominate. cold, insular season of winter are beginning to take hold of the weather. Mutable ModeSagittarius is the third of the four mutable signs of the zodiac, who all hold an elemental energy of change and adaptation at the transitional end of the four mutable signs of the zodiac. and helps describe Sagittarius' restless, change-seeking, and adventurous nature. Fire Element is fire, the lightest, brightest element, thought by ancient astrologers to be akin to the divine light of the stars and the vital, life-giving rays of the sun. Sag's affinity for enthusiasm, truth-seeking, authenticity, and at times brutal honesty. is kindled in the fire element. In classical astrology, Jupiter was assigned rulership of both Pisces and Sagittarius. Sagittarius was thought to be the diurnal/day home of Jupiter, an adaptive fire sign that allows Jupiter to be as expansive, affirming, and joyful as it likes to be when placed there. Jupiter is the biggest planet in our solar system, reflecting the most amount of light from the sun, reason why it was called the "greater benefic" and was recognized as having the greatest power to bestow luck and good fortune of all the seven visible planets. This planetary rulership connection adds another layer to the natural qualities of Sagittarius, being the source of the sign's affinity for optimism. triendliness, and enthusiasm. Those who are born with their sun placed in Sagittarius are big thinkers, truth-seekers, and love to engage in philosophical inquiries and debates. Those born with their sun placed in Sagittarius tend to have a strong baseline of optimism to fall back on and may have luck when following their highest beliefs and values.Detriment of MercurySagittarius is in polarity with the mutable air sign Gemini. Sagittarius likes to affirm, expand, and explore universal truths, where Gemini loves to analyze, preferring to focus on gathering small, fascinating details, using mischief to tease, prod, and disrupt. As a result, Mercury and its "mercurial" ways were traditionally thought to be in detriment, or at a bit of a disadvantage when placed opposite from its home in Sagittarius' bold, brave, and unbounded world. It's a placement that the planet of communications and language would have to compensate for to be in, finding creative ways to think and get important messages across. The result is often a tangential way of speaking and writing since those with this placement take the long way around when expressing themselves. With Jupiter's influence, however, the focus of thought, speech, and learning is on understanding the unifying truths of life. And while Mercury in this sign seems to take a long time to get to the point, there is always a grand idea and a bigpicture understanding in mind. Mercury in Sagittarius may challenge those born with this placement to edit and focus their awareness on one subject more deeply at a time, as they prefer to follow their curiosity to learn a little bit about a lot of topics. In the modern astrology system of the Twelve Letter Alphabet, each zodiac sign rules one of the twelve houses in the birth chart. This innovation was created by psychological astrologers to match sign affinities to related house topics. Sagittarius is ruled by Jupiter, this modern astrology system invites an ebullient, expansive sub-signature to the significance of the ninth house. The Eleventh House of "good spirit" in the eleventh house, associated with friends, alliances, hopes, and gifts is a natural, affirming, and happy place for Jupiter to be. Since Jupiter likes to expand and dissolve boundaries, this house speaks to the opportunities that are available to us when we feel connected to a community and receive encouragement, validation, and support. The eleventh house is associated with alliances we form and gifts we receive in our public or social roles, perhaps as an extension of our career activities. Sagittarius' traits are derived from its active, masculine, or yang qualities, making this sign oriented toward assertive engagement with the centaur as their rising, sun, or moon sign have enthusiastic energy in their core personality; like the joyous, benevolent qualities of Jupiter. As a mutable sign, the Centaur holds the power to be a change-maker, giving those with prominent Sagittarius in their charts a natural affinity for adaptation, exploring the world, as well as teaching and practicing diverse forms of spiritual devotion and philosophy. Ruled by expansive Jupiter, Sagittarius natives can be thought of as the "seekers" of the zodiac who like to expand their minds by seeking out new perspectives and experiences. Strengths The primary strength of Sagittarius is their optimism. Being born with a bold, jovial disposition, Sagittarius natives usually find it easy to feel happy, enthusiastic, and to see the bright side of life. Being influenced by Jupiter's affirming and confident nature, Sagittarians rarely succumb to self-doubt and are usually able to propel themselves forward in life, believing that everything will work out for the best. The Centaur's thirst for travel and adventure takes on an epic significance, where they see their lives unfolding like the plot of a mythopoetic tale, always carrying them to the right place, at the right time. Since their lives are likely to be filled with fascinating experiences, they are typically wonderful storytellers and great teachers, weaving universal messages of truth and inspiration into their lessons and tales. Personal integrity is very dear to Sagittarians, and they will have a difficult time following the status quo or suffering what they feel to be false or inauthentic roles, ideas, or laws. When a Sagittarius feels moved by a cause, they'll express what's in their minds and hearts with great zeal, and conviction. Like their fire sign neighbors, you will always know where you stand with a Sagittarius, but since they aspire to a sense of higher philosophy and greater truth, they rarely hold a grudge or have time to be petty. Sagittarians are very unlikely to be possessive or materialistic since their lives prioritize being able to change, move, and adapt easily. Though they can be non-committal, they are also rarely jealous, extending the same freedoms to others that would also love to enjoy themselves. Weaknesses for Sagittarius are rooted in their great strengths. Being a mutable fire sign, Sagittarius will passionately their new views later on. This can be disorienting for others who were sure they knew their Sag colleague's position on a matter, giving them a reputation for being unpredictable, or at times unreliable. Due to their adventurous spirit, and love of change and travel, Sags are famously non-committal when it comes to plans, as they also reserve the right to change their agendas with their moods. When trying to get a Sagittarius lover to commit to a long-term relationship, people need to manage their expectations, as this fire sign loves to live in the moment and can sometimes break the hearts of those they leave behind. The Archer's optimism is generally positive, and even infectious, but they can become so enamored with their ideals that they become very ungrounded and unrealistic, finding regular life and its limitations to be inconvenient as well as disappointing. Sagittarius children, especially, will benefit from guidance on how to add healthy structure and commitment to their lives and friendships, so that they grow up with a sense of support when they need it most. In classical astrology, Jupiter is associated with wise teachers and kings, giving natives from this sign a bold, authoritative way of speaking. This can verge on condescension, however, if they are not respectful of those they are communicating with, giving the other party the feeling of being spoken down to, or arrogantly dismissed. Like all fire signs, Sagittarius will have to manage their impulsivity, impatience, and short temper, which can present as the Centaur's famous "brutal honesty". The voice of optimism, enthusiasm, and thirst for adventure comes forward in the Sagittarius mantra: I see. The Archer's sense of purpose is all about seeking the universal truths of life, and this sign will go to the very ends of the earth to "see" and experience all that life has to offer for themselves. We all have Sagittarius somewhere in our birth chart, so we can look to the house this sign rules to find the specific area of life we approach in an expansive, optimistic way, or where we need to call in the Centaur's optimistic energy for mastery. Sagittarius people tend to be drawn to any pursuit where they can grow on a spiritual level and teach others to do the same. Traveling, motivating, public speaking, sharing knowledge, adventure makes them uniquely suited for professions where they are trailblazers of some kind, creating their own roles and opportunities in the world so they can earn a living with their diverse and eclectic interests. Their careers need to be challenging and dynamic enough to fulfill their adaptive natures. jobs in which they can teach, inspire, and work for a higher cause or purpose will be best. This could manifest in many professions, but likely will not be found in staid, routine-type jobs that require laboring over finicky details or analysis. Like all the fire signs, Sagittarius needs challenge, movement, and space, so will not be content for long in the same location unless of course, that location is in an exotic place! If they do have a sedentary aspect to their work, they need to counterbalance this with vacations, movement practices like yoga, and enjoying multi-cultural events and activities. Since Sagittarius is ruled by Jupiter, the planet of optimism, higher truths, and expansion, a natural vocational fit could potentially be found in activism. Any way that a Sag native can take an active role in teaching and inspiring positive change, growth, and a sense of collective unity will likely be most fulfilling. Teaching is another profession, with Jupiter, the ruler of Sagittarius, being connected to higher learning and wisdom. This could be any subject that the native feels connected to and passionate about and could be at a university level, sharing philosophy, multi-cultural, and even religious studies. Since Sagittarians can have great empathy for human struggle, often having to carve an unconventional path themselves in life. Jupiter is associated with justice and higher values, often guiding these folks toward realizing these folks some kind would be an appealing, natural fit for Sagittarians. This could be within any belief system the native is connected to, placing them in leadership roles in community churches, at the local yoga studio, or even in coaching. Sagittarians tend to have a natural curiosity for, and a knack for languages, so jobs in writing, storytelling, or even translation would be appropriate for the articulate and well-studied Centaur. With a love of travel and adventure, Sagittarians could make excellent tour guides, where they can combine their social gifts for storytelling, higher knowledge of local culture, and love for nature in a dynamic and fun role. As with all fire signs, Sagittarians have athletic leanings, so working in the fields of sport and movement may be appealing. Though Centaurs love to be active, they may not be particularly status-seeking, ambitious, or competitive; and may participate in sport for the joy and camaraderie and can make great team coaches, or even practitioners of sports medicine. When exploring overall compatibility in astrology, it's important to take more than the sun sign into consideration, as the rising sign, moon, and other planetary cross-connections will tend to blend best with fire signs and air signs; and may need to work harder on relationships with water signs and earth signs. Fire signs. Sagittarius will typically find great affinity in other fire signs, as they will understand each other's impulsive, spontaneous nature. Aries can handle the Archer's heat and brutal honesty and is independent enough to not feel left behind when Sagittarius' life takes them out of town. The two will be active and lively together. Sag with Leo can be a wonderful, inspiring, creative duo, but Leo may need more attention and assurance than free-spirited Archer can sometimes provide. Sagittarius can be a great match, with affinity, understanding, and long-distance arrangements. Air signs Air signs Air signs bring a natural complementary energy to Sagittarius, as air feeds fire, stoking it to grow and become more alive. Aquarius and Libra bring intelligence and curiosity to Sagittarius' inspired and adventurous life; and the two can have a complimentary or polarizing relationship. Sagittarius can teach Gemini to keep their eye on the bigger picture, and not get too fixated on small details, and Gemini can challenge Sagittarius' idealism by keeping them from getting to this sign, even though they may bring emotional intelligence to help cool and counterbalance Sagittarius' bold, enthusiastic, and wandering tendencies. Cancer will be very good at caring for Sagittarius, which they will love, but Cancer may prefer to stay at home while Sagittarius, with both signs being classically ruled by expansive Jupiter, yet may be too sensitive and private to fully appreciate the Archer's brutal honesty. Scorpio can bring sexual potency to a relationship with Sagittarius, but with Scorpio's jealous tendencies, this is a potentially stabilize Sag's zealous nature, with Capricorn, the authoritative cardinal earth sign, having the fortitude to stand their ground in the face of Sag's hubris. Taurus, although dependable and loving, may be a bit too stubborn and rooted to roll with Sagittarius' ever-changing plans. Virgo may be too demure and focused on doing things perfectly to enjoy Sag's wild, untamed tendencies. In general, when Sagittarius joins forces with earth signs in work, they can cover a lot of ground together, with earth signs offering the practical medical astrology, there were four temperaments, that were connected to four vital fluids, and four essential constitution types. As a fire sign, Sagittarius is associated with a more moderate version of the choleric temperament, which was thought to be hot and dry, and connected the production of digestive bile. Since Sagittarius is ruled by Jupiter, this gives Sagittarians an additional mix of the sanguine constitution, which is warm and moist, and prone to dissipation of energy and digestive gasses. Those born with Sagittarius rising, especially, may present the fiery physicality of an athletic body, who may tend to run hot physically and emotionally, making them vulnerable to restlessness, dehydration, and overheating. Body PartsIn classical astrology medicine, the entire zodiac was mapped out on the human body, with Sagittarius ruling over the hips and thighs, and internally, the liver. As a result, those with Sagittarius may have strong legs but may need to protect themselves from strain or overuse of thigh muscles, bones, and hip flexors. The liver is a very Jupiterian organ, being large and expansive, and ever regenerating, much like its planetary ruler, so it is a special organ of focus for this sign. It's important that liver care is incorporated into the Centaur's diet so that it does not become overburdened or toxic. Sagittarius natives need to keep their systems cool and stress levels low with calming, relaxing practices, fiber-rich fruits and vegetables, and good hydration. Herbal AlliesDandelion root is a prime Sagittarius herbal ally, with its primary benefits being helpful, supportive, and healing for the liver. Loaded with antioxidants and anti-inflammatory properties, it is protective against cellular damage caused by free radicals in the system. Dandelion root supports digestion, reduces water retention, and helps cleanse excess fats from the liver. It can be moderately cooling and drying, helping to calm excess heat and moisture in the stomach and liver, as well as in the Sagittarian body system that tends to overheat. Lemon balm is another Sagittarius ally, with a calming fragrance and qualities that clear the liver and promote digestion. Being a Jupiterian herb, it tends to grow abundantly, and its tea and tinctures help calm the nervous system and stimulate the bile to help promote fat digestion. It was said by classical physicians to "purge" melancholy, a state of dryness and coldness in the body that leads to stiffness and depression, so it can be used to emphasize warm and relaxed qualities where these are deficient. Yellow dock is an example of another Jupiterian plant, whose leaves can be eaten in salads and carry much of the same minerals and vitamins as spinach. who recommended its tea to cleanse and cure boils and infections of the sinuses and respiratory tract. Yellow dock contains constituents that have a stimulating and laxative effect on the bowels, which helps to ease constipation and to flush out an overburdened liver. Each of the twelve zodiac signs represents a thirty-degree slice of a 360-degree band of constellations, circling the earth. The thirty degrees of each sign can be further subdivided into three ten-degree decans, or faces, each with its own planetary power. In studying the Sagittarius personality, we can use the faces of Sagittarius to fine-tune the flavor and nuance of planets or points placed within these decanic degrees.
